JOHN N. MITCHELL

MAURICE STANS

Charges linked to Vesco contribution

Mitchell, Stans on trial

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and ex-Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans made a final, vain effort today to abort or delay their federal criminal trial, the first in the last half-century involving members of the President's Cabinet.

Stans' attorney, John Diuguid, renewed his request to dismiss the charges of conspiracy and obstruction of justice against the two of them, to move the trial out of New York City, or to delay it indefinitely.

He contended that pretrial publicity had made a fair trial impossible.

Mitchell, 60, attorney general during President Nixon's first term, and Stans, 65, Nixon's first secretary of Commerce, are charged with accepting a $200,000 under-the-table contribution to Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign from fugitive financier Robert Vesco, 37.

In return, the government claimed, they pledged "to exert their influence" in sidetracking a Securities and Exchange Commission probe of Vesco's multimillion-dollar corporate empire.

Not since the Teapot Dome scandal of 1923 have two cabinet members been indicted on charges relative to their official or political duties. In that case, Republican President Warren G. Harding's interior secretary, Albert Fall, went to prison, but his attorney general, Harry Daugherty, escaped punishment.

Mitchell was in charge of Nixon's re-election campaign, and Stans was his chief fund raiser on March 8, 1972, when the indictment charges that Vesco offered a $500,000 contribution in return for intercession with the SEC.

The government charged that eventually a sum of $200,000 was agreed upon and that this amount was secretly turned over to Stans in Washington on April 10, 1972. A new law requiring public disclosure of campaign contributions had taken effect three days earlier.

The indictment claims that Mitchell and Stans subsequently brought pressure on the SEC in Vesco's behalf. The case was said to have been brought up in a discussion between Nixon and his former White House counsel John W. Dean III. However, there has been no public indication that Nixon was aware of the purported conspiracy between Mitchell, Stans and Vesco.

Mitchell and Stans are additionally charged with six counts of perjury, bringing their maximum sentences upon conviction to 50 years.

Hearst awaits word on $2 million grab

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Randolph A. Hearst is awaiting reaction from his daughter's kidnapers on his plan to deliver $2 million for food for California's needy as a first step toward gaining Patricia Hearst's freedom.

He also is searching for a "tax-exempt, charitable organization" approved by the California attorney general to handle the money — including $500,000 in personal assets — he said would be available today.

"The money will be available, but we have to find a proper conduit," the president and editor of the San Francisco Examiner and chairman of the Hearst Corp. told newsmen Monday.

"They've asked me for a goodwill gesture. I consider this a goodwill gesture, particularly since there's no guarantee that my daughter will be released.

"I think it is up to them now to believe me and to make a good faith gesture of their own."

Details on how the money would be spent and the food distributed remained to be worked out, he said. Food industry officials said $2 million would provide enough food to stock 34 supermarkets.

The Symbionese Liberation Army, which claims to be holding the 19-year-old University of California student, demanded that Hearst give $70 of free food to each of the state's poor, aged, paroled and disabled as a condition for negotiations for her release. State officials estimated the cost at some $400 million.

Hearst announced his plan one day before a deadline set by the SLA. He emphasized it was only a first step.

"There is no guarantee Patricia is going to get home on this," he said.

His daughter was pulled screaming from her Berkeley apartment 15 days ago by two black men who fired shots at witnesses.

Hearst also said he had asked San Francisco attorney William Coblentz, a family friend, to see that two SLA members charged with the murder of Oakland Schools Supt. Marcus Foster last Nov. 6 get a fair trial.

Hearst said the $500,000 he is donating himself represents "a substantial part of my personal assets." He said the remaining $1.5 million would come from the William Randolph Hearst Foundation.

"This is an honest effort on my part to do what I can, and that's all I can do. I think they'll believe that," Hearst said.

The SLA told Hearst in a taped message received Saturday it would "accept a sincere effort on your part." On the same tape, Miss Hearst urged her father to devise a program "as fast as you can and everything will be fine."

Hearst announced his plan after meeting with American Indian Movement leader Dennis Banks and other members of the coalition of activist groups named by the SLA to handle the food distribution.

"I would like to say I may not be their friend, but they've turned out to be mine," he said of the activist groups. "If there's anything that I can do to help them in the future, whether Patty's in or out, I'm going to try and do it and understand their problems."

Democrat winner for Ford's seat

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — Using Watergate as his war cry, a Democrat who had been a consistent political loser has captured Vice President Gerald R. Ford's former House seat, defeating a Republican who had never lost an election.

"We are sending a message to Washington tonight," Richard F. VanderVeen told a cheering crowd celebrating his victory Monday night in breaking a 64-year Republican lock on Michigan's 5th Congressional District seat.

Using the theme that the special election to fill Ford's unexpired term was a "referendum on President Nixon," VanderVeen polled 53,008 votes to 46,159 for favored Republican Robert VanderLaan. Two minor-party candidates mustered only 4,998 votes between them.

As he did throughout his campaign, VanderVeen, a 51-year-old corporation lawyer, called again Monday night for President Nixon's resignation, "so we may put Watergate behind us, not before us."

Michigan Republican Chairman William McLaughlin said, "Watergate killed us. I don't know of anything else. That's the issue that VanderVeen made. We got our Republicans out, and that's a Republican district. Without a doubt there is a message. People don't like what's going on in Washington."

He said the election foreshadows "a tough year" for Republicans.

Asked if he favors Nixon's resignation or impeachment, McLaughlin said, "I'm giving a lot of thought to what we've got to do. It's obvious something has to be done on the national level, but I don't know what."

VanderLaan, 43, who had never lost in 15 previous elections, refused to discuss his loss, saying, "We're not going to talk about the anatomy of it until we've had a chance to sleep on it."

Ford seemed stunned by the outcome.

"You can't mean that," the vice president told an aide when he learned of VanderLaan's loss. But Ford skirted any mention of Watergate in assessing the election results.

"I'm sure it's a reflection of the uncertain economic conditions in Michigan particularly and in the country generally," Ford said in a telephone interview from Chattanooga, Tenn. "I'm confident that as the economy improves there will be greater support for the Republican candidates."

VanderVeen, who lives in East Grand Rapids, had never before won an election. He failed in a 1971 bid to become mayor of East Grand Rapids, his hometown, lost a party primary for lieutenant governor in 1960 and was unsuccessful in his race against Ford.

Land venture set at Columbus

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Two real estate firms have announced a joint $300 million land development venture in and around the Columbus area.

Officials of the Nationwide Development Co. and the Ernest G. Fritsche organization said the new combine will market 1,350 acres in seven locations near the city's new outerbelt.

The joint venture, to be known as Primeland Properties, is expected to involve residential, commercial and industrial tracts, the firms said.

Gold prices dip

LONDON (AP) — The price of gold fell back today from record peaks after a predicted upvaluing of gold holdings by European Common Market governments failed to materialize.

The American dollar rallied in European exchanges from a sharply lower opening. By noon early losses were nearly recouped.

Gold reached a record high of $152 an ounce Monday in London and Zurich, the two main trading centers, as finance ministers of the nine Common Market countries were meeting in Brussels.

Nixon says Americans not quitters

WASHINGTON (AP) — Without directly mentioning his Watergate woes, President Nixon has told his largest and most enthusiastic audience since the 1972 campaign that "the American people are not a nation of quitters."

Joining Gov. George C. Wallace at an honor America Day rally Monday in Huntsville, Ala., Nixon told an outdoor crowd estimated by security personnel at 20,000 to 30,000:

"Americans have always had strength in adversity ... there have been times of discouragement in America but the American spirit was such that we always became stronger when the going got tougher."

Nixon pointed to Wallace as a living example of this, recalling his recovery from a 1972 assassination attempt that left the governor partially paralyzed.

Wallace, who has sought the presidency three times and is considered a contender for the 1976 Democratic presidential nomination, seemed careful in his introductory remarks to pay honor to the presidential office while sidestepping any praise of Nixon the man.

"We in Alabama have always honored the office of the presidency of the United States. We are all flag wavers in Alabama," said Wallace.

The governor got a bit more personal when, after saying it was an honor to have the President in the state, he added:

"I say God bless you, Mr. President, and I submit to you that you are among friends in Alabama."

Cheers and welcoming banners far outnumbered evidences of criticism in the rally crowd, although a few persons held aloft placards with such legends as, "Honor America — Impeach Nixon."

It was the second Nixon speech of a long six-day weekend in the South, spent mostly at his home in Key Biscayne, Fla. Last Thursday in Miami he drew a much more modest crowd, and many more critics, when speaking at a hospital dedication.

Flying back to Washington from Huntsville, the President stopped in Indianapolis to pick up his daughter Julie Nixon Eisenhower, who is recovering from emergency surgery for removal of an ovarian cyst.

Arab ministers bring 'good news' to U.S. meeting

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two Arab foreign ministers say they are bringing "good news" to President Nixon about prospects for Syria's entry into the Middle East peace talks.

And Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger is reporting "solid accomplishments" in advance of today's White House session.

The positive note followed talks at the State Department Monday between Ismail Fahmy of Egypt and Omar Sakkaf of Saudi Arabia and the secretary.

"Everything is moving in the right direction," Fahmy told reporters. Kissinger, meanwhile, said, "I agree with his characterization."

The speculation is that the State Department session produced a framework for negotiations on a separation of Syrian and Israeli forces in the Golan Heights. The question is whether Kissinger will readily assume the sort of mediator role he played in arranging a disengagement between Egypt and Israel by shuttling between the two countries.

Since he has a date later this week in Mexico City for a conference of Western Hemisphere ministers there seems little chance of immediate negotiations. But he may wind up later this month in Geneva or in Jerusalem and Damascus using shuttle diplomacy to bridge the enmity between the October War foes.

"The major problem now is to get these talks started and I hope we are making progress," Kissinger said.

Asked whether he would travel to the Middle East, the secretary replied: "First we have to get a framework started."

Fahmy, speaking also for Sakkaf, who doubled back to his hotel because of intestinal flu, said "There is progress on every avenue" and that he would be bringing "good news" to Nixon.

Presumably, this could also involve an early lifting of the Arab oil boycott against the United States.

Syria has refused to participate in peace talks until Israel gives up the territory taken after it was attacked by its Arab neighbor. Israel, on the other hand, has insisted on the precondition of a list of war prisoners in Syrian hands and visits to them by the Red Cross.

Over the last month Kissinger is known to have been working on a compromise by which the lists would be obtained once the negotiations reached a serious stage. A key question is how much of the strategic territory Israel is willing to yield.

Storms rake Gulf states

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Severe thunderstorms accompanied by high winds and hail raked the central Gulf states today.

In Jackson, Miss., where an inch of rain fell, a radio tower was toppled by strong winds late Monday. A short time later, hail the size of ping-pong balls pounded the neighboring town of Florence.

An early-morning tornado watch was in effect for most of Alabama and parts of Mississippi, Georgia and Florida.

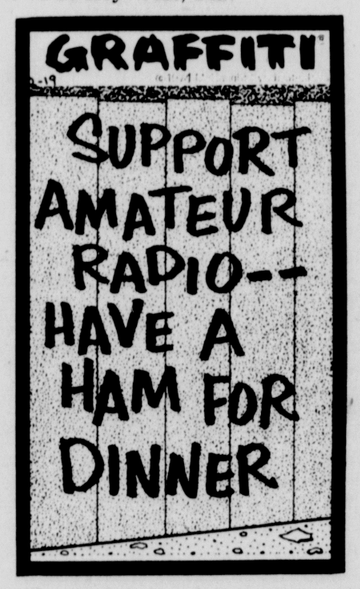

The thunderstorms extended into Arkansas, while rain soaked Tennessee and the western Ohio Valley and ranged into southern Lower Michigan.

Rain was expected to change to snow over Michigan and spread east along the northern tier of states to upper New England. A heavy-snow watch was in effect for Upper Michigan.

A cold front produced rain and snow over the Northwest from the Pacific Coast to the Rockies, and travel advisories for heavy snow were out for portions of Idaho, Utah, Nevada and Wyoming.

In parts of Texas, wind gusts to 40 m.p.h. stirred up dust causing low visibilities.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 7 at Lebanon and Concord, N.H., to 72 at Key West, Fla.

Big Labor continues push for impeachment

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — AFL-CIO President George Meany says the labor federation will continue campaigning for President Nixon's impeachment despite administration efforts "to portray us as some sort of sinister force."

"Blaming us for the President's troubles is ridiculous," Meany said Monday after the AFL-CIO's governing executive council again urged Congress to impeach the President.

The council said in a statement that a full impeachment trial by the Senate "is the only way for the President to get his day in court" and "the only way the American people can get the truth" about Watergate.

The AFL-CIO first called for Nixon's ouster at its convention last October and followed it up with a 19-point bill of particulars documenting what the organization said were "impeachable offenses."

In a recent speech, Vice President Gerald R. Ford criticized the labor campaign as an effort by a few pressure groups to discredit the President.

Meany said, however, that the purpose of the AFL-CIO effort was "to inform our membership about Watergate and related scandals.

"Now we are charged by Gerry Ford of having a well-financed campaign and that we are dragging out Watergate," Meany told a news conference.

He said the President "could have ended Watergate last May if he had just come out and told the truth."

That is all the AFL-CIO has asked, Meany said.

Later in the week, the executive council's economic policy committee is expected to come out strongly against any further extension of wage-price controls.

REPUBLICANS UNITE — Congressman William H. Harsha was the guest speaker at Monday's Lincoln Day Dinner in the Mahan Building. He said that Republicans can have a good year at the polls if they refuse to be "psychedout" by the Watergate scandal. Party unity was stressed as the key in the coming election.

Republicans hear appeal for unity

"No one drowned at Watergate," Master of Ceremonies James Hanawalt said in his opening remarks at the 11th Annual Lincoln Day Dinner Monday night. The pun drew a few chuckles, long applause and set the theme of the evening for some 325 Republicans who attended the affair in the Mahan Building.

There was little rhetoric of the party's strides under five years of a Republican president, but rather there was a call for unity, a request that Republicans not let the party be the only casualty of Watergate.

Congressman William H. Harsha, who spoke in the absence of Cleveland Mayor Ralph Perk, stated that in spite of the picture painted by the media, the Republican party is not dead. "Don't be psyched out of the 1974 election," he said.

Harsha then noted that the year following Presidential hopeful Barry Goldwater's resounding defeat in 1964 the syndicated polls showed only one-third of all Americans intended to vote Republican in the 1965 elections. Republicans gained 42 seats that year, he recalled.

Congressman Harsha observed that the Congress has had a Democratic majority for many years. They (Democrats) were the architects of the legislation which has thrown the American economy into chaos, and they should not be blaming the President, he said.

A nbation that can split the atom, and send men to the moon and back can surely restore a sound economy, he noted.

HE CALLED ON all Republicans to drink, swear, steal and lie . . . to drink from the fountain of love for mankind, swear to help the party, steal time from themselves for others, and to lie in bed each night and thank God for the freedoms they enjoy in America!!!

Balloonist has setback during trip

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Thomas Gatch Jr.'s bid to make the first balloon flight across the Atlantic has suffered a slight setback, but he is still cruising along at 35,500 feet above the sea.

After crossing the coastline north of Atlantic City, N.J., Monday night, Gatch reported by radio that one of his 10 superpressure balloons had ruptured and was draped over a porthole on his pressurized gondola, Light Heart.

Gatch said he heard a loud noise when the balloon apparently burst, just over an hour after take-off.

The 48-year-old bachelor from Alexandria, Va., lifted off from Harrisburg International Airport at 7:29 p.m. EDT Monday on a flight he hopes will take him to southern France or northern Spain in approximately 52 hours. At 10 p.m. EDT, Aeronautical Instrument & Radio Co. in New York reported Gatch at about 200 miles southeast of New York City.

Aides said the timetable would change because the ruptured balloon would force Gatch to fly lower than the 39,000 feet originally planned. They said the craft could lose two more balloons without placing the flier in danger.

The radio monitoring station in New York reported the Light Heart was traveling about 150 miles per hour in an eastbound jet stream when it crossed the coastline.

CLEARING THE NEW KROGER SITE — Art Tefft (left), president of the K and S Construction Company stands with Cecil Campbell of Campbell and Son Excavators, in front of a recently demolished house on the new Kroger site on Clinton Avenue. Tefft stated the whole project should be completed in nine months and his biggest problem is not being able to burn on the construction site because of a city ordinance.

Congress again eyes energy bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Emergency energy legislation is heading toward an uncertain fate as Senate opponents are seeking to recommit it once again to a conference with the House.

Senate Interior Chairman Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., floor manager of the bill, said Monday the recommittal vote expected to occur late this afternoon would be decided by a "razor thin" margin but declined to predict which way it would go.

If the vote to recommit fails, the bill is expected to gain speedy passage and be sent to the House for final action. Jackson said last week that sending the bill back to conference almost certainly would kill it.

The measure that would give President Nixon power to order gasoline rationing and other mandatory fuel-saving steps has failed in two previous attempts to gain Senate passage. Opposition centers on a provision that would roll back the price of uncontrolled domestic crude oil from an average price of around $10 per barrel to $5.25.

Jackson claims the rollback would save consumers $20 million a day while opponents claim it would force the oil companies to cut back on production, making current shortages worse. A few senators argue that the rollback is not enough.

In a press conference Monday, Jackson said the fight against the bill was being led from behind the scenes by the oil companies and the White House. Administration lobbyists acknowledge their opposition to the price rollback, along with certain other provisions.

The White House has worked to block the bill's passage on two previous occasions — once before Christmas when it backed a filibuster by Republicans and oil state senators and again last month when the President personally urged the Senate to send the bill back to conference to remove a provision designed to limit oil company profits.

The conferees substituted the equally controversial price rollback provision for the excess profits section. Federal Energy chief William E. Simon has labeled the rollback formula "unworkable."

U. N. report hits waste of foods

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — A student of world living standards reported today that the garbage an average resident of a big Western city throws out in one day contains enough calories to meet the daily food requirement of an Asian or an African.

Manouchehr Ganji, an Iranian scholar, said in a speech prepared for the annual meeting of the United Nations Commission on Human Rights that this was determined by experts of the U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization who analyzed the refuse of big Western cities.

2 winners in bake-off

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — A Minnesota farm wife and a gourmet cook each won $25,000 today in the 25th Bake-off sponsored by the Pillsbury Co.

Four others received $5,000 prizes for their entries in the national competition.

Frances Jerzak won the grocery dessert award and the grand prize of $25,000 with her entry of chocolate cherry bars, a four-ingredient bar topped with frosting. Mrs. Jerzak, her three sons and husband live on a rented farm near the small southwestern Minnesota town of Porter.

She had entered the annual Bakeoff once before, but was unsuccessful. Her family's dream, she says, is to own a farm of their own.

Doris Castle, wife of a research engineer in the Chicago suburb of River Forest, Ill., earned the refrigerated foods grand award with savory crescent chicken squares, a family main dish sandwich in which chicken is blended with cream cheese, seasoned with chives and pimento, then dipped in crushed croutons and baked in crescent dough.

Republican dinner

plause, and the crowd rose as Harsha closed and took his seat.

The congressman had been asked to speak after it was learned that Mayor Perk of Cleveland had been hospitalized over the weekend. Perk had been scheduled to be the guest speaker.

Bob Hughes, chairman of the Cuyahoga County Republican Executive Committee, represented Perk at the dinner and spoke briefly. He noted that Perk had won re-election to the position of mayor of Cleveland, which is largely Democratic, in November in spite of the Republican difficulties in Washington and stressed that good Republicans everywhere can be elected to high office. He asked that Republican voters in Fayette County keep Perk's fine record in mind as they approach the polls to select a candidate for the U.S. Senate.

Peter Voss, who is opposing Perk for the Senate in the primary, was a contrast to all other candidates who spoke. A Canton businessman who has had some service in international politics, Voss did not defend Watergate, or make light of it. He stated openly that the situation in Washington is deplorable and called on Republicans to correct the mistake of having so much power in the hands of so few.

PRIOR to the introduction of candidates, those in attendance were entertained by a choral group from Washington Senior High School, under the direction of Charles Shaffer, and by the Burns Sisters, a black gospel group from Jeffersonville.

Robert Brubaker, chairman of the Fayette County Republican Executive Committee, introduced the party members who are seeking state and local office this year. He asked that they take no more than one minute to make themselves known.

John Rhoads, a candidate for county commissioner, was introduced. His Republican opponents, J. Willard Sears and Carl Wilt were not in attendance.

Running unopposed are Common Pleas Judge Evelyn W. Coffman, James Kiger, prosecuting attorney, and Mrs. Mary Morris, county auditor.

State representative candidates from the 77th District, Bob McEwen, Hillsboro; Lewis Overturf, London; and Frank Matson, Spring Valley, were introduced. James Heininger, Greenfield, was not present.

State senator candidates from the 17th District, Harry L. Armstrong, of Logan, the incumbent, and Oakley Collins, of Portsmouth, were recognized.

Charles Eades, Milford, and Charles Horr, Portsmouth, hopefuls for the position of state committeemen from the 6th District were introduced as was Dorothy Clifton, of Blanchester, who is unopposed for committeewoman.

STATE CANDIDATES introduced included Charles E. Fry, of Springfield, and Bert Dawson, Jr., of East Liverpool. They are opposed by James Rhoades for the Republican slot on the ballot in the governor's race.

Attorney general candidates Stanley Aronoff, Cincinnati, George Smith, Columbus, spoke briefly. Their opponent in the primary, David Dowd Jr., of Massillon, did not attend.

Roger Tracy Jr., Columbus, was represented at the dinner by his wife, Elizabeth. Thomas Cloud, his opponent for state auditor, was introduced.

Sheldon Taft, seeking a post on the Ohio Supreme Court, spoke briefly. He noted that Republicans do not have to choose between himself and C. William O'Neill or Thomas Herbert who are also running. There are three seats open.

State Sen. Max Dennis and State Rep. Joseph Heistand were in attendance. However, Dennis is not currently up for re-election, and Heistand has decided not to seek another term.

Hanawalt asked that the audience recognize the outstanding efforts of Mary Jean Jennings in support of the party over the year, and thanked Mrs. Jennings and Mrs. Kathryn Lee for their work in planning the dinner.

Housing bill still trapped in committee

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A disagreement over a wage provision has trapped a bill for low income housing in Ohio in the Senate Finance Committee since last July.

Sen. Max Dennis, R-10 Wilmington, the committee chairman, said the problem is between the Ohio Home Builders, savings and loan associations, and the Housing Development board, a state agency.

The issue is the bill's requirement that builders pay the prevailing hourly wage in the area in which the houses are built.

The homebuilders have objected to the provision because it means they would have to pay union wages in a rural county, although the prevailing wage was established in the nearest metropolitan area.

Dennis said he is awaiting a compromise between the factions before giving it additional hearings. The bill was passed by the House last July.

But builders contend the delay may cost Ohio builders almost $400 million in federal funds that would be advanced to get the program started.

The General Assembly was to return from weekend recess today with both houses having floor votes set for 1:30 p.m.

The House was scheduled to vote on two bills aimed at improving medical care in Ohio.

Stock list up sharply

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market posted a sharp gain today, rallying around rising hopes for an early end to the Arab oil embargo.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up 11.34 at 831.66. Gainers outdistanced losers by close to 4 to 1 on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said the upsurge stemmed largely from news that two Arab foreign ministers expected to give President Nixon some "good news" at a meeting with him today, after weekend talks with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

Redman Industries was the most-active NYSE issue, up ½ at 4.

On The American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose 1.04 to 95.31.

Oil stocks were strong.

Travel and leisure-industry stocks, sensitive to gasoline and other fuel supplies, showed broad gains.

The NYSE's noon index of all its listed common stocks was up .59 at 49.92.

The rain that spread across Ohio overnight is expected to end early tonight.

The rain was the first for most of the state in about a week and was associated with a low pressure area located over southeastern Missouri this morning and forecast to move across Ohio this evening and into New England Wednesday.

Temperatures were forecast to remain generally in the 40s across Ohio today under cloudy skies. Cooler weather is forecast tonight, with lows dipping to the upper 20s and lows 30s—still above normal for late February.

Sunshine is forecast Wednesday afternoon and highs will range in the 30s and 40s.

A chance of rain or snow is forecast for Ohio Thursday and Friday. Highs will reach the 40s Thursday and from the mid 30s to mid 40s Friday and Saturday. Lows will be in the 30s Thursday, but will drop to 15 to 25 degrees by Saturday.

Butz to be speaker

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz will be the guest speaker at the 41st annual meeting of Landmark Corp., here Feb. 26-27. Butz will speak Wednesday.

Panel promotes bonus measure

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Senate Ways and Means Committee today recommended for passage an educational assistance bonus for Vietnam War veterans.

The House-passed bill, sponsored by Rep. Vernal G. Riffe Jr., D-89 New Boston, would allow qualified veterans to take twice the amount of their cash bonus in educational aid.

Cash bonuses up to $500 were approved by the voters for Vietnam veterans last November.

Expert explains tape gap report

NEW YORK (AP) — An electronics expert, in a five-page report submitted to White House lawyers, says that an 18½-minute gap in a key presidential tape could have been caused accidentally, the New York Times reported today.

The Times said the report, which appears to contradict the findings of a panel of experts who examined the tape, came from Allan D. Bell Jr., president of Dektor Counter-intelligence and Security, Inc., of Springvale, Va.

Bell, the Times report said, volunteered to help Charles S. Rhyne, a lawyer for Rose Mary Woods, President Nixon's secretary.

The panel of experts was chosen by the White House and special prosecutor Leon Jaworski to study seven tapes under subpoena from the White House.

In his report, the Times said, Bell says the gap in the tape may have been caused by a defective part in Miss Woods's recorder. The panel, in reporting that the erasures were probably caused by manual operation of the keyboard controls, suggested the erasures were deliberate.

The Times article stated:

"The Bell report appears to contradict the findings of a panel of experts that were widely interpreted as indicating that the erasures on the recording were deliberate."

The Times also quotes an unnamed member of the tape panel as saying of the Bell report: "If you had the full story in your hands, you might choose to underplay the Bell report."

Bell told the Times that his findings may have served as support for a statement Monday by the President's Watergate attorney, James D. St. Clair.

St. Clair said a "technical investigation" determined that the erasures may have been caused by a defect in the tape recorder.

11th state adopts gasoline plan

By WILLIAM GILLEN
Associated Press Writer

Virginia will become the 11th state to adopt a gasoline distribution system, the nation's fourth mandatory plan, when its odd-even Oregon-style plan goes into effect at midnight Wednesday.

Meanwhile, Vermont has decided to suspend plans for a voluntary odd-even system that would have started Wednesday.

Announcement of the Virginia plan was made Monday by Gov. Mills E. Godwin.

State police in the East reported traffic generally lighter than usual at the end of the three-day holiday weekend. Officials in the West and South said lines at gasoline stations were fairly short and traffic normal or just below normal for the holiday.

Virginia joins New Jersey, Maryland and one county in Hawaii in making its plan mandatory. Under the plan, motorists with license plates ending in even numbers buy on even-numbered days, odd numbers buy on odd days.

Six other states and Washington, D.C., also have the Oregon-style plan in effect. New Hampshire starts one today on a two-week experimental basis.

The Virginia governor said he was "loathe" to issue the executive order. But he said he saw it as the only current means of coping with a fuel shortage that has seen motorists, particularly in the populous Tidewater and Northern Virginia areas, waiting for hours in order to get gasoline at the few remaining open stations.

Under the order, no motorist may purchase gasoline unless his fuel gauge shows his car's tank is less than half full.

Vermont Gov. Thomas P. Salmon, announcing the suspension of his state's planned program, said: "There is both massive misunderstanding of this plan and its purposes and strong evidence of unwillingness by a substantial number of gasoline stations to comply."

In New York, the legislature in Westchester County, a suburb of New York City, voted overwhelmingly Monday to institute a mandatory odd-even system. And officials in New York City are studying whether they should adopt a mandatory system, too. New York State has a voluntary plan.

Pennsylvania Gov. Milton J. Shapp plans to announce a change today in his state's odd-even rationing plan. It will be based on the numbers onvehicle inspection stickers rather than on license tags. An aide to the governor said the plan would go into effect Wednesday.

South Carolina Gov. John C. West plans a news conference today to announce his plans for handling the shortage. Indications are that the state will adopt a voluntary odd-even plan.

In a letter sent Monday to William E. Simon, administrator of the Federal Energy Office, Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson, D-Ill., asked for 15 million gallons of additional gasoline per month for the Chicago area.

Glenn bares financial data

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Former astronaut John Glenn, who is running for the U.S. Senate, issued a statement of his financial worth Monday saying it is so complete that every penny he has made since 1965, including $100 he was paid for being on the Johnny Carson show, is accounted for.

Glenn issued a 183-page report which listed his net worth at $767,800. He said he would forward the report to the Ohio Ethics Commission.

"There is nothing else I can report," Glenn said in a statement. "It is complete and open. To the best of my knowledge, it is the first time in the history of this state and nation that any candidate for major office has made such a complete financial disclosure."

Glenn said that Sen. Howard Metzenbaum's financial statement issued 10 days ago "is like the difference between edited summaries of the Watergate tapes and the tapes themselves."

Metzenbaum is Glenn's opponent in the race for the Democratic Senate nomination.

Glenn said the main issue in the Senate campaign "is the integrity of our government officials. Democrats are looking for someone they can look up to-someone they know as honest enough and dedicated enough to public service to get our nation moving again..."

Metzenbaum was not available for comment, but his campaign manager, James J. Schiller, said he was glad that Glenn made the statement but added,"Glenn achieved his wealth over less than 10 years by capitalizing on his service as an astronaut."

"Metzenbaum rose up from poverty through the business world over a 40-year span," Schiller said.

Glenn reported income between 1965-72 totaling $1.12 million and said he paid more than $353,000 in federal income taxes during the period. Between 1960 and 1964, when Glenn was an astronaut and in the U.S. Marine Corps., he paid taxes of $43,723 on income of $112,992, the report said.

The disclosure statement listed bank accounts totaling $51,300, stocks totaling $668,000 and $130,000 in business investments. His home was valued at $142,400. Liabilities amounted to $324,400, including $44,200 in 1973 income taxes payable and $90,900 in real estate investments.

The candidate said he owns $375,000 in Royal Crown Cola stock, holds $94,954 in the L.D. Edie Capital Fund, and has 1,000 shares of Hughes Tool Co. stock, worth $85,000.

In addition, the report says, he has $25,000 invested in Congress Gardens, a Washington, D.C., apartment complex, $43,000 in Interstate Resort Corp., and $30,000 in Quinn, Glenn and Landwirth, a partnership which owns Holiday Inn hotels in Florida.

Cox happy with press

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Former special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox says he cannot complain about the way the press treated him but worries about its coverage of Watergate.

The news media are "turning gradually to a more active role in shaping the course of events through their news columns and commentaries as well as on their editorial pages," Cox said in a speech Monday at St. Paul's School, from which he was graduated in 1930.

The selection of news items "often reflects sort of a notion that the press is the fourth branch of government and it should play a major role in government," he said.

In response to a question, Cox said President Nixon's handling of his personal taxes was "avaricious, miserable leadership and on the border line of immorality" but not an impeachable offense.

He charged the press had "overplayed" a New York Times report that he had been fired because the White House feared he would name President Nixon as an unindicted coconspirator. Both Cox and the White House denied that report when it appeared.

Greek regime cracks down

By PHILIP DOPOULOS
Associated Press Writer

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Greece's new military regime, in its third month of power, is cracking down hard on students and political opponents.

Dissidents live in fear of the nighttime knock by security and military police.

The civilian government that the generals installed after they overthrew the previous military dictator, President George Papadopoulos, appears unsure of itself.

Brig. Gen. Dimitrios Ioannides, the chief of the military police, is widely believed to be the real power behind the new president, Gen. Phaedon Gizikis. But Ioannides is never seen in public; opponents describe him as a man "who fears his own shadow and only moves by night."

People are beginning to grumble openly about the stagnant political situation, inflation reflected in a 31 per cent increase in consumer prices last year, and the price of gasoline, at $2.08 a gallon the highest in Europe.

Open opposition to the regime has been slow to surface. But a government official confirmed that an old concentration camp on the Aegean island of Yiaros has been reopened to house foes of the regime. Opposition sources claim the camp is slowly filling up, with about 120 persons presently housed in barracks that the International Red Cross once said were unfit for humans.

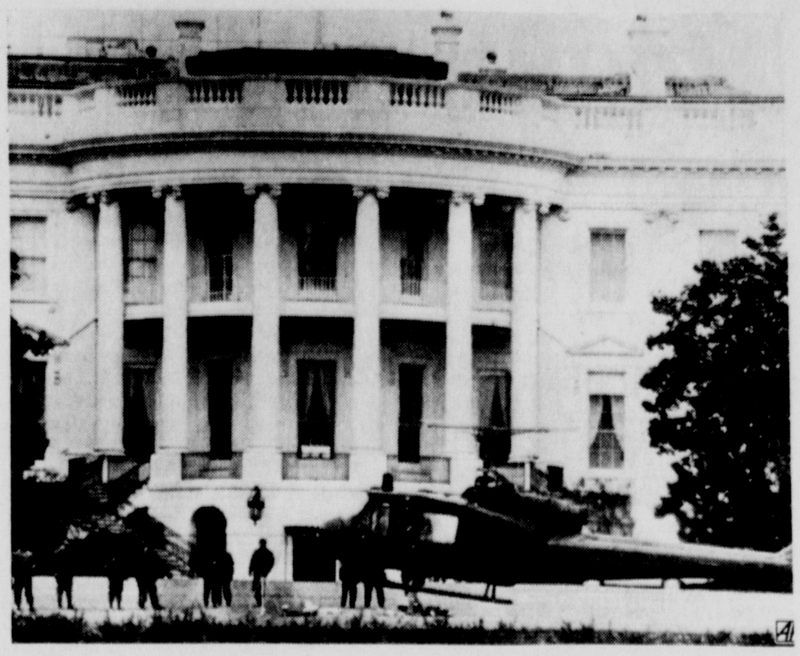

Government officials and dissidents refuse to be identified when making statements or claims. But this picture emerges:

—Scores of students have been arrested and have disappeared since antigovernment rioting by youths precipitated the end of Papadopoulos' 6½-year-old regime.

—The government has repeatedly said that only 13 persons died during the demonstrations. But students say at least 80 persons were shot down by police in the streets of Athens and buried quietly.

—Two Greek journalists are being held on Yiaros for criticizing the regime. A Greek reporter for the German magazine Der Spiegel and for the West German broadcasting system was questioned by military police last month. Relatives say he was threatened with exile to Yiaros, and he has sharply curtailed his journalistic activities.

—The military police shut down the major afternoon newspaper Vradyni Dec. 1 for alleged antigovernment reporting. Several foreign correspondents have been warned after sending abroad what the government termed "anti-Greek propaganda."

Heroic cadet's bid for job rejected

DETROIT (AP) — A police cadet who was recommended for a heroism citation after rescuing a man from a fire has been rejected for a permanent appointment to the Detroit force.

Alfonso Martinez, 21, crawled into a burning house early Saturday morning to drag a 43-year-old man through heavy smoke and intense flames to safety.

He was recommended for a bravery citation.

On Monday, police officials said Martinez didn't meet their minimum qualifications for carrying a badge, apparently because he admitted that as a teen-ager he smoked marijuana and experimented with other drugs.

Detroit Mayor Coleman Young said Martinez "should not be penalized for the rest of his life for a youthful indiscretion." But he backed off his support after learning Martinez admitted sniffing a white powder once.

A police spokesman said the department considers the use of illicit drugs as evidence of moral turpitude and grounds for automatic rejection of an application.

"No police department in the country would hire someone like that," Police Commissioner Philip Tannian said.

But later Monday, the Genesee County sheriff's office asked Martinez to submit an application for employment as a deputy there.

Martinez, a cadet since October 1972, said he told a police recruiting investigator that he smoked marijuana "a few times" as a teen-ager.

He later admitted to a department investigative board that he actually had smoked marijuana "five to 10 times" and that he once had sniffed "a white powder," not further identified.

He said he has not smoked marijuana since 1972.

Copter pilot examined

WASHINGTON (AP) — A young soldier has indicated his anger at flunking out of flight school may have prompted his erratic two-hour helicopter flight around the nation's capital ending in a hail of gunfire on the White House lawn.

Army Pfc. Robert Kenneth Preston is undergoing psychiatric examination at Walter Reed Army Medical Center in the wake of the chase early Sunday morning.

Preston, 20, was taken to the hospital Monday after civilian charges of unlawfully entering the White House grounds were dropped and he was turned over to military custody.

Asked at his court appearance what prompted the wild chase, Preston did not comment. But when reporters asked if it was because of anger at having flunked out of flight school he responded "could be."

Military officials said they were studying whether any charges would be placed against Preston for violations of military regulations.

A red rose for Solzhenitsyn

When the exiled Alexander Solzhenitsyn stepped off the plane onto West German soil he was cheered by the people gathered there, and a young woman gave him a red rose.

This symbolizes the reaction of the West, more particularly of freedom loving men and women everywhere. Solzhenitsyn is honored as a brave, persistent voice bespeaking freedom of mind and spirit and respect for the truth.

By the same token, the Soviet government which has for long vilified and harassed this man because of his protests against the regime has branded itself as an enemy of those precious things: freedom of mind and spirit, respect for truth. In driving Solzhenitsyn from his homeland the Kremlin has more than ever shown its true colors as a brutal, repressive power callous to all human values which do not serve the state.

Common speculation has it that by stripping Solzhenitsyn of his Soviet citizenship and sending him into exile the Politburo must feel it has cleverly solved a very sensitive political problem. According to this thesis the threat to East-West detente, seemingly so much desired by the Soviet leadership, has been averted by merely banning the author instead of placing him on trial as a traitor and perhaps imprisoning or even executing him.

The Politburo may indeed preceive the matter in this light, or at least feel it has made the best of a bad situation. Also, it may well be that with Solzhenitsyn free through exiled, Western governments will be less inclined than otherwise to bring any diplomatic pressure to bear in his behalf. To that extent, the Soviet leadership may be right in thinking its international position is improved by this action.

It may be, however, that the Kremlin has traded a small diplomatic gain for a massive setback in terms of world opinion. Exile is not going to generate the outrage that would have been aroused by trial and imprisonment of a Noble prize winner, true. But this leaves out an important factor: Solzhenitsyn will surely not remain silent in the West. He will surely write and publish and speak - and every word will be a further censure of Kremlin repression.

The Politburo has one ace in the hole: reprisal against Solzhenitsyn's family, friends and fellow outspoken intellectuals. If it tries that, though, worldwide protest may rise to new heights.

Possibly the Soviet government has outsmarted itself; thinking to rid itself of one gadfly by letting him escape imprisonment or execution, it may find that it has opened a Pandora's Box full of political troubles.

THESE DAYS . . . by John Chamberlain

The 'legal services' monstrosity

It has taken Howard Phillips, former director of the Office of Economic Opportunity, some 4,000 words in the Washington weekly Human Events just to outline the scope of a Legal Services Corporation and to provide a rational critique of it.

It's that complicated when the government sets out to provide lawyers for the poor. It is doubtful that the Senate really knew what it was voting for when it passed such a tortuous bill to transfer the existing legal services program to a private corporation operating under the "house rule" laws of the District of Columbia.

The members of the House of Representatives, who are about to consider the bill as I write, will probably be as confused as the senators.

I'm confused myself. Certainly I think every person has a right to a lawyer. But when a bureaucracy is set up to care for the poor, doesn't it mean that certain elements of the poor — those who seem most deserving to their guardians — will get the legal help while others go begging?

MR. PHILLIPS contends that a 15-member National Advisory Council will effectively "lock the program into permanent control by radical groups." This is prophecy, and prophets are not always right. But when Mr. Phillips says that lawyers serving "projects" rather than clients will dominate legal services, it strikes a note of warning. I pick up something from an old issue (February, 1970) of the Clearing House Review, published by the National Clearinghouse for Legal Services. Describing a Washington Lawyers Project for providing legal services for those who seek federal aid, it mentions as a "typical example" of Project activity an effort to aid "the United Farm Workers Organizing Committee in efforts to stop Defense Department purchase of table grapes."

In our pressure-group democracy, the United Farm Workers Organizing Committee certainly has all the right in the world to lobby against feeding non-union grapes to soldiers. But the "project" activity of the Washington lawyers was described, in the same issue of Clearing House Review, as offering advice to "poverty-oriented organizations. . . which seek federal assistance and are without sufficient funds or resources to benefit from other counsel."

The logic of this juxtaposition is somewhat baffling. Are we to understand that the United Farm Workers Organizing Committee, which had the sympathetic support of the AFL-CIO's George Meany, lacked money to hire its own lawyers? With a war chest that was hefty enough to throw the whole San Joaquin Valley grape country into turmoil, and with Southampton, Long Island, socialties collecting funds at radiclib parties for Cesar Chavez to push his boycott of the supermarkets, surely the United Farm Workers Organizing Committee could have taken care of itself in its representations to the Pentagon.

MR. PHILLIPS notes that "broad authority" is provided in the legal services bill to fund "public-interest" law firms of the Ralph Nader and Common Cause variety. I hadn't noticed that either Ralph Nader or Common Cause's John Gardner was having trouble in collecting money. Why can't they support their own "public-interest" law firms?

When Mr. Phillips took over in the Office of Economic Opportunity, he thought he had a mandate to clean it up, but he soon found he was butting his head against a stone wall. However, his experience has made him the best-informed critic of bureaucracy in the District of Columbia. So when he asks whether "senators really want the Black Panther-dominated 'National Committee to Combat Fascism' to gain free use of government long-distance telephones and Xerox machines," as it would have the right to do under the Nelson-Javits bill, he should be heeded.

Why can't things be made simple? Why can't there be volunteer lawyers' organizations to help the poor?

Incidentally, the inflation caused by loading everything on government has helped raise legal fees in this country to a point where even the rich can't afford lawyers. The establishment of a $100 million dollar per year corporation to help poor people like Cesar Chavez is just one more straw on the camel's back. Poor camel, he's going to need a free lawyer soon to collect damages for his ruined spine.

A WORD EDGEWISE . . . by John P. Roche

A message from Sakharov

The Soviet authorities are beginning to turn up the heat on dissenting intellectuals. Predictably, they began a campaign of personalized calumny against Aleksandr Solzhenitsyn, before his arrest and deportation, which will probably produce the accusation that, at age 7, he stole kopeks from his mother's purse.

This would be comical (like the story Sam Johnson spread that his brother Lyndon cheated at dominoes) were it not for the fact that the technique has been used over and over by the KGB as a first step on the escalator to a bullet in the skull.

Like Solzhenitsyn, Andrei Skharov has been accused of slandering the USSR and cooperating with reactionary forces in the United States to undermine detente. Characteristically, Solzhenitsyn's response to this was to nominate Academician Skharov for the Noble Peace Prize!

On Feb. 1 Sakharov took the opportunity to set forth in unmistakably precise language the essence of his position. The Social Democrats, U.S.A., awarded him the Norman Thomas Freedom Award for his courageous advocacy of an East-West detente based upon free association and mutual trust, "a detente made secure by the introduction within the Soviet Union of a measure of political democracy and intellectual freedom."

SKHAROV accepted by telephone and I believe his statement is worthy of extended quotation.

"We all welcome the negotiations that are now being held," he said, "aimed at preventing a thermonuclear world war, as well as the armaments race, and to promote negotiations aimed to increase. . . detente. But at the same time, there continue to be arrests, interrogations, and searches of dissidents, religious persecutions, harassment of honest writers, obstacles placed in the way of free emigration and discrimination against national minorities. In an irrefutable way, this shows that the external detente is tragically not accompanied by an internal and human detente."

He then continued, urging all persons concerned with human freedom to support a six-point program; First, "A campaign for free access by the representatives of the International Red Cross and World Health Organization to inspect the Soviet places of incarcerations and mental hospitals. (2) A campaign for amnesty of Soviet political prisoners. (3) A campaign to end discrimination against such national minorities as the Crimean Tartars, the Germans of the Volga area, and the Turk-Meskhs. (4) A campaign for freedom of emigration. (5) A campaign to defend Solzhenitsyn, linked with free distribution of his book in the USSR (6) A campaign to defend all the honest writers who have been harassed."

"Ideological freedom in our country," he concluded, "and the survival of great literature as such are impossible if we do not struggle to defend every honest writer. I now appeal to you with respect and hope."

By any rational standards of evaluation this hardly constitutes a "slanderous attack" upon the Soviet Union. I'm certain that Sakharov, like myself and the Social Democrats who gave him the award, would speak out with equal vigor against abuses of human rights by the government of the United States or of Greece or Chile or China. In his view — as in ours — human freedom is a value that transcends dotted lines on maps.

I, FOR EXAMPLE, have publicly denounced every conspiracy trial of alleged subversives since the Smith Act was first thrown at the Trotskyites in 1942 and, although life got a bit tumultuous at times in the early 1950s, no governmental agency has ever accused me of being "anti-American" or of "slandering my homeland." Indeed, the reason I expressed myself as I did was that I cherish the values I take to be basis to American constitutionalism.

Sakharov, then, is no more an "agent of imperialism" than I was a supporter of the Trotskyites, the Fascists, the Communists, the Chicago 7 or the Fathers Berrigan. He is merely asserting principles affirmed in the Soviet Constitution and in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, to which the USSR subscribed.

In short, he is an ideological patriot calling in prophetic fashion for the implementation of the abstract rights of Soviet citizens. Under the circumstances, nothing could be more fitting than the award of the Nobel Prize; freedom is an indispensable precondition for the peace that mankind so desperately seeks.

Canvasser enjoys work

By DEAN SCHOTT
Associated Press Writer

FOSTORIA, Ohio (AP) — Ray Coburn has laid a lot of leather on the sidewalks of this northwestern Ohio community.

The 81-year-old retired glassblower claims he has spent more than 60 years working as a political canvasser in local, state and national elections.

Coburn, a former four-term Democratic mayor and recently retired service director, has made an art of knocking on doors and persuading his neighbors to vote for the party's slate of candidates.

"I started way back with Woodrow Wilson (1912) going house to house," he said.

However, Coburn said, there is more to door-to-door campaigning than rapping your knuckles and talking politics.

"I go right to the house and rap on the front door," he said. "If they don't come, I go to the back door. If they don't answer, I even kick on the basement window. Someone might be down there doing the laundry."

That's just the beginning. "When they come to the door, you have to know enough psychology to decide whether they want a conversation or don't want a conversation. It takes a long time to learn that."

Coburn said, "Most people who come to the door are transparent. If a mother comes to the door with crying, sick baby, you can tell she doesn't want to talk politics."

"Some people can go out canvassing, and in one minute can make somebody mad."

Being a good political canvasser takes time, he said. "You can't be a machinist in 15 minutes. You can't be anything in 15 minutes. It takes patience."

More than time and experience, Coburn said, "It's personality. You got to have personality and a little dignity."

When an election rolls around, Coburn visits about 200 homes and talks with about 400 people in his home precinct of Fostoria. If a candidate or the party asks, he will canvass in other parts of town or in the county.

Canvassing in the 1970s is different than 30 years ago, he said.

"I think 30 years ago, you saw more people at home," Coburn said. "They didn't have the means of transportation they have today."

He also said the voters are young and more independent. "They're voting for people more than the party," he added.

Despite the changes, Coburn said, "I still make it a business. I'm relaxed. I like going to work for them (the candidates)."

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE – Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Nutty brother in law is hung up on sex

DEAR ABBY: I am 16, and my problem is my over-sexed brother in law. I babysit for their 2-year-old child. My sister would wring his neck if she knew how fresh he gets with me and every other female who comes within 2 feet of him. (He's even propositioned my mother-and she's 60!)

My sister and this lecher are building a new home now and he tells everybody that he and my sister and their little daughter bathe together! My sis is even seven months pregnant now, and this over-sexed dude says he is looking for a king-sized bathtub so they can all bathe together after the new baby comes. He says there is nothing wrong with nudity or sex, and anyone who says there is is evil-minded.

Tell me, Abby, is he nuts, or am I evil-minded?

SUSIE

DEAR SISSIE: There is nothing wrong with nudity or sex under the proper circumstances, but any man who'd proposition his mother-in-law IS nuts.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding your item concerning the women who are interested in obtaining false fannies: I would like to make a contribution.

BABE IN OMAHA

DEAR BABE: After me!

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow woman planning a tour with a friend. I'll be sharing a room with her which will create a problem because I snore. I know I snore loudly because those who have heard me say it's most annoying.

I'm told I sleep with my mouth open, so that must be the reason. My friend doesn't know about my snoring, and I hesitate to tell her before attempting to remedy it. Any suggestions?

SNORING PROBLEM

DEAR PROBLEM: First see a nose and throat doctor. Often a minor surgical correction will solve the snoring problem. Some have solved the open-mouth problem by applying adhesive tape over the mouth or using a chin strap. If all else fails, buy your roommate some ear plugs.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — By early April, the board of the Public Broadcasting Service expects to vote on a proposal to radically alter the way the nation's 240 public TV stations get national programs.

The proposal, made 1½ years ago by PBS president Hartford N. Gunn Jr., would partly abolish PBS' current practice of feeding national programs free to its stations.

It's already been approved in principle by the board and the stations, Gunn says, and will be explained in detail to station officials in a series of meetings next month prior to the final vote.

Essentially, the proposal would make stations pay a percentage of the cost of some, but not all, the national shows they'd air.

Under the plan the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, which administers federal funds for public broadcasting, would finance nationally-broadcast programs for no more than two years.

Current programs beyond that limit, such as "Sesame Street" or "Firing Line," would be directly affected by the proposal.

If stations wanted to continue those and new programs beyond CPB's two-year limit, they'd have to pay for them with their own money, be it from federal, foundation, local or private sources.

The more stations there are willing to pay for any particular show, the lower the cost per station.

Henry Loomis, CPB president, says there are two basic reasons for the proposed system. One is to encourage greater programming initiative and local financial support in local public broadcasting.

The other is financial. The Ford Foundation, public TV's biggest friend in the private sector, has put about $250 million into public TV since 1951, but plans to phase out its support in four or five years.

Although proposals are a-foot to authorize a five-year plan of federal spending for public broadcasting, CPB still won't have enough in the till to continue paying for both existing programs and the development of new ones.

Gilligan raps energy agency

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Ohio has not been hit hard by an energy shortage because its industries use coal, not oil but the state needs better communication with Washington, Gov. John Gilligan said Monday.

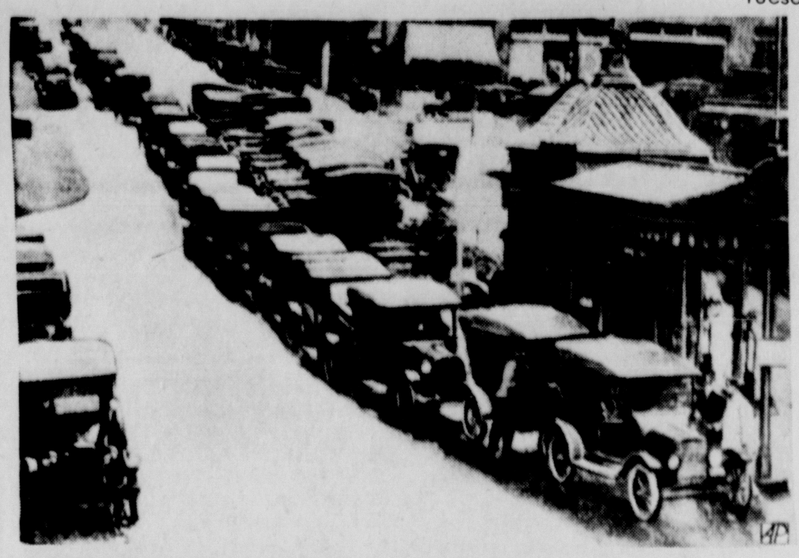

Speaking to a service club, Gilligan said "Nobody has ever talked to us...about our needs.

"The governors have been struggling for a year and a half to find out what the government's energy allocation program is," Gilligan said.

Reagan is offered role as reporter

OROVILLE, Calif. (AP) — Gov. Ronald Reagan, a former movie and television actor, has been offered a role as a reporter in a movie being filmed in this Northern California town.

Producers William Alexander and Bill Shiffrin said they didn't expect Reagan to accept but said Monday that Reagan could have the job if he wanted it.

Heart, blood diseases mean production loss

Business and industry in the U.S. will lose about 52 million man-days of production in 1974 as a result of heart and blood vessel diseases, according to Bill Hendren and Jim Ward, co-chairmen of the Fayette County Heart Fund solicitation committee.

The lost wages and medical expenses from heart disease will cost Americans an estimated $19.7 billion.

"The problem is especially significant for men between 45 and 64," Hendren and Ward added. "This age group comprises industry's most valuable executives and employes. The loss of key personnel and critical executive skills, plus the cost of training replacement personnel, are factors no businessmen can afford to overlook," they said.

During February, American Heart Month, the Fayette County Heart Branch will join in the nationwide Heart Fund campaign to reduece premature death and disability from heart and blood vessel diseases. Area businesses will be asked to cooperate by distributing heart-saving information to personnel and contributing to the research, education and community programs of the Fayette County Heart Branch.

Heard Sunday will be held in Fayette County this weekend.

State banks use loopholes on interest

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio banks have found loopholes in the state law setting an 8 per cent ceiling on interest rates, according to Ohio Banking Supt. Steve Kohn.

Kohn said the century-old limitation is a barrier to profits by some banks and, as a result, some are taking advantage of loopholes in usury laws to widen their profit margin.

The State Commerce Department is not yet sure whether these loopholes are legal.

Kohn said one area that is being watched closely is the "add on" method of computing interest on real estate loans. The practice, which is used in some other states, allows exorbitant finance charges on mortgages and land sales.

"We're aware of the practice and we're trying to decide whether it's legitimate or not," Kohn said.

Assistant bank examiner Harold Mullen says some banks have raised their simple interest rate beyond the 8 per cent level in order to make a profit. Mullen said the division is waiting for a clarification of the statute before pressing the issue.

Under federal law, national banks are not bound by the state usury limit. They are allowed to set their interest rates according to those set by savings and loan companies in the states.

Another federal law allows national banks to charge a full 1 per cent over the going discount rate of 7.5 per cent.

State banks complain the statute gives national banks an unfair advantage. Kohn points out that consumers also suffer under the restriction.

"People are being denied mortgage loans at state banks simply because the banks cannot make a profit at 8 per cent," Kohn said.

Kohn said the growing complexity of banking regulations and current economic pressures have caused widespread bending, if not breaking, of state lending laws.

Dancer warned to leave Russia

MOSCOW (AP) — Ballet dancer Valery Panov has been warned to leave the Soviet Union immediately or face "tough administrative measures," Mrs. Galina Panov said.

But the former star character dancer with Leningrad's Kirov Ballet has repeated his refusal to abandon her, Panov's wife added Monday.

"They are trying to split us up," she said by telephone from Leningrad. "But we love each other."

The Soviet officials did not spell out what kind of measures they had in mind, she said.

Panov, a Jew, was fired from the Kirov troupe nearly two years ago when he informed the directors he wanted to emigrate. He has been deprived of work and the opportunity to dance since his dismissal.

Harsha polls district on major issues

More than 150,000 survey forms were mailed from Harsha's Washington office late last week.

The Ohio lawmaker is seeking constituent opinions on nine major federal issues facing Congress this year. All questions center on domestic issues, and four deal specifically with the energy crisis: gasoline rationing, deregulation of natural gas, relaxation of auto emission standards and pollution controls, and regulation of the oil industry as a public utility.

Five others seek constituent views on whether the President should remain in office, resign or be impeached; public campaign financing; abortion; wage-price controls and no-fault insurance.

"Knowing how crucial many of these matters are to the nation, I am making a special effort to know exactly how the residents of the Sixth District stand on them," Harsha said. "I realize it may be diffucult to answer some of these questions with a simple 'yes' or 'no' as I have requested; however, that is the same decision I must make when voting on these issues. The results of this questionnaire, then, will be extremely important in helping me to make the best choice on behalf of the Sixth District when these matters are considered in the House.

"I have always been pleased with the tremendous response to past questionnaires and urge all the residents of the Sixth District to continue to give me the benefit of their good judgment," Harsha concluded.

Gander was selected as a transatlantic air base in 1935 by the British Air Ministry.

Your Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 20

ARIES
(March 21 to April 20)

In work matters, unorthodox methods will pay off and, rather surprisingly, others will see things your way.

TAURUS
(April 21 to May 21)

You MUST give some thought to the future now. Be sure to let superiors hear, in one way or another, about the extra efforts you are making.

GEMINI
(May 22 to June 21)

Extra care needed in financial matters, but do your own thinking about it. Advice from others could lead you off on false trails.

CANCER
(June 22 to July 23)

In business conferences, consider your working. Your explanation of certain matters could give others false impressions.

LEO
(July 24 to Aug. 23)

An original idea could be developed, eventually turned to profit. Along these lines, it's a good period for pushing your luck.

VIRGO
(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

Even if you are hesitating, make that business call you have in mind. Some useful information to be gleaned.

LIBRA
(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

A productive day for those engaged in highly creative activities. Some of your ideas may need revision before they become practical, however.

SCORPIO
(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

A good period for starting or developing new business associations, but take the initiative before noon. Not much cooperation later.

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

Jupiter somewhat adverse. Your judgment clouded by a personal matter. Do not make any important decisions for 48 hours.

CAPRICORN
(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

A business associate may want you to join him in an investment. Better not! This will not be a good day for venturing.

AQUARIUS
(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

Uranus influences highly inspirational. Unusual ideas could spark a brand new approach in career matters.

PISCES
(Feb. 20 to March 20)

Certain family members may seem to be rather demanding, expecting too much from you. Be as cooperative as you can. They may be under some unknown stress.

YOU BORN TODAY, as an Aquarius-Pisces cuspal (one born at the change of Signs) are a highly interesting individual, combining as you do, so many of the traits of each. You have the versatility, lively imagination and volatile personality of the Aquarian, combined with the sensitive, intuitive, deep-thinking nature of the Piscean. You are a true humanitarian and, developed on the highest plane, can make a great contribution, in one way or another, to the world at large. Excellent at research, you could succeed as a scientist, educator, writer or journalist. The outgoing side of your nature, bestowed by Aquarius, makes you an outstanding candidate for success in the entertainment field.

How important are your baby's feet?

The growth and development of your child's feet is extremely important to you as parents. It's extremely important to us, too! That's why we suggest the "Progressive Fit" with Stride Rite shoes. Stride Rite shoes provide the perfect combination of support and flexibility so necessary for the correct development of a young child's foot. There are 3 stages; the "Firstie", an extremely flexible shoe, the "Intermediate" walker with firmer sole and counter, and the "Advanced" walker that gives sturdy support to young toddler feet.

Mrs. Jim Coldiron crowned Sorority 'Sweetheart Queen'

The 1974 annual Sweetheart Dance sponsored by Zeta Upsilon chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority was held in the American Legion Hall from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Saturday. Herky Coe and The Wellingtons provided the music for dancing. Guests were greeted by Mrs. Jud Thompson and Mrs. Fred Pitzer.

The dance theme this year was "Love, Love, Love." As guests entered the danc e floor, they found themselves surrounded by red and pink hearts and cupids.

The ceiling was decorated with pink streamers and centered by a mobile of hearts. A wishing well and heart tree decorated one corner of the room. Candles in heart centerpieces were on the table. On the walls were large hearts containing the names of the Queen's Court.

The highlight of the evening came at 10 p.m. when Mrs. Robert Clary, mistress of ceremonies, welcomed the guests and introduced the 1974 Sweetheart Queen and her court.

Mrs. Jim Coldiron was crowned as the new Sweetheart Queen by last year's queen, Mrs. Fred Pitzer. Attendants were Mrs. Roger Pemberton and Mrs. Dale Wilson. New members Mrs. Dale Lowe and Mrs. Roger Snyder carried the arm bouquets of yellow roses and Mrs. Bill Wood the queen's pin. Mr. and Mrs. Coldiron led the dance.

Mrs. Jim Dunn was dance chairman. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Snyder, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. AAUW holds international dinner-meet

The American Association of University Women held the annual international potluck dinner - meeting in the home of Mrs. Glenn Merritt, 810 Merritt Way.

Later, foreign students Sheila Gordon from the Union of South Africa and presently attending Miami Trace High School, and Fernando Martin of Spain, presently attending Washington Senior High School, presented very interesting discussions of their native countries.

During the business meeting, various reports were heard. A discussion regarding sponsoring a community Art Exhibit this spring was held. The March meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. Donald Foster with Mrs. Willard Rutledge assisting. Mrs. Charles Beaumont of Portsmouth, State Division chairwomen of Mental Health, will be guest speaker.

Members present were Mrs. W.O. Fullerton, Mrs. Walter Parsley, Mrs. Merritt, Mrs. Donald Moore, Mrs. E.F. Broberg, Mrs. Rutledge, Mrs. Robert Decker, Mrs. John Frederick and Mrs. Donald Ginn. Weight Watchers plan 'free' meetings

"Weight Watchers" will conduct a series of free open meetings the week of Monday, February 25 through Saturday, March 2.

Overweight ladies, teens and man may visit all area locations that week. Although registration is possible during Open House Week (persons with at least 10 pounds to lose may join a "Weight Watchers" class at any time), guests at Open House are welcome to "just visit".

WEIGHT WATCHERS INTERNATIONAL is in its 11th year of helping the overweight. This special Open House is designed to permit prospective members to gain insight into the highly successful "Weight Watchers" group approach to permanent weight control. Area locations free to visitors from February 25 through March 2 include: Washington Court House, St. Andrew's Episcopal Church, Route 41, South, Tuesday 7:30 p.m., Sabina: Sabina Methodist Church, Elm St., Monday 7:30 p.m.; Greenfield: First Methodist Church, South St., Wednesday 7:30 p.m. For further imformation call Toll-Free 800-582-7026.

"Weight Watchers" staff will demonstrate classroom techniques to visitors and will introduce successful members—some of whom have lost in excess of 100 pounds each. Members will model the "before" clothes worn prior to their weight loss. New recipes designed for the weight-conscious will be distributed free.

The successful "Weight Watchers" Eating Program will be discussed. Based upon the latest research in nutrition, it permits controlled quantities of cereal, mayonnaise, margarine, banana, potato, rice—and other foods normally thought to be "taboos" for those watching their weight. Of interest to guests will be discussion of the newest additions to the program: pork, ham, fruits canned in their own juices, dried beans, soybeans, etc.

Emphasis will be placed on the ability to eat properly on a tight budget. Nutritional meat substitutes are one device for reducing grocery bills as well as weight. Budget-watching recipes will be distributed also.

PERSONALS

Mr. and Mrs. B.E. Kelley were in Columbus Sunday where they attended the annual meeting of the State Natural Food Association, of which Mr. Kelley is parlimentarian. He was re-elected state director for three years after having served as a state director of the organization for 16 years. Mrs. Kelley upon request of the state president, offered prayer for the opening the meeting.

Cambodian Reds driven from school

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — The Cambodian command said today its troops had driven Khmer Rouge insurgents from the Kompong Kantuot secondary school 13 miles southwest of Phnom Penh after a week of fighting.

Military sources reported more than 120 rebels and 38 government soldiers were killed and 68 government men were wounded.

The command said its troops occupied the school briefly, then pulled back under heavy attack so air force planes could bomb insurgent positions.

The Khmer Rouge occupied the high school a month ago when they began to move up toward Phnom Penh from the south.

Meanwhile, government troops were reported on three sides of an insurgent force nine miles northwest of Phnom Penh, and a large government unit was moving down from the north in an attempt to cut the rebels' escape route.

The Khmer Rouge ambushed a 10-vessel convoy headed for Phnom Penh on the Mekong River Monday and blew up an ammunition barge, wounding the Filipino barge captain and four Korean sailors. Earlier the Phnom Penh port authority said the captain had been killed, but Philippine Embassy officials said he was only slightly wounded.

Nursing School test date set

The testing date for entrants to the School of Practical Nursing at Memorial Hospital will be Feb. 27, for the September class. Only one test will be given. Anyone interested in this class may contact Mrs. Roy Coe Jr. before Feb. 27.

FIREMEN SET FIRE! — But they put it out after the house burned to the ground. This was a part of the Fire Service Training course which Lt. Dave Seaman of the Washington C.H. department is conducting for the Wayne Toiwnship Fire Department.

Training has practical aspect

Three Washington C.H. firemen had an opportunity to SET a fire for a change!

The house they burned down played a part in the Trade and Industrial "Fire Service Training' course which Lt. Dave Seaman from the Washington C.H. department is conducting for the benefit of the Wayne Township Fire Department at Good Hope. The abandoned house was in the Good Hope area.

Seaman already had conducted seven weeks of classroom instruction before the practical testing for the 12 men involved.

Stress was put on: working together, use of the self-contained mask in a smoke filled house, use of larger fire hose, rescue procedures, extinguishing small, difficult to reach, fires and ventilation, which means, knocking a hole in the roof to clear the lower part of the burning house of smoke.

Lt. Seaman was assisted by Firemen Jim Sever and E.J. Helt. Lt. Seaman commented that the men of the Wayne Township Fire Department did a fine job.

This Saturday Lt. Seaman will be assisted by Lt. John Rockhold and Fireman Jim Sever in conducting another practical test for the Concord-Green Fire Department.

City gains $94,402 from court revenues

Figures released by Municipal Court Clerk Ruth Pearce show that the court added $94,402.08 to the city's treasury during 1973, plus another $21,481.07 to the county treasury.

Other disbursements included $2,717.65 to the treasury of the State of Ohio, $2,855.70 to surrounding villages, $1,835 to the state divisions of liquor and narcotics, and $4,000 to the Fayette County Law Library.

Total 1973 collections by the Municipal Court were $150,591.62. This included $49,912.71 in Highway Patrol fines, $44,656 in city case fines, $27,997.03 in court costs, $19,979.80 from state cases, $2,855.70 from cases for surrounding villages, and $1,835 from narcotics and liquor violations.

A total of 4,212 criminal cases were disposed of in Municipal Court during 1973, resulting in the collection of $122,183.59 in fines and $28,408.03 in court costs. In addition, the court settled 187 civil disputes involving $4,834.45.

The 4,212 criminal cases represented a 23 per cent increase over the number of cases disposed of during 1972.

Prayer breakfast series continues

Seventy-two teens and teachers attending the Teen Prayer Breakfast at the South Side Church of Christ were led in a spiritual examination by the Rev. Charles J. Richmond at the close of the meditation time. In spiritual grammar of the heavenly school he said, "First Person is He (Jesus), second person you, third person, I; and the way to spell joy is Jesus first, others second, and yourself last.

"Sherry Hunter, a sophomore at WSHS, led the singing, and Cindy Van Meter, a junior at WSHS, played the piano. Tom Everhart, junior at MTHS, offered prayer.

Michelle Davis, sophomore at WSHS, gave the student devotional on "Three Approaches to Love." She said there is the "If Approach, the Because Approach, and the Anyhow Approach." The next prayer breakfast will be next Tuesday at 6:45 a.m.

Julie back with family

WASHINGTON (AP) — With her entire family escorting her, Julie Nixon Eisenhower has been moved from Indiana University Hospital to a suite at the White House.

President Nixon flew from a public appearance in Huntsville, Ala., to give his ailing daughter a lift from Indianapolis to the capital by presidential motorcade, plane and helicopter on Monday.

Mrs. Eisenhower, who underwent surgery for a bleeding ovarian cyst at Indianapolis last Thursday, went right to bed in a second-floor suite, with doctors and a nurse from the White House medical dispensary on call if needed.

During the hour's flight to Washington, Mrs. Eisenhower rested in a bedroom of the presidential jet plane, visiting with members of her family.

'Tecumseh' auditions scheduled Saturday

CHILLICOTHE — Open auditions for the 1974 season of the outdoor drama "Tecumseh!" will be held Saturday in the Mount Logan room of the Holiday Inn on Business Route 23 north of Chillicothe.

Beginning at 8 a.m., the audition will run until 5 p.m. and will be continued on Sunday if necessary to accommodate the expected turnout.

Acting positions are available for 70 men and 20 women at $45 to $125 per week. Persons auditioning should memorize a one minute selection from a contemporary play and be prepared to demonstrate coordination and ability in physical movement.

"Tecumseh!" rehearsals will begin June 1, and the drama will run from June 22 through Aug. 31.

"Tecumseh!" auditions will also be held in Cincinnati on Feb. 28 and March 1 at the regional Southeastern Theatre Conference auditions, in Chapel Hill, N. C., on March 23 at The Institute of Outdoor Drama auditions, and in New York City in April for professional members of Actors' Equity.

Latin American unity looms behind meeting

MEXICO CITY, Mexico (AP) — A sense of unity and purpose appears to be emerging among the 24 Latin American and Caribbean foreign ministers preparing to meet this week with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

"Although we have an eight-point program to discuss, there is one item not on the agenda which I know is in the minds of us all: Latin-American solidarity," Foreign Minister Emilio O. Rabasa of Mexico told his colleagues after being elected president of the conference Monday.

"Our dialogue with Kissinger will be on an equal footing of absolute mutual respect and understanding. We seek coordination and not subordination."

Kissinger said in a message to the conference on Monday that "there may be differences between us on some points" when they meet Thursday, Friday and Saturday. But "we in the Americas have a singular opportunity to demonstrate how countries can constructively cooperate for mutual benefit despite their differences."

A newsman asked Foreign Minister Victor Gomez of the Dominican Republic what he hoped would come from the conference.

"That the United States will now treat us as brothers and not sons," he replied. "We want less paternalism and more comprehension."

The eight-point agenda the ministers have prepared includes such touchy topics as the activities of big U.S. corporations abroad and Washington's economic reprisals for nationalization of U.S. investments.

Urge engineers to fight shortage

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Vice President Gerald R. Ford has urged American engineers to use their ingenuity to solve the energy shortage.

Ford told a meeting of Chattanooga-area engineers that there is no shortage of American engineering talent, only a shortage of time.

"Fortunately, in this crisis as in similar situations in the past, ingenuity can be a substitute for time," Ford said Monday night.

Among the challenges Ford assigned to the engineers were finding ways to stop waste of energy.

Money Does Matter . . .
By David C. Six

FAITH AND CONFIDENCE — A MUST IN THE WORLD OF MONEY!

Modern day banking — in spite of the trend to mechanization and computerization — is, if successful, thoroughly dependent on mutual understanding and faith.

The successful banker, and everyone who works with him in his organization, knows this — knows that each customer is an "individual" and must be recognized as such.

When so much of the rest of our lives seems to get more and more impersonalized, the handling of our money matters on a personal, confidential basis gets ever more important.

Modern day successful bankers welcome the opportunity to counsel with you and to offer the advice and guidance in money matters so important to better living.

Best wishes to "Whippie" and his Master, Fred St. Clair, on becoming a champion.

Our congratulations to Roger Allen for taking part in the National Advisory Council on Vocational Education.

We regret Bob Mayer has a broken ankle. However, he has learned to use our Bank-By-Mail Service.

Congratulations to Diane Sagar, Connie Stayrook, and The Washington and Miami Trace Student Bodies for a successful Queen of Hearts Campaign.

There is that which is more important than our money at The First National Bank of Washington Court House — more valued than all of the carefully planned conveniences and our complete service.

Most valued is the personal "individual" confidential relationships we are privileged to have with our customers — their faith and confidence with us!

Miscellaneous jobs on road, street agenda

Several miscellaneous tasks have been scheduled by city street, county road and state highway crews this week.

Bill Duncan, general foreman of the city street department, said his workers will clear brush from alleys throughout Washington C.H. in addition to spreading stone and repairing holes in those alleys.

Duncan said his crews will also be cleaning catch basins and working on other miscellaneous jobs.

Workers from the Ohio Department of Transportation garage in Fayette County will be sealing cracks on Ohio 753 and possibly on Ohio 734, west of Jeffersonville, according to superintendent Gene Fitzpatric.

The state highway crews will be repairing and replacing guardrail on I-71 in addition to operating trash crews, patching in various locations throughout Fayette County and spot berming.

Fitzpatric said three workers are still manning an electricade at the I-71-U.S. 35 interchange area where a crane collided with an overpass. He said beams have been installed and the construction workers are now welding.

County road workmen will be working on a bridge on the Davids Road in Jasper Township and completing the Hartman ditch project on Waterloo Road, according to Charles P. Wagner, Fayette County engineer.

Wagner said the crews will also be working on a drainage project on Waterloo Road in addition to cutting trees in various locations throughout the county and building a fence along Robinson Road.

Shrine Club to entertain Temple Divan

The Washington Shrine Club will entertain the illustrious potentate of Aladdin Temple and members of the Temple's official family at a Ladies Night Party Feb. 22 in the Mahan Building on the Fairground.

Noble Robert W. McArthur, club president, said the party is the outstanding social event of the club year, and that about 180 persons will attend.

Charles A. Dinwiddie, 1974 potentate of Columbus-based Aladdin Temple and leader of more than 14,500 Nobles of the Mystic Shrine in central-southeastern Ohio, plus other Temple representatives, will be honored guests at the dinner-dance.

Aladdin is one of 172 Temples in the Ancient Arabic Order, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. It has 40 Shrine clubs and 14 special units in its jurisdiction and supports the 19 crippled children's hospitals and three burns institutes.

Crippled and badly burned children are accepted regardless of race, color or creed if their parents cannot afford hospital treatment. The entire cost of treating every young patient is borne by the Shrine.

Aladdin Temple and its Shrine clubs send seriously disabled youngsters to the Hospital for Crippled Children at Lexington, Ky., or the Burns Institute at Cincinnati.

McArthur said Dinwiddie's Divan is composed of the following elected officers: Donald R. Waters, chief rabban; Ralph C. Linscott, assistant rabban; Charles A. Weber, high priest and prophet; Bruce Jenkins, Oriental guide; James J. Harbage, treasurer, and Richard E. Goudy, recorder.

Appointed members of the 1974 Divan are Robert E. Hill, first ceremonial master; Robert O. Snyder, second ceremonial master; Robert T. Southwick, marshal; Ralph B. Hornberger, Jr., captain of the guard; Thurman W. Garrett, outer guard, and Edwin S. Naus, chaplain.

Members of the Washington Shrine Club are requested to return their unused tickets for the Aladdin Shrine Circus to McArthur or to Dana Hyer, the circus chairman. The tickets will be used to take under-privile ged children to the Shrine Circus.

City superintendent gets new 3-year contract

EDWIN M. NESTOR

The Washington C.H. City Board of Education Monday night unanimously agreed to re-employ superintendent Edwin M. Nestor on a new three-year contract.

Board members, following an agenda of miscellaneous matters, recessed for less than 10 minutes to discuss re-employing the city superintendent.

Nestor, 1730 Green Valley Rd., was offered the three-year contract at a salary of $20,500 per year. Nestor, former principal at Washington Senior High School, replaced Marshall D. Boggs as city superintendent Aug. 1, 1972. The new three-year contract will become effective Aug. 1.

The board also heard a report from Hank Shaffer, director of the new community education program in Washington C.H.

Shaffer told board members that Washington C.H. City Council is expected to provide $3,000 for the operation of the summer recreation program here. The summer recreation program, which now becomes a part of the community education concept, will open June 1 and continue through Aug. 31 at Eyman Park, Shaffer said. The school board will enter into a formal contract with the city regarding the summer recreation program at a later date. The budget for the summer program was also discussed.

ALONG the same lines, the board adopted a resolution of acceptance for funds contributed for the community education program. Nestor said that, although the donations came from anonymous sources, it would appear a resolution would be necessary for the $6,000 forwarded from the Washington Savings Bank for the program.

The board approved an addendum to the city school's personal leave policy for teachers. In compliance with an Ohio Attorney General's opinion, Nestor recommended that a reason be required on future written requests for personal leave. The item was tabled for further study at the last board meeting.

The policy requires that personal leave be granted for family, religious or moral obligations, personal business, special events or occasions which occur once a year and special education or professional meetings other than those provided by the board under the professional leave policy.

Nestor reported to the board on two pieces of legislation regarding education that are currently being considered in the Ohio House of Representatives. He said one is House Bill No. 1060 which pertains to unemployment compensation for 9 and 10-month employes such as teachers. The other is House Bill No. 961 which would make instruction on venereal disease mandatory in public schools. The legislation would require the subject in health classes for grades 7-12.

IN OTHER MATTERS:

The board approved the purchase of video tape equipment. The cost of the recorder, camera and monitor is $1,700 and one-third of the cost is supplied by federal funds;

Authorized the rental of school facilities, with a nominal fee for lighting, to Mrs. Beulah Hill, area home economist, the junior high auditorium Friday, April 26, for the annual 4-H Style Review. The activity is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. and is an educational project with no admission charge; to Richard Kimmet to conduct a Board of Elections seminar for poll workers before the May primary election in the junior high cafeteria April 22-23 from 8 until 10 p.m.; to Jack Sommers to use the junior high auditorium and five classrooms for a 4-H officers and advisers conference from 7 until 9 p.m. March 19, and to the Fayette Bible Church to use the junior high gym from 7 until 10 p.m. Feb. 22 for basketball games:

Agreed that no official action is needed on a proposal offered by the City Teachers Association to become affiliated with the credit union at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base;

Reviewed a proposed calendar for the 1974-75 school year. The proposed calendar, which includes the required 180 days of student instruction and 185 contract, has school opening on Sept. 3 and closing June 4;

Discussed a mini workshop program held at Washington Senior High School. The activity, arranged by Mrs. Karen French, Chris Henkle, David Mustine, Jeff Willis and David Bryan, was conducted Feb. 14;

GRANTED a request to Mrs. Linda Edwards, home economics teacher at WSHS, to attend a consumer education conference in Columbus March 15;

Approved reimbursement to Gary Shaffer for courses he took at Xavier University, Cincinnati;

Heard a report concerning the Feb. 14 meeting of the Eastside PTO in which an expenditure from the organization's treasury of more than $2,600 was approved. The money will supply designated items of school equipment including audio-visual and playground equipment;

Granted tentative approval to the Washington C.H. Jaycees for sponsoring the Lewis Brothers circus June 22 on the high school grounds;

Heard a report from Nestor in which he said advertising is proceeding for a new 66-passenger school bus with an automatic transmission. He said the automatic transmission will cost $748 and that the state will provide $700 of the cost;

Learned that a 2,500-pound ship's anchor has arrived at the senior high school along with 90 feet of anchor chain; and

Approved the monthly financial report, prepared by Mrs. Thelma Elliott.

WCH board eyes technical school

Members of the Washington C.H. City Board of Education Monday night discussed plans toward establishing a technical college at Laurel Oaks Joint Vocational School in Wilmington following action by the Ohio Board of Regents last week.

The Ohio Board of Regents has adopted a resolution to begin preliminary planning for a general and technical college to serve Fayette, Clinton, Highland, Brown and Adams counties.

Meeting on the University of Cincinnati campus Friday, the board called upon the University of Cincinnati, Wilmington College, proponents of a technical college at the former Clinton County Air Force Base near Wilmington and interested residents to study the feasibility of a new institution to serve the five-county area.

The Ohio Board of Regents also mentioned the new University of Cincinnati Tri-County Academic Center being constructed at Macon in southern Brown County as a possible site in addition to the Laurel Oaks Career Development campus at Wilmington.

Dr. James A. Norton, board chancellor, said an original suggestion that the University of Cincinnati's Raymond Walters and Clermont County branches be part of a new technical school district has been dropped.

Attending the meeting from Fayette County Friday at the University of Cincinnati were Kenneth Payton, president of the Fayette County Board of Education; Robert Highfield, a member of the City Board of Education; Edwin M. Nestor, superintendent of Washington C.H. city schools; Guy M. Foster, superintendent of the Miami Trace School District, and Jim Dunn, executive vice president of the Washington C.H. Area Chamber of Commerce.

Fred L. Domenico, a member of the City Board of Education who serves on the Great Oaks Joint Vocational School Board, explained to borad members Monday night that there has been quite a political struggle during the past year in regard to launching plans for establishing the proposed technical college, which would provide a 13th and 14th year of education for students in the five-county area.

"It's a step in the right direction," Domenico said. He also mentioned that the proposed technical college could quite possibly develop into a branch college after it has been established.

Kiwanians consider projects

The monthly board of directors meeting was held by the Washington C.H. Kiwanis Club Monday night following dinner in the Lafayette Inn.

President George Gibbs said routine reports were heard and approved, and all bills were paid.

Guy M. Foster reported to Kiwanians that under the club's Major Emphasis program, which is designed to help the county's elderly, the first consignment of library books will be delivered to one of the Washington C.H. area nursing homes Wednesday. Mrs. Kris Amsbary, librarian at the Carnegie Public Library, is coordinating the program for Kiwanians.

Vocational guidance chairman Mike Campbell reported on a proposal offered by the Future Farmers of America chapter at Miami Trace High School to participate in a vocational project with the Kiwanis Club.

Members are to consider what project would be the most worthwhile for the community.

Campbell also reported on the upcoming Science Fair at Miami Trace, and club members agreed to donate $15 for the project as well as furnish judges.

In closing, President Gibbs announced three ladies nights to be held March 4, March 25 and April 1. Four members of the London Kiwanis Club attended Monday night's meeting.

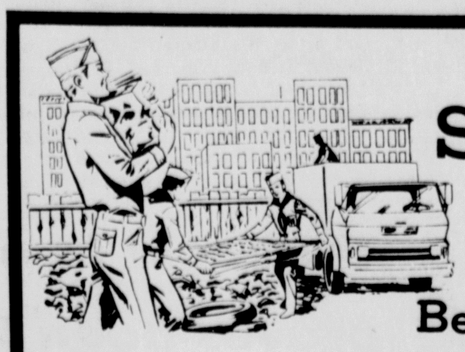

Mindszenty plans visit to America

VIENNA (AP) — Joszef Cardinal Mindszenty plans to visit the United States later this year.

The 82-year-old cardinal was relieved two weeks ago by Pope Paul VI as archbishop of Estergom and primate of Hungary.

The cardinal's visit was planned "a long time ago" and prior to the Pope's decision, an aide to the cardinal said Monday.

Monsignor Tibor Mesaros said the visit was "to give courage and confidence" to the many Americans of Hungarian origin.

They're all "right on" with:

• ECONOMY!
Did you know that a Dodge Dart Sport can go farther on a gallon of gas than a Nova?

Gas mileage figures based on October 1973 Popular Science magazine. Tests performed by Popular Science for its report were conducted on '73 vehicles with figures adjusted by Popular Science for 1974 model changes and the results of E.P.A. tests.

• INCREASING TRADE-IN VALUE.
Just check around, wherever used Dodge Darts are sold. You'll see how our little cars hold their value.

• ROOM FOR 5 OR 6.
Our Swinger hardtops and Dart sedans have room for six. There's room for five in our Dart Sport coupe. (Yet, Dart Sport has more total hip-room than Maverick, more trunk space than three Pintos!)

• ELECTRONIC IGNITION.
This advanced system is standard on every 1974 Dodge Dart. It eliminates points and condenser (that can wear out or get wet). In addition, factory-recommended spark plug maintenance is up to 18,000 miles under normal driving conditions. (Another nice saving for you when you choose a new Dart.)

• SMALL-CAR MANEUVERABILITY.
If you've been driving a big car for years—you may be pleasantly surprised to find how many "more" parking spaces there are for a Dodge Dart at parking lots.

School choirs entertain at Junior High

Choirs from Washington Senior High School and three city elementary schools staged an impressive concert Saturday night at the Washington Junior High School auditorium.

The 50-voice Washington Senior High School choir, under the direction of Charles L. Shaffer, was featured during the first portion of the program before a crowd which nearly filled the lower floor of the auditorium.

The elementary school choir, comprised of 45 students from Belle-Aire, Cherry Hill and Sunnyside schools and directed by Mrs. Gene Hughes, presented seven numbers including two melodies before the choirs combined for the program finale.

Six numbers were presented by the WSHS choir at the beginning of the program. The choir opened with "Let There Be Peace on Earth" and closed with the popular "Superstar."

Numbers presented by the elementary choir were "I Feel A Song Coming On," "Side by Side," and "Singing in the Rain," and an arrangement of the "Caisson Song" and the "Marine Corps Hymn." Mrs. Hughes said all seven numbers performed by the elementary school choir were sung in harmony parts.

Latonda Bailey, a sixth grader at Belle-Aire Elementary School, sang two numbers before the combined performance of both choirs. Latonda, who had been ill with the flu all week before the performance, was quite a hit in the 1972 Christmas concert, and Mrs. Hughes had received several requests for the youngster to perform again.

The combined choirs performed two numbers before ending with "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," arranged by Wilhousky. The choirs were accompanied by two pianists, the pipe organ and a drummer for the closing number.

The pianists were Mrs. Ralph Yerian and Mrs. Sidney Terhune and the organist was Mrs. John Case. Scott Lanum, a sophomore at WSHS, played the drums.

Diane Sagar, a WSHS senior, accompanied the high school choir. Sound effects were provided by Mike Hughes.

Money raised from the 50-cent donation asked at the door will go into both choir funds. Mrs. Hughes said she hopes to purchase robes for the elementary choir from the fund.

Ohio Veterinary Association sets annual meeting

The 90th annual meeting of the Ohio Veterinary Medical Association is expected to attract more than 1,500 veterinarians when it opens Saturday at the Sheraton-Columbus Motor Hotel.

Dr. William E. Covert, health commissioner of Fayette, Pike and Ross counties, will be one of several Ohio veterinarians taking part in the program.

Veterinarians from throughout Ohio and adjoining states will be in Columbus for the four-day meeting to learn of the latest developments in their profession. Emphasis will be placed on the role of the veterinarian in modern society in protecting the health and welfare of humans as well as animals.

A special session will be held Monday on the veterinarian as a public health administrator and his relation to community health. Participants will cover the history and development of public health in Ohio, organization and programming of Ohio health departments and the role of the veterinarian in the community health program.

Peru to pay U.S. firms $130 million

LIMA, Peru (AP) — The Peruvian government is going to pay United States companies about $130 million for assets it expropriated in the past five years, informed sources say.

A Foreign Ministry spokesman said a compensation agreement would be signed today in Lima by Foreign Minister Miguel Angel de la Flor and James Greene, New York banker and special envoy from President Nixon. The amount of money was not announced.

The sources said Peru's payments would be financed by a loan, probably repayable over 10 years, from the First National City Bank of New York, the Chemical Bank and the First National Bank of Boston.

The properties are six mines owned by Cerro Corp.; a chemical plant, a paper pulp factory and two sugar estates owned by W. R. Grace & Co.; a Morrison Knudsen construction firm; and six fishmeal plants belonging to International Proteins, Starkist, Heinz, Cargill, General Mills and Goldkist, the sources said.

Two oilfields and a petroleum refinery operated by Exxon's International Petroleum Co. were nationalized five years ago, but the agreement does not include them. The government recognized that the oil properties had a book value of about $100 million but claimed the company had been exploiting the fields illegally for 40 years and refused to pay compensation.

Big boost in oil prices proves boon to 'stripper'

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP) — Jess Douglas says he has long struggled to succeed with his nine marginal oil wells like "a farmer making a living on 40 acres."

But like a small farmer who finds his crop suddenly in short supply, Douglas now is reaping big profits from soaring crude oil prices spurred by the energy crisis.

Six months ago, Douglas' monthly production of 500 to 600 barrels from his nine "stripper" wells brought $2.10 a barrel, 38 cents less than the price 16 years earlier.

Douglas says he had to work 12-to 16-hour days and trim costs by inventing his own tools to earn a decent living for his family of four.

By December, Standard Oil of California was paying $3.76 a barrel. "Three years ago $3 would have been a fantasy thought," Douglas said.

The "fantasy" price doubled again and then some, reaching $8 a barrel early this year as the government lifted price controls on stripper wells and new oil production.

Stripper wells such as Douglas owns produce less than 10 barrels a day. With 350,000 of them nationwide, they provide 13 per cent of the country's domestic production, the National Stripper Well Association estimates.

In California's San Joaquin Valley, where Douglas pumps his oil, 63 per cent of the 24,000 wells are strippers, the state Division of Oil and Gas says.

Douglas realizes the high prices may not last. But even if prices slip to $5 a barrel, he plans to resume drilling for new wells. His last was drilled in 1968.

"All along I kept thinking someday all my work would pay off," Douglas said. "And now I am getting some gravy, and I think I deserve it considering the years and years of struggle."

Loan delinquents spurt, prove worrisome

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The sharp rise in loan delinquency rates that began in November and December comes as a disappointment but no surprise to those who have been analyzing the condition of household finances.

They knew that families had built up an unusual amount of debt in the past two or three years and that many of them had no cushion at all to protect them from a nasty financial comedown.

In the latter part of 1973 many families rapidly began reducing their debt load, but figures released by the American Bankers Association — ABA — show clearly that a good many of them were overtaken by the economic slump.

The ABA said delinquences rose to 2.53 per cent of the number of outstanding instalment loans on December 31, the highest in the 10 years the statistical series has been kept. Last October the rate was 2.12 per cent.

Similar findings are revealed by other sources. Home mortgage delinquencies, for example, have begun to rise slightly even though the rate remains in the vicinity of 1 per cent.

The tipoff that problems might be developing came during 1972 when lenders saw a sharp increase in the amount of instalment credit outstanding in relation to disposable personal income.

Historically, the percentage of debt to disposable income has been less than 1.5 per cent. In the 1960s that ratio was exceeded only in 1965, when it reached 1.82 per cent.

But the percentage rose to more than 2 per cent in 1972, and when 1973 figures are complete they probably will show a rate of about 2.25 per cent.

At least one well known economic consultant, Lionel D. Edie & Co., terms the increase alarming and maintains that the condition is even worse when instalment credit and mortgage debt are added in.

New mortgage debt for the household sector of the economy has been rising at an annual rate of $40 billion during the past two years, Edie notes, compared to only $24 billion in 1971.

While the over-all downturn in the economy, including layoffs, is blamed for the situation, it has been worsed by particular factors. The gasoline shortage is clearly producing household crises.

William Ford, chief economist for the bankers association, commented:

"The gasoline shortage has been particularly troublesome because it has triggered sharp declines in the resale value of cars, particularly large ones, and recreational vehicles, which further compound the delinquency problem."

Automobile repossessions rose during November and December, a time when the ABA claims they usually decline. It noted the biggest delinquency rate of any category was the 3.54 per cent for mobile homes.

To some extent the situation might correct itself. Individuals react almost instinctively to economic conditions, reducing their spending — if they can — when they feel threatened by adverse conditions. At the same time, lenders become more selective.

But for those already committed to spending projects there is no recourse but to get the money up. And the statistics show that a good many Americans are having trouble doing that.

California town hates newcomers

VENICE, Calif. (AP) — Most towns would welcome them: the well-showered, well-paid middle class with their sports cars and their behaved children.

But in Venice — discovered by the Beatniks in the '50s, flower children in the '60s and inhabited by enclaves of blacks and Mexican-Americans — old-time residents resent the coming of the middle class and the high cost of living that accompanies them.

Venice is Los Angeles' bohemian "slum by the sea." First built in 1904, it became part of the City of Los Angeles in 1925 and was patterned after the Italian city of palazzos and gondoliers.

But its fortunes declined in the 1930s and the poor moved into its ramshackle cottages, and its canals and bridges fell apart.

In the last several years modern apartment houses have been built along the entire beachfront, attracting wellheeled residents with sleek sports cars.

One black man says: "When I first came to Venice, I lived in a place over by the canals that rented for $90 a month. Now it rents for $200. The cat who rented it could pay $350 if he wanted to. He just wants to live in Venice because he thinks it's funky. Cats like him move in here and pay so much, they've priced the poor people right outa sight."

One property owner complained at a Town Council meeting recently: "Our community is in imminent peril of being wiped out by an anonymous band of speculators who see a bonanza on this strip of land."

It's a simple matter of supply and demand, says developer J. Allen Radford, whose 10-story apartment building looms over the 50-year-old cottages.

"There's only so much land near the water — anything near it is going to keep increasing in value," he says. "There are some poor people down there now, but they won't get to remain by the water. The property is too valuable. They'll have to go."

Average property assessments went up 50 per cent last year, the city says. Tax bills went up as much as $1,000.

One newer resident, a young man living with an older woman, says: "Venice is the only place where it costs a lot to live poor. We're paying $385 here by the beach. It's worth it. For example, we can live out of wedlock if we want to, and no one says a thing about it."

Another new resident is a woman who first saw Venice as she rode her bicycle south from her expensive home in Pacific Palisades.

"I wanted to move here...and my husband said absolutely not. So I came without him," she says.

"I'll never go back to a sterile, boring, hostile, lonely suburb again. My husband and I are getting a divorce. He's a stockbroker. He comes by my house in his Citroen-Maserati and honks the horn for the kids to come out.

"He can't stand Venice."

Negotiations set on steel contracts

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — The basic steel contract negotiations between the United Steelworkers and the Big 10 producers are turning this week to the plant level where local USW officers have the power to call a strike to support demands on local issues.

However, strike talk has not been heard, observers say.

Song group's plane ransacked at Akron

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — While the Seals and Crofts performed at Kent State University Monday night, someone ransacked their plane at Akron Municipal Airport, stealing $1,200 in cash, a number of personal items, plus a sachel of signed, blank checks.

Police said the four-engine plane belonging to the popular rock group arrived about 5:30 p.m. and remained until midnight.

Wellston, Elyria teacher strikes both come to end

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Both the Wellston and Elyria teacher strikes have been settled and the school systems expected students to return to classes today.

A tentative agreement was reached late Monday night in the Elyria dispute and the almost 500 members of the Elyria Education Association met at 1 this morning to ratify the contract.

The contents of the Elyria agreement were not disclosed.

When the agreement was announced, Judge Harold S. Ewing called off a scheduled hearing on a back-to-work order requested by the Elyria Board of Education. The board also sought $15,000 a day in fines from the teachers for each of the 14 days they were on strike.

The Elyria Board of Education was to meet at 6 this morning to approve the agreement.

The Elyria walkout affected about 14,000 students.

The Wellston Teachers' Association, which has about 100 members, voted to accept a new contract early Monday. Agreement came after a daylong session between the school board and the teachers' association with Jackson County Common Pleas Judge Thomas Mitchell presiding.

Mitchell called the settlement fair and equitable and said it covered such things as teacher and administrative tenure and contract validity. The agreement grants new four-year contracts to the six administrators. Days lost during the strike, which began two weeks ago, will be made up later in the school year and the teachers will not lose any pay.

The Wellston walkout affected 2,000 pupils.

Bill McQueen, president of the Wellston teachers group, called the agreement a victory for the teachers, saying they received everything they wanted.

Agents take gunfire tests at KSU

KENT, Ohio (AP)—Nearly four years ago the sound of rifle fire was heard on the Kent State University campus and the result was four persons dead and nine persons wounded.

Monday weapons fire was heard again as Justice Department officials tried to partially recreate the May 1970 shooting incident in which antiwar demonstrators clashed with the Ohio National Guard. A justice department spokesman said the results of the study will be presented to the grand jury.

The federal investigators fired M1 rifles loaded with blanks and blank shotgun shells in a small cannon-like device. Persons stood where the guardsmen and the victims stood on the day of the original incident. Tape recordings of the sounds were made.

However, unlike the day of the demonstrations staged to protest the U.S. military invasion of Cambodia, there were very few other onlookers on campus because of the Presidents holiday.

Paul Lawrence, a Justice Department investigator, said the aim was to compare the current recordings with a tape recording made at a nearby dormitory during the actual shootings.

Lawrence said the cannonlike device was used to provide a comparison with the M1 rifle fire. Observers said the investigators were interested in the sounds of the gun fire as well as the reverberations. The day of the incident the guardsmen were armed with M1 rifles.

A building has been constructed in the area since the original incident, but Lawrence would not comment on whether that would have an effect on the sound. Lawrence said the temperature and wind differences between Monday's chilly, damp weather and the spring like weather in 1970 would have little effect on the current recordings.

This is the fourth known visit to the campus made by the Justice Department since the probe began. On the first visit the jury was taken to the site of the shootings. Later, federal representatives took a series of photos and measurements. In the third known visit, federal personnel set off firecrackers and recorded the blasts and echoes.

The federal grand jury, which was convened in Cleveland Dec. 18, recessed for two weeks and is scheduled to resume its hearings Feb. 25.

This is the first federal grand jury investigation into the incident. A state probe, called shortly after the shootings, found no fault with the guardsmen's actions. Former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell refused to investigate the matter in 1971. However, former Atty. Gen. Elliot Richardson ordered the Justice Department to reopen a study last year. The present grand jury was convened Dec. 18.

SCOUTING'S 64th ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION

"Do A Good Turn Daily..."

It works because practice makes perfect, and daily means every day. Boy Scouts get into the habit of looking for ways to help others, until the habit of helpfulness becomes a way of life. The boy grows into a man who cares . . . and shows it!

The best part about a good turn is that it's good for the boy. He feels better about himself because he can help other people. He learns he can really make a difference in shaping a better world. He doesn't stop at one a day. He's always finding new ways to do good . . . and doing them for his fellow men.

Vanderbilt tops Auburn

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Vanderbilt helped end one era and hoped to start one of its own.

"I think we are on the way up now," said Vanderbilt Coach Roy Skinner after the fourth-ranked Commodores, leaders in the Southeastern Conference, beat Auburn 89-79 in college basketball Monday night.

One team headed in the opposite direction is Kentucky.

The Wildcats, the dominant force in SEC basketball for 41 years, were eliminated from the 1974 title race through the combination of Vanderbilt's victory and Kentucky's 61-60 loss to Mississippi.

Kentucky, which owns 28 SEC basketball crowns and four national championships, was the SEC representative in the NCAA Tournament the past six seasons. The Wildcats are 8-6 in the conference this year.

Vanderbilt's victory raised its SEC record to 13-1, one game ahead of eighth-rated Alabama, which beat Louisiana State University 99-87.

In other games involving Top 20 clubs, second-ranked Notre Dame knocked off Western Michigan 85-68; 10th-rated Indiana downed Illinois 101-83, and No. 16 Kansas beat Oklahoma 98-80.

Any combination of Vanderbilt victories and Alabama defeats adding up to three will steer the Commodores boat into NCAA waters for the second time in history.

Jeff Fosnes tossed in 23 points to lead the Commodores to their 11th straight victory, equalling a school record for consecutive triumphs.

Freshman Gary Yoder stole the ball and dropped in a last-minute lay-up that gave Mississippi the victory over Kentucky.

Rickey Brown, playing 22 minutes, hit all 11 of his free throws en route to a 21-point evening and grabbed six rebounds to lead Alabama to its 12th SEC victory in 14 outings.

Notre Dame shook off a sluggish first half that produced a 37-37 halftime tie and went on to the victory over Western Michigan.

John Shumate had 26 points and 14 rebounds while freshman Adrian Dantley contributed 23 points and 11 rebounds.

Quinn Buckner's 14 assists and Scott May's 26 points helped Indiana break open a 48-40 game at the half and blow past Illinois.

Indiana pushed its first-place record in the Big Ten to 9-1, 173, over-all, while Illinois lost its 11th straight game, which broke a school record for consecutive defeats.

Kansas rode the long-range shooting of Dale Greenlee and Roger Morningstar to its victory over Oklahoma for the Jayhawks' ninth Big Eight victory in nine games, tying Kansas State for the conference lead.

Elsewhere in college basketball, four of Tennessee's starting five shot in double figures to lead the Volunteers past Florida 85-57; Jerry Nichols poured in 20 points to pace Purdue, one-half game behind Indiana in the Big Ten race, to a 99-78 decision over Iowa; James "Fly" Williams and Danny Odums combined for 48 points in Austin Peay's 96-71 victory over Tennessee Tech, and Carlton Mack's lay-up with 34 seconds left gave Richmond an 84-83 victory over West Virginia.

Waldrop runs 3:55 mile; unimpressed

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Tony Waldrop, professing that he's "tired of running all these sub-four minutes," is the new fastest indoor miler. But he's unimpressed.

"I'm still just a country boy from North Carolina," said the gangling, sandy-haired Waldrop. "I really didn't think I could run that fast.

"I'm on top today, but I could be on the bottom tomorrow." The University of North Carolina senior ran the indoor mile in three minutes, 55 seconds Sunday night, erasing the 3:56.4 mark set by Tom O'Hara in 1964 and equaled by Jim Ryun in 1971. Waldrop had run an unprecedented four straight sub-four minute miles going into the San Diego indoor games.

Afterward, he told newsmen, "I'm tired of running all these sub-four minutes. There's a lot of pressure, and I don't like pressure. That's why I'll never try the Olympics again." As a sophomore, he competed in the Olympics and says "it wasn't any fun."

Waldrop took control with three laps to go before a crowd of only 6023 in San Diego and ran a sizzling 0.56 final quarter. Two other runners who finished under four minutes were Wilson Waigwa of Kenya in 3:57.2 and University of Washington sophomore Greg Gibson in 3:59.1.

The early pace was set by Larry Rose and Waldrop said, "Rose deserves the credit. . . I'd rather talk about my teammates." A handful of other records tumbled as well.

With her pigtails flying, 93-pound Mary Decker of Garden Grove, Calif., broke her own pending indoor mark in the 880 with 2:02.4 and set an 800-meter mark of 2:01.8. Francie Larrieu of Sunnyvale, Calif., trimmed a half-minute off the women's indoor marks in the 30,000 meters — 9:02.4 — and the two-mile in 9:34.4.

Steve Prefontaine lowered his pending U.S. record in the two-mile by nearly two seconds to 8:20.4. Swedish sprinter Chris Garvendorg equaled the listed world record in the 60 at 5.9, and Patty Johnson tied her world indoor mark of 7.4 in the 60-yard hurdles.

UCLA tumbles to third in AP college cage poll

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — After many weeks of trying harder, North Carolina State basketball Coach Norm Sloan finds it nice to be the No. 1 team of college basketball.

Sloan's team was top-ranked in the Associated Press poll this week, ending a long run as number two behind perennial champion UCLA. The Bruins dropped two games over the weekend and fell to third.

N.C. State, with a 20-1 record, edged Notre Dame by a slim margin for the top spot.

Despite its new status, Sloan said his team will still try harder.

"I think it will help us. It comes at a good time to give a boost to our morale. The teams we'll be playing from now on are all Atlantic Coast Conference teams, and they couldn't be gunning for us any more than they are already. We'll have a little more pride."

Sloan was informed of the poll results at practice Monday afternoon. "Is that right?" he asked. Told it was, he said, "We're proud and pleased."

Sloan stopped practice briefly to inform his players. Their reaction was restrained.

"It's not that we're not enthused," said 7-foot-4 center Tom Burleson. "It's just that we've got a lot of things on our minds," including a home game with Duke Wednesday night.

Sloan said the sports writers who picked the Wolfpack "had a good case.

"We're a vastly improved ball club from December (when UCLA beat N.C. State by 18 points in St. Louis). Our two new starters of this season have come a long way.

"Morris Rivers (a junior college transfer at guard) is playing beautifully now and Tim Stoddard at the big forward position is getting over a slow start.

"Defensively, we're coming together much better, particularly with our press. We've beaten two of the top five teams (Maryland and North Carolina) on their home courts; we beat Purdue on its home court when it was leading the Big Ten."

Though the poll recognition is nice, Sloan said, it's not the goal the team is seeking. Pursuit of the rest goal starts next month with the ACC tournament, which N.C. State must win to enter the NCAA tournament.

"We want to be No. 1 in March," Sloan said.

Indiana defeats Illinois, 101-83

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Quinn Buckner, Indiana's sensational sophomore, scored only eight points in the Hoosiers 101-83 Big Ten basketball victory over Illinois Monday night, but he won all the praises.

"He played as well as he's played all year and he's doing what he's supposed to do," said Indiana Coach Bobby Knight. "He got the ball where it had to go."

Buckner did exactly that as he picked up 14 of Indiana's 28 assists to help the Hoosiers, defending Big Ten champions, add another clamp to their drive for a second straight title.

The victory boosted Indiana's Big Ten record to 9-1 and kept the Hoosiers one-half game ahead of Purdue, which kept pace with a 99-78 triumph over Iowa.

Indiana, ranked No. 10 nationally, was never in serious trouble as Illinois suffered its 11th straight loss, exceeding a 10-game losing streak posted by the Illini back in 1907.

Indiana broke to a 23-18 lead in the early going and with Scott May scoring seven of the next nine points boosted its lead to 32-18.

Illinois, paced by Jeff Dawson and Rick Schmidt, cut the margin to 48-40 at the half and 52-46 early in the second half before the Hoosiers went on another spree to boost the margin to 80-60.

"I thought Illinois played very well in the first half," said Knight, "but we played our best basketball in the second half. We were able to keep it from getting down to a tough situation. We're just happy to win."

The victory boosted Indiana's overall record to 17-3, and Illinois Coach Harv Schmidt sang the Hoosiers' praises. "Indiana's the best team we've seen this season by far. They put together height with quickness. Buckner's so strong that if he gets a piece of his body on you, he separates you. He's a fine basketball player but Indiana has a lot of them."

May led Indiana with 27 points while Steve Green added 19 and Kent Benson 18. John Laskowski, Indiana's Super Sub, had 15.

Two new champions eligible in bowling

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—Two new champions and three missing from the tournament for several years are among the 52 professional Bowlers Association winners eligible for the 1974 Tournament of Champions.

Bob McGregor, Dallas, Tex., and Bob Perry, Paterson, N.J., are those making their debut in the tournament. Veterans Bill Allen, Orlando, Fla., Harry Smith, Rochester, N.Y., and Marty Piraino, Syracuse, N.Y., are the three who regained their eligibility.

MT finishes fourth in SCOL wrestling

Circleville's wrestlers wrapped up their third straight South Central Ohio League championship as they dominated the league meet Saturday on the Tigers' mats.

The Tigers took seven firsts, four seconds and one third to tally 83½ points to wrap up the title. Wilmington was second with 68 points, Hillsboro had 50 points, Miami Trace 24 and Madison Plains 23.

Miami Trace finished fourth with its 24 points with two seconds and two thirds. Gary Cobb who wrestles in the 132 pound division took second by way of losing a decision to Jim Cordle of Circleville. Jim Reno also took second in the 155 class losing in an overtime match to Hastings of Hillsboro. Kirk Stuckey placed third in the 145 bracket and Jay Crummy took third in the 167 division losing the first match 5-0 in overtime but beat Boyer of Madison Plains for third place.

Don French - 138 pound - won one match by a pin but lost two others by pins. Mark Williams - 119 - pinned Davidson of Madison Plains but lost to Penn of Hillsboro and Zilich of Wilmington. Greg Detty won one match but lost two others.

Jon Davis of Wilmington received the outstanding wrestler trophy. The quickest pin trophy went to Bob Cyrus of Hillsboro with two pins in a total time of 1:48.

Coach Dick Hill of Miami Trace reported that he felt the Panthers did reasonably well with what man power they had. The flu had sidelined some wrestlers and inexperience couldn't match with the season veterans of Circleville and Wilmington.

Denis Menke goes back with Astros

CINCINNATI (AP) — Veteran infielder Denis Menke got his wish Monday. He was traded back to the Houston Astros.

The Cincinnati Reds third baseman, who lost his job to rookie hitting sensation Dan Driessen, had asked Reds' President Bob Howsam to trade him to Houston, where Menke has holdings.

"We were willing to do it as long as we could get the ability we wanted in return," said Howsam.

The Reds obtained 23-year-old pitcher Pat Darcy who played with the Astros' Denver farm team last year. He was 5-9 in 20 games. The Troy, Ohio native is a 6-foot-3 righthander.

The trade returns Menke to the team he spent five years with. He hit .304 with the Astros in 1970, but his batting average plummeted in recent seasons. His .191 average last year represented a career low for the Iowa native.

Menke was a member of the National League All-Star team in 1969 and 1970.

Jersey Knights beat Chicago Cougars, 4-3

CHERRY HILL, N.J. (AP) — "One of my coaches once told me: 'If you can stop nine out of every 10 shots they throw at you, you're playing pretty darn good,'" Jersey goalie Joe Junkin recalled.

If that's true, Junkin was darn-near fantastic Monday night. The Chicago Cougars peppered him with 49 shots — but Junkin allowed only three of them in — one less than his teammates scored.

The Knights' 4-3 victory, coming on Gene Peacosh's second goal of the game midway in the third period, was the night's only World Hockey Association game. The National Hockey League was idle.

Cedeno's difficulties only Astro problem?

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Astros Manager Preston Gomez says he hopes Cesar Cedeno's difficulties will be the team's only problems.

"If that's all we have, we'll win the pennant," Gomez said Monday.

Gomez, who has replaced Leo Durocher as manager of the Astros, referred to a charge of involuntary manslaughter against the team's star outfielder in connection with the shooting death of a young woman in Santo Domingo. Cedeno was fined $100.

AAU MARATHON WINNER — Judy Ikenberry, a 31-year-old mother of three from Crestline, Calif., raises her arms as she crosses the finish line of the first women's national marathon championship at San Mateo, Calif. She won in 2:55.17. It was the first marathon race ever for women sanctioned by the AAU.

NFL strike by players seen possible

DALLAS (AP) — Star Dallas Cowboy running back Calvin Hill says many National Football League players agree with him when he says, "I will not be taken for granted any longer."

Hill, who is the Cowboys' player representative, said Monday he and hundreds of NFL players are considering a strike of training camps next summer if NFL management does not change the standard player's contract.

He did not specify which parts of the contract will be the target of representatives at the NFL Players Association convention at Chicago March 2-6.

Hill was quoted in Baltimore by WFAA-TV of Dallas as saying he believes he is being "watched" by the Cowboys because he told a New York reporter he wanted to be traded.

He said Cowboy officials heard about the New York interview and sent to New York for a copy of the tape. Hill added that the fact that 46 Cowboy players have joined the NFLPA under his representation has caused headaches for the Cowboy front office.

Secretariat attempt at stud checked out

PARIS, Ky. (AP) — Veterinarians should be able to determine whether Secretariat's first attempt at stud was successful about April 1.

The Triple Crown winner was able to get two of three test mares in foal earlier this year, but Monday was his first attempt with a thoroughbred mare — My Card.

Reds cut charter flights

CINCINNATI, Ohio — Travel plans for the 1974 National League season announced today by the Cincinnati Reds show a sharp reduction in the number of charter flights.

The team, which has used air charters on 100 per cent of its trips during the past four seasons, will only use charters on 31 of 42 trips this year, a reduction of 26 per cent.

When not traveling by air charter, the Reds will be using regular commercial flights or, in some cases involving short distances, travel by bus.

The reduction of 11 charter flights involves 5,300 miles or about 17 per cent of the Reds' total travel. This will result in the saving of considerable airplane fuel.

The Reds have been advised by the charter airline that ferrying has been reduced to a bare minimum, which will result in further fuel saving.

The Reds' new travel plans, which have been forwarded to Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, came in answer to an appeal to conserve energy wherever possible.

WFL franchises undergo changes

CHICAGO (AP) — The World Football League, having yet to play a game and seeking a television contract, announced a pair of franchise shifts Monday at a meeting of its Board of Governors.

Gary Davidson, president of the new league, said the Memphis franchise would be switched to Houston and the Boston franchise would be shifted to New York.

Davidson said the WFL would hold a news conference in New York today to announce details of a television contract. Davidson added that the league would play all of its games on Wednesday nights with one game each Thursday which will be nationally televised.

He said the league would play a 20-week schedule tentatively starting July 10 and winding up with a four-team playoff and a Nov. 29 championship game.

The Boston franchise, originally owned by Herbert Baldwin, will be operated in New York by Baldwin and Bob Schmertz. Schmertz relinquished his New York franchise, which was provisionally moved to Boston pending future action.

Davidson said the original New York franchise eventually would go to either Portland, Ore., Mexico City, Salt Lake City or New Orleans.

As things now stand, the league will open with 12 clubs. There will be Eastern, Central and Western divisions with the three champions and the best second-place team competing in the playoffs.

The makeup of each division has yet to be determined. Other teams include Birmingham, Ala., Chicago, Detroit, Florida, Honolulu, Philadelphia, Southern California, Toronto and Washington-Baltimore.

The moves to New York and Houston hurdled playing site problems at Boston and Memphis, which still is wooing a franchise from the long-established National Football League.

Biddy cage scores

In the Biddy Basketball League Saturday Madison Mills defeated Jasper 41-12 behind a 23 point performance by Delay and a 12 point output by Parks. Jasper was led by Scaggs and Henricks with four points apiece.

The second game saw Wilson defeat New Holland 33-32. Wilson was led by Dean and Knisley with 12 points and New Holland received 12 points from Hendricks.

Wayne defeated Jeffersonville sixth grade 30-21 in the third game. James and Forrest led Wayne with nine points apiece and Axline led Jeffersonville with six points.

The final game had Jeffersonville fifth grade defeating Bloomingburg 34-25. King led Jeffersonville with 15 points and McDonald and Lower received seven. Souther collected nine points for Bloomingburg.

With only one week remaining in cage action the standings are: Madison Mills 6-0, New Holland and Wilson 5-1, Wayne 4-2, Jeffersonville 6th and 5th grades 2-4, with Bloomingburg and Jasper finishing up at 0-6.

Don McCune named Bowler of the Year

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—Don McCune of Munster, Ind., was named bowler of the year for 1973 and Steve Neff of Sarasota, Fla., rookie of the year in the Sporting News poll, the Professional Bowlers Association announced Monday.

Awards were presented at a dinner preceding the start of the Winston-Salem Classic in Winston-Salem, N.C., an association spokesman said.

Final AP poll

Top prep cage teams listed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The coaches of Associated Press poll champions Canton McKinley, Wellsville and Mansfield St. Peter's say No. 1 isn't an extra burden heading into Ohio high school basketball tournament play.

"Being No. 1 makes you play a little harder," said Bob Rupert Monday after his unbeaten Bulldogs were acclaimed the Ohio Class AAA regular season titleholder.

"Sure, we had extra pressure trying to win that 18th in the last game. Now the pressure's on everybody. Everybody has something to lose," said Rupert, who also led McKinley to the AP state crowns in 1965 and 1966.

Wellsville, 17-0, won the Class AA honors for the second time in four seasons while St. Peter's, 18-1, earned its first AP championship in Class A.

A statewide panel of sports writers and broadcasters gave McKinley a 313-244 margin over Class AAA runnerup Kettering Alter, Wellsville a 290-281 lead over No. 2 Akron Manchester in Class AA and St. Peter's a 281-246 cushion over runnerup Sebring in Class A.

"Being No. 1 isn't going to make any difference," said Bob Dawson, who also guided Wellsville to its 1971 Class AA crown.

"We've had plenty of pressure everytime we've played a game this season. In tournament play, you have to be good, lucky and you must play well all of the time," he said.

St. Peter's played one of the most demanding Class A schedules in the state, beating four Class AAA and nine Class AA opponents. The Spartans' only setback was Dec. 15 at Sandusky St. Mary's 72-60.

"We're hoping the pressure of being No. 1 the last few weeks carries over into tournament play. It worked positive for us in several games. Kids came off the bench, felt like they were No. 1 and did super jobs," said Ron Barbo, the St. Peter's coach.

McKinley launches tournament play against 11-7 Massillon Perry, Wellsville faces Tornoto, a team it beat twice during the season, while St. Peter's opening tournament foe is winless Crestline.

Despite their coaches' optimism, the three poll champions face uphill battles to add the Ohio tournament titles to their AP trophies.

Only nine schools have pulled off a sweep of the tournament and poll championships since the ratings began in 1952. No Class AAA or Class AA team has done it since the state was chopped into three divisions for the 1971 tournament.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Here's how a panel of sports writers and broadcasters rates Ohio high school basketball teams in The Associated Press final poll of the season (10 points for first to 1 point for tenth):

Utah Stars rip Cougars

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)— Coach Joe Mullaney of the Utah Stars won't come right out and say his American Basketball Association team is the best in the league.

"Let's say right now we're playing the soundest basketball of any team in the league," he said Monday night after his Western Division leading Stars won their 14th straight by defeating the Carolina Cougars 121-110.

"The big thing about the streak is that we're moving away from the other teams. We're now in a position where it is safe to say we should win the division," he added.

The Stars lead the ABA West by 12½ games.

It was the only scheduled ABA contest. No games were played in the National Basketball Association.

Ron Boone, Willie Wise and James Jones combined for 67 points for Utah. Boone hit 11 of 11 from the field, a club record, and led the Stars with 24 points. Wise scored 23 and Jones 20.

Carolina was down by 10 points late in the game when Mack Calvin, who led all scorers with 31 points, sparked a rally which nearly pulled the game out for the Cougars. But Utah held on and pulled away in the last two minutes.

Sped Proves victor in Latonia feature

FLORENCE, Ky. (AP)—Sped spurted away from the pack with a furious stretch drive for a seven-length victory in the featured race Monday night at Latonia.

The winner went the six and a half furlongs in 1:21 to return $6.60, $4.80 and $3.00. Alluring Lady paid $4.60 and $2.80 for second. Mike's Pal showed at $2.40.

'74 Plymouth Duster

PAA

As you can see, Duster's sticker price is below popular Japanese imports. And what you do spend, buys you a lot more. For example, Duster seats five adults, comfortably. The Toyota, Mazda and Datsun—only four. Duster's got a standard electronic ignition that virtually eliminates ignition tune-ups. The other three don't even offer one. And finally, Duster is every inch a compact. With easy handling and parking. And good gas mileage on regular fuel.

Want a car that offers a lot for the money? Then see a member of your Economy Team about a new Duster. You know who I mean?

They're slimming in London suburb

LONDON (AP) — Free slimming centers are being opened by the borough council of Hounslow, a London suburb.

People attending pay 2½ pence (about 6 cents) a week. "The money is used to buy small gifts which are given for every stone (14 pounds) lost," a council official said.

Councillor Mrs. Mary Smith, who admits to weighting "a bit over 21 stone (294 pounds)" has promised to reduce her bulk by 147 pounds by the time the borough's mayor completes his year of office next May.

In France, each royal court had different fragrances in perfume as well as different scents for each day of the week in some of the courts.

New higher interest rate on U.S. Savings Bonds.

Now U.S. Savings Bonds pay 6% interest when held to maturity.

Here's how it works: The higher interest rate applies to all new Bonds purchased since December 1, 1973, raising their rate from 5½% to 6% when held to maturity. And the maturity period on Series E Bonds is shorter, too. Now E Bonds mature in 5 years, with a first-year rate of 4½%.

Series H Bonds, with a 10-year maturity, will earn 5% the first year; 5.8% for the next four years; and 6½% for the last five years. This gives you an average 6% yield over the 10-year period.

It works for Bonds you now hold, too. There's no reason to redeem your older Bonds to buy new ones. Their yield has improved, too.

All outstanding E Bonds will receive a ½% increase in yield for each semiannual interest period beginning on or after December 1, 1973, payable upon redemption. This also applies to any Freedom Shares you may still hold.

All outstanding H Bonds will receive a ½% yield increase for each semiannual interest period beginning on or after December 1, 1973. This is payable in the form of increased semiannual interest payments.

It all works to your advantage. Now, more than ever, it makes sense to buy higher-paying U.S. Savings Bonds and hold them to maturity or beyond.

Sign up now to buy Bonds through the Payroll Savings Plan where you work, or buy them where you bank.

Take stock in America. It's in your interest.

Opening lead - three of diamonds.

Here's the kind of tantalizing problem you're sometimes faced with. Assume you're in six spades and West leads a diamond. How should you play the hand?

The only losers are a heart and a club, and the problem is to find the best way of avoiding one or both of them.

Let's say you win the diamond with the ace, ruff a diamond, cash the K-A of trumps, ruff another diamond, and then play a low club to the jack. You would be home if the jack won the trick—but, unfortunately, East takes the jack with the king and returns a club.

You win with the queen and cash the ace, in order to gather as much information as you can about the composition of the unseen hands. This proves to be an illuminating move, because East shows out on the last club and you can then start to theorize on the probable location of the queen of hearts.

You know that West originally had two spades and five clubs—these are absolute certainties—and, judging from his opening lead of the three, that he also had precisely four diamonds.

With eleven of West's cards in three suits thus accounted for, it follows that he was dealt precisely two hearts. There is consequently a probability that East, with an original holding of four hearts, is more likely to have the queen than West, who had only two hearts.

You should therefore stick to the odds and take the two-way heart finesse against East. In the actual case the finesse succeeds and you come safely home.

Correct Speech Defect Now!

Our youngest child is in kindergarten. She has a distinct speech impairment. Some of our friends think this is "cute."

I have difficulty convincing my husband that we should make some attempt at correcting this. He insists she will outgrow it.

Mrs. H.R., Pa.

Dear Mrs. R.:

You are absolutely right in insisting that corrective measures be started as soon as possible so that your child will avoid the inevitable embarrassment and teasing that will occur in the first and second grades.

A speech disorder is a great handicap to young children. It is estimated that more than two million children have speech defects that interfere with their scholastic progress and, often, their social relationships.

Adolescent and adult achievement can be affected by speech defects neglected during childhood. Speech may, in fact, account for the acceptance or rejection by classmates.

It is difficult to believe that defective speech patterns deeply ingrained in young children will spontaneously disappear without treatment. The longer one waits the more difficult it becomes to eradicate the defect.

Speech therapy today is an exact and highly proficient science. It does not impose hardship on the child and, in fact, many children enjoy the ingenious corrective techniques now in use.

Before therapy begins the exact cause must be established.

* * *

I am 19 years old and am in excellent health. My only problem is that I cough incessantly as soon as I lie down to go to bed.

Miss J.N., Neb.

Dear Miss N.:

Such a story is highly suggestive of allergy. The fact that it occurs in your bedroom indicates the possibility that rugs, bedding, pillows or stuffed animals may be the offenders.

Coughs that occur during the day, too, are not so easily pinpointed.

The so-called 'post-nasal drip," associated with low-grade infections of the sinuses, may become more pronounced when a person lies down, and consequently causes recurring bouts of coughing.

X-rays of the sinuses and examination of the condition of the nose and the sinuses can usually define the problem and outline the course of treatment.

Try sleeping in another room to see if the condition persists. Non-allergic covers, pillows and anti-allergic drugs can often bring quick relief.

TO LO LIRE MAKI

Missy Krieger opened the meeting of the To Lo Lire Maki Camp Fire group with the Camp Fire Sign. Sharon called the roll and collected dues. The girls answered with favorite movie stars. Rhonda read the secretary's report.

Refreshments were served by Whitney Mickle, and we made a craft for our mothers for Valentine Day.

The meeting was adjourned.

TRIPLE-R-RUSTLERS

The Triple-R-Rustlers 4-H Club was opened with the pledges being led by Lisa Perrill. A new member, Kim Stroup, was introduced to the club.

Interesting reports were made by Mike Ferguson on "Riding Tips," Lisa Perrill on "Trailering Your Horse," Jan Mosbarger on "American Saddle Horse," and Ross Emmerick, "Parasites and Horses."

The club is going to tour the Fire Department at 1 p.m. and the Sheriff's Department at 2 p.m.

Refreshments were served following the meeting.

SIXTH GRADE

A 'last Valentine's Day party' took place in the sixth grade classroom at Eastside School, in the room of Mrs. Pierce. The members of the class paid for the party and did their work in the morning.

Cheese and pepperoni pizza, chips, punch, chocolate chip and sugar cookies, and cakes were the refreshments. Valentines were opened and a film was shown.

Those who brought food were Cindy Beatty, Rita Berwanger, Kami Kline, Anita Jones, Mike Barker, Sherry Justice, Deborah Snyder, Keith Eckles, and David Johnson.

The electronic calculator has changed our thinking in the area of math. Calculations that would have involved too much figuring to bother with a few years ago are today as simple as pushing a few buttons. The work has been taken out of calculations. And so it is with photography. Take, for example, the Honeywell Pentax ES. You see, I don't have a Pentax ES but my wife has one and I find it so much simpler to use the ES with the electronic shutter than to set everything myself on the Leicas — well, I just sneak out with her Pentax ES and get perfectly exposed pix every time without having to figure exposure at all. So I'm lazy, I get good pictures and that's what it's all about.

Now this Pentax ES gives perfect exposures everytime. You can't beat that! The ES stands for electronic shutter, and that shutter stays open until enough light gets in to give a perfect exposure if it takes one thousandth of a second or 8 seconds. Yet you have control at all times. You can set the aperture as you wish. Then you depress the shutter release about half-way while viewing. The needle in the viewfinder tells you the precise shutter speed you'll get at that aperture. If you like that shutter speed just go ahead and shoot. Don't like it? Then stop down or open up the aperture. You're the boss, but whatever you do the camera assures you a perfect picture exposure-wise. Now you see why I lift my wife's Pentax ES when I have a photographic job to shoot? You can't miss with the ES.

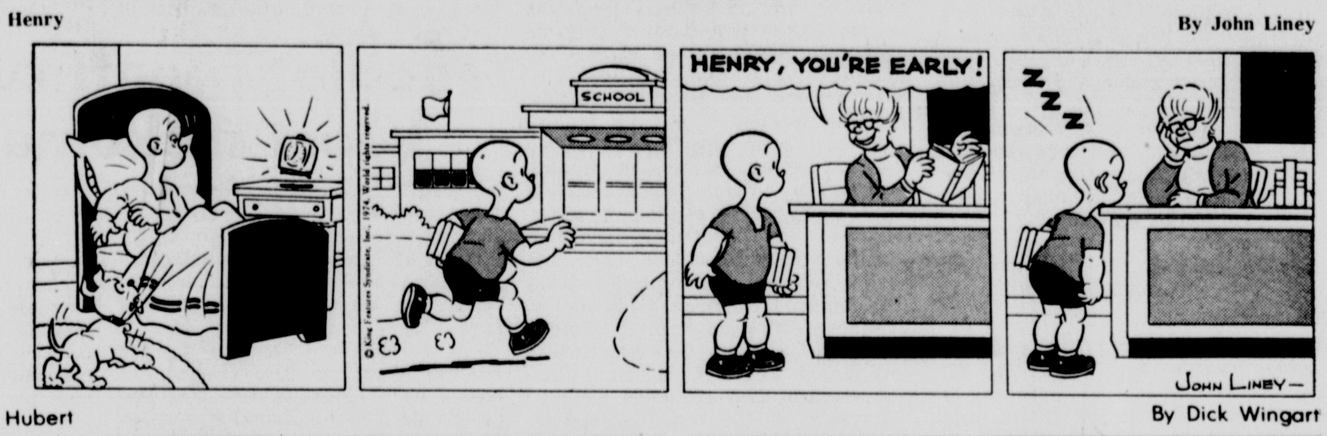

You haven't sacrificed a thing in going to the Pentax ES. In the ES the automation is in the body of the camera. This means you can use virtually all Takumar lenses and other Pentax accessories with it; even bellows and extension tubes. And with the automation in the camera body you have complete depth-of-field control because you select the aperture you want. You're the boss.

And by the way, if you haven't read THE BUSINESS END OF GOVERNMENT by Dan Smoot, well, it is the most popular book we have in the shop at the moment. More than 75 copies went out last week. Read it and you'll see why.

MIGHTY BIG CAMPFIRE ! — Lt. Richard Reed and Fireman Jim Sever of the Washington C.H . Fire Department were summoned to 14 Steen Court at 4:30 p.m. Monday to put out a fire which was in direct conflict with the city's open burning code. The fire was set by the K and S Construction Co. in an attempt to clean up rubble in knocking down the houses where the new Kroger's store will be built. The fire was put out with water from a nearby fire hydrant, and firemen worked at the site for four hours.

Girl attacked by 'tall men'

The Fayette County Sheriff's Department is investigating the reported rape of a 16-year-old girl, and listed the recovery of a stolen vehicle and a grand larceny. City police reported an incident of malicious destruction.

A 16-year-old, New Holland girl was reportedly assaulted by two men who she described as being, "in their early 20s and over six feet tall."

The incident occurred in Pickaway County between 5 p.m. and 5:30 p.m. Sunday.

The girl said she had been walking on the CCC-Highway-E near a wrecking yard when the two men pulled up in a car and asked her to get in. One of the men grabbed her arm and forced her into the auto.

They then drove to a wooded area near Williamsport and both men attacked her, according to the report. She was then taken to Williamsport and "dumped" as she put it.

Her uncle picked her up and returned her to home. Her mother then took her to Fayette Memorial Hospital for examination.

SHERIFF'S DEPUTIES stopped a vehicle driven by Audrey Hoagland, 32, Rt. 3, t 5:57 p.m. Tuesday, February 12 at the intersection of Blackstone Avenue and Paint Street.

Ms. Hoagland explained she had purchased the Falcon van from Ed Hoagland, 29, Rt. 4, for $120, but could not produce a title of ownership. She was charged with fictitious registration.

The van had been stolen from Marjorie L. Edwards, Morrow, on Jan. 28, officers said.

Hoagland, presently incarcerated in the county jail on charges of forgery, uttering a forged check and larceny, will now face additional charges of auto theft filed by Warren County.

An AM radio, a pipe wrench, a small socket set, a set of chisels, a hammer and a set of punches were stolen from a disabled combine parked in a field owned by Ferol E. Lewis, Bloomingburg.

The theft occurred sometime between Thursday and Monday, according to sheriff's deputies. The stolen merchandise was valued at $200.

The sound of breaking glass brought Dora Short, 603 Fourth St. into her living room where she discovered a large rock lying on the floor and a hole in a 14-by-20-inch glass window, valued at $5. The incident occurred at 9:25 p.m. Monday.

CIC board of directors hears variety of reports

A complete agenda of reports was handled by the Washington C.H. Community Improvement Corp. board of directors at the regular monthly meeting Tuesday morning in the City Office Building.

The meeting was the corporation's first since the annual reorganization meeting held Jan. 17.

President George Winkle stated the CIC board reviewed and discussed a full slate of reports including Washington C.H. railroad crossings, the Ohio Chamber of Commerce's annual spring legislative banquet, a proposed Public Utilities Commission of Ohio (PUCO) ban on advertising and economic development efforts by Chambers of Commerce, 1974 CIC memberships and present industrial park development.

Joseph O'Brien reported to the board that the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton Railroad Co., officials have agreed to a complete upgrading of their crossings this year in Washington C.H. The Community Improvement Corp., in conjunction with City Council and the Washington C.H. Area Chamber of Commerce, will contact the Baltimore and Ohio and Penn Central railroad companies again concerning improvement of their crossings.

Members of the board agreed to participate with the city and the Chamber of Commerce at the March 20 legislative recognition banquet, sponsored by the Ohio Chamber of Commerce. The annual legislative banquet will be held in Columbus.

Opposition to a proposed PUCO advertising ban against electric utilities will be made by the CIC directors as they join the Washington C.H. Area Chamber of Commerce and organizations from throughout the state in fighting the proposal. A PUCO hearing on the matter is to be held in Columbus Saturday, Feb. 26.

Various developments at the city's Industrial Park are under way presently, and the board of directors expressed satisfaction that local growth is much in evidence at the present time.

Winkle said that 1974 CIC memberships, priced at $5, may be obtained from any director or at the Chamber of Commerce office.

6th worker hit by rare cancer

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The sixth victim of a rare kind of liver cancer has been discovered among workers at the B.F.Goodrich plant here.

The worker is still living and has not been identified. But Dr. J. Bradford Block, head of the state Occupational Safety and Health Administration's medical program, confirmed the sixth case Monday, after Goodrich officials declined to confirm that the man has the disease.

The number of plant workers who have died from the rare cancer is five. The disease, called angiosarcoma, is believed by medical experts to be caused by prolonged exposure to vinyl chloride-a chemical used in the manufacture of plastics at the Goodrich plant on Louisville's Bells Lane.

Feedlot runoff curbs could boost consumer prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government plans to curb water pollution resulting from animal feedlot runoff would cost farmers at least $750 million and could add substantially to consumer food costs, the Agriculture Department says.

The curbs are called for by the Federal Water Pollution Control Act passed by Congress in 1972. The law directs the Environmental Protection Agency to set up a broad national program for eliminating water pollution.

Guidelines drafted last fall by EPA are aimed at stopping pollutants at sources so they do not enter rivers, lakes and streams during times of excessive rainfall.

The department, in a report published today in "Farm Index," says the guidelines currently are designed to apply by 1977 to large farm producers having at least 1,000 beef animals, 700 dairy cows or 2,500 hogs.

"But later this year, guidelines will be proposed for smaller units," the index said. "Eventually all procedures may be covered."

If all farmers had to abide by the current guidelines as written, officials estimate 280,000 dairy, cattle and hog farmers would have to install facilities to curtail runoff.

"The costs of installing these systems would fall heaviest on small producers," the report said. "For example, of the estimated $133 million that the fed beef industry would have to invest ... more than two-thirds would be borne by feeders selling fewer than 100 head per year."

It was estimated hog producers would have to spend $280 million, with four-fifths of the outlay by farmers who each sell fewer than 500 head per year.

Dairy farmers would have to spend the most, $300 million. An estimated 40 per cent of those currently have surface water runoff problems, the report said.

Ministers to meet

The Fayette County Ministerial Association will meet at 8:45 a.m. Thursday in the First Presbyterian Church. The Rev. Gene Mindenhall of the Scioto-Paint Valley Guidance Center, Chillicothe, will be guest speaker. He will explain the services and programs offered by the center.

Driver charged after crash

The Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported a Washington C.H. man charged with reckless operation and the Washington C.H. Police Department reported two minor accidents within the past 24 hours.

A car driven by Augustine L. McDonald, 69, of 226 S. North St., collided with the pole supporting the Dairy Isle sign after accidently hitting the gas pedal instead of the brake as he left the Meriweather Motors parking lot on the CCC-Highway-SW in Union Township at 12 p.m. Monday.

McDonald ran over a wooden guardrail post and then entered the front lawn of Dairy Isle, traveled 62 feet, hit a concrete wall and then struck the pole, officers said.

Moderate damage was done to the pole and his car. Sheriff's deputies charged McDonald with reckless operation.

CITY POLICE reported an accident involving a car driven by Clarence Hackett, 72, of 523 W. Temple St., and a parked car owned by Rodney Acton, Rt. 2, at 2:21 p.m. Monday.

Hackett told police a truck had crowded him into the parked auto on Court Street.

There was moderate damage incurred by his car and slight damage was done to the parked car.

An open car door created an accident at 11:09 a.m. Monday, according to police. A car driven by Robert C. Turner, 42, of 1021 John St., struck the door of a car belonging to Peter C. Katt, 28, Columbus, while it was stopped on Court Street. Damage was slight.

Report U. S. holds wide lead in antisubmarine warfare

By MIKE SHANAHAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a kind of guerrilla war of the deep, the United States has far surpassed the Soviet Union in the ability to locate and keep track of the other country's submarines.

While highly-sophisticated U.S. sonar equipment can pick up surface ships hundreds of miles away and submarines 15 to 20 miles away, U.S. antisubmarine specialists have been surprised at the slow pace of Russian antisubmarine development.

They say the Russians are at least a decade behind, especially in sonar equipment aboard their atomic submarines.

The contrast becomes vital with today's opening of a new round of strategic arms limitation talks in Geneva. Some U.S. officials expect the Soviets to propose mutual limitations on the development of antisubmarine warfare gear.

"That would be completely to their advantage if we agree," said one high-ranking official. "It will be at least a decade before Soviet ASW (antisubmarine warfare equipment) can be taken seriously."

As explained by U.S. officials, the only job assigned to Soviet attack surmarines is to maintain the ability to destroy enemy shipping. Unlike American ships, Soviet subs are not assigned to keep open shipping lines or to escort convoys.

"So to keep track of those subs we have to engage in a kind of guerrilla warfare, you know, three or four of ours to one of theirs."

No matter what happens to strategic bombers or landbased missiles, both the United States and the Soviet Union are sure of raining destruction on the other in the event one strikes first.

The reason: The ability of each country's missile-carrying submarines to stay hidden and respond quickly to an attack.

Hospital board buys van for maintenance

The purchase of a new one-half ton van to be used at Fayette County Memorial Hospital was approved during the regular meeting of the hospital board of trustees Monday night.

Robert L. Kunz, hospital administrator, said the 1974 van purchased from Carroll Halliday, Inc., will be used by the hospital's maintenance department staff.

The bid of $3,260 submitted by Halliday's was the lowest of four received by the board. Other bids were Billie Wilson Chevrolet, $3,519; Meriweather Motors, $3,800, and London Truck and Tractor Co., $4,023.

The board also approved the payment of $1,680 tro the Mid-Ohio Health Planning Federation. Kunz said the $1,680 figure amounts to half of Fayette County's assessment for 1974-75.

Mrs. Ralph Child, president of the hospital auxiliary, presented an annual report to board members. Mrs. Child's report disclosed that there are a total of 122 auxiliary members and they donated 24,813 hours during 1973. The auxiliary members worked in the orthopedic clinic, x-ray department, the obstetrics department, the admissions desk and the front office in addition to handling the hospital television service.

ONE OF the major items of equipment donated to the hospital during the year was a heart monitoring machine, costing approximately $3,000. The auxiliary also purchased a new skin graft machine for surgery and new bassinets for the obstetrics department.

The administrator's statistical report showed 380 admissions during the month, 2,107 in-patient days, an average daily census of 67.96, a percentage of occupancy of 78.12, average length of stay 5.80 days and 1,077 visitors to the emergency room.

Kunz also listed the actual net revenue of $75.25 per patient day. He said $71.59 was budgeted by the board and the national average is $105.

Expenses per patient day, according to Kunz, was $71.59 per day actually, and that $71.49 was budgeted. He said the national average is $103.

The expense per admission is $397 actual; $444 budgeted, and $768 on the national average. He said there were 2.6 full-time employes per occupied bed.

Demo chieftain vows to keep workers clean

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — John T. Fallon, the Ohio Democratic party's new executive director, says he will see to it that state employes stay "out of the ticket selling business, whether voluntary or involuntary."

The state organization will provide the mechanism for raising funds for candidates and will abide by all campaign financing and spending laws, Fallon said Monday after agreeing to become successor to the dismissed David Meeker.

The state party was criticized recently by the federal General Accounting Office for using state employes for political fund-raising activities.

Fallon, a longtime political worker, accepted the post after receiving assurances it wouldn't be a temporary job.

Official announcement of the appointment was made at a news conference Monday by state Democratic Chairman William Lavelle, who also named Lucas County Democratic Chairman William Boyle as a special assistant for the campaigns of endorsed primary candidates.

Lavelle named Fallon to the post Saturday following a meeting of major county chairmen in the governor's mansion, but Fallon later put out a statement that he had been only offered the job and would not take it unless he knew he would be around after the May primary.

Lavelle said the party organization and Gov. John Gilligan had assured Fallon of a job through November. Fallon said "these assurances have satisfied any doubts I have had."

Fallon, who worked in the campaigns of former Gov. Michael V. DiSalle and former Columbus Mayor M.E. Sensenbrenner, currently is an assistant director in the Department of Transportation. He will receive $27,000 a year in the party post, the same salary he is receiving from the state.

Fallon will take a leave of absence from the state job starting March 1. In the interim, Lavelle said, Fallon will "slide into" the party job, spending part of his time at Democratic headquarters.

Boyle will be on the party payroll on the basis of a $20,000 a year salary only through the May primary. He said he will retain his Lucas County chairmanship.

Courthouse roof plan considered

New roofing on the Courthouse was expected to be considered by the Fayette County Board of Commissioners Tuesday afternoon.

Chairman J. Herbert Perrill said he is hopeful that the board would discuss the possibility of roofing the remainder of the Courthouse.

Perrill said Kingery Roofing Contractors, of West Lancaster, presently are roofing the vertical portion of the Courthouse in addition to repairing various other sections of the roof. The commissioners expect to receive an estimate from Kingery at their regular meeting next Monday.

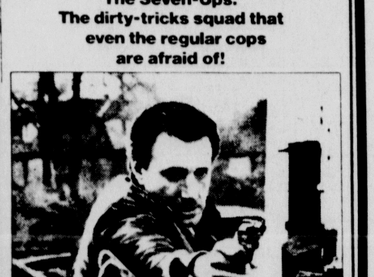

Commissioners were invited to attend a meeting of the Upper Paint Creek Steering Committee at 11:45 a.m. today in the Terrace Lounge. Local representatives of the steering committee and representatives from the Ohio Department of Natural Resources, Columbus, will be attending the session. They will discuss with commissioners improvements in the upper Paint Creek area.

John Young, a Boy Scout representative from Columbus, was scheduled to meet with commissioners Tuesday.

Reginald (Chink) Davis, county dog warden, submitted 30 reports for the week.

JOHN N. MITCHELL

MAURICE STANS

Charges linked to Vesco contribution

Mitchell, Stans on trial

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and ex-Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans made a final, vain effort today to abort or delay their federal criminal trial, the first in the last half-century involving members of the President's Cabinet.

Stans' attorney, John Diuguid, renewed his request to dismiss the charges of conspiracy and obstruction of justice against the two of them, to move the trial out of New York City, or to delay it indefinitely.

He contended that pretrial publicity had made a fair trial impossible.

Mitchell, 60, attorney general during President Nixon's first term, and Stans, 65, Nixon's first secretary of Commerce, are charged with accepting a $200,000 under-the-table contribution to Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign from fugitive financier Robert Vesco, 37.

In return, the government claimed, they pledged "to exert their influence" in sidetracking a Securities and Exchange Commission probe of Vesco's multimillion-dollar corporate empire.

Not since the Teapot Dome scandal of 1923 have two cabinet members been indicted on charges relative to their official or political duties. In that case, Republican President Warren G. Harding's interior secretary, Albert Fall, went to prison, but his attorney general, Harry Daugherty, escaped punishment.

Mitchell was in charge of Nixon's re-election campaign, and Stans was his chief fund raiser on March 8, 1972, when the indictment charges that Vesco offered a $500,000 contribution in return for intercession with the SEC.

The government charged that eventually a sum of $200,000 was agreed upon and that this amount was secretly turned over to Stans in Washington on April 10, 1972. A new law requiring public disclosure of campaign contributions had taken effect three days earlier.

The indictment claims that Mitchell and Stans subsequently brought pressure on the SEC in Vesco's behalf. The case was said to have been brought up in a discussion between Nixon and his former White House counsel John W. Dean III. However, there has been no public indication that Nixon was aware of the purported conspiracy between Mitchell, Stans and Vesco.

Mitchell and Stans are additionally charged with six counts of perjury, bringing their maximum sentences upon conviction to 50 years.

Hearst awaits word on $2 million grab

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Randolph A. Hearst is awaiting reaction from his daughter's kidnapers on his plan to deliver $2 million for food for California's needy as a first step toward gaining Patricia Hearst's freedom.

He also is searching for a "tax-exempt, charitable organization" approved by the California attorney general to handle the money — including $500,000 in personal assets — he said would be available today.

"The money will be available, but we have to find a proper conduit," the president and editor of the San Francisco Examiner and chairman of the Hearst Corp. told newsmen Monday.

"They've asked me for a goodwill gesture. I consider this a goodwill gesture, particularly since there's no guarantee that my daughter will be released.

"I think it is up to them now to believe me and to make a good faith gesture of their own."

Details on how the money would be spent and the food distributed remained to be worked out, he said. Food industry officials said $2 million would provide enough food to stock 34 supermarkets.

The Symbionese Liberation Army, which claims to be holding the 19-year-old University of California student, demanded that Hearst give $70 of free food to each of the state's poor, aged, paroled and disabled as a condition for negotiations for her release. State officials estimated the cost at some $400 million.

Hearst announced his plan one day before a deadline set by the SLA. He emphasized it was only a first step.

"There is no guarantee Patricia is going to get home on this," he said.

His daughter was pulled screaming from her Berkeley apartment 15 days ago by two black men who fired shots at witnesses.

Hearst also said he had asked San Francisco attorney William Coblentz, a family friend, to see that two SLA members charged with the murder of Oakland Schools Supt. Marcus Foster last Nov. 6 get a fair trial.

Hearst said the $500,000 he is donating himself represents "a substantial part of my personal assets." He said the remaining $1.5 million would come from the William Randolph Hearst Foundation.

"This is an honest effort on my part to do what I can, and that's all I can do. I think they'll believe that," Hearst said.

The SLA told Hearst in a taped message received Saturday it would "accept a sincere effort on your part." On the same tape, Miss Hearst urged her father to devise a program "as fast as you can and everything will be fine."

Hearst announced his plan after meeting with American Indian Movement leader Dennis Banks and other members of the coalition of activist groups named by the SLA to handle the food distribution.

"I would like to say I may not be their friend, but they've turned out to be mine," he said of the activist groups. "If there's anything that I can do to help them in the future, whether Patty's in or out, I'm going to try and do it and understand their problems."

Democrat winner for Ford's seat

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — Using Watergate as his war cry, a Democrat who had been a consistent political loser has captured Vice President Gerald R. Ford's former House seat, defeating a Republican who had never lost an election.

"We are sending a message to Washington tonight," Richard F. VanderVeen told a cheering crowd celebrating his victory Monday night in breaking a 64-year Republican lock on Michigan's 5th Congressional District seat.

Using the theme that the special election to fill Ford's unexpired term was a "referendum on President Nixon," VanderVeen polled 53,008 votes to 46,159 for favored Republican Robert VanderLaan. Two minor-party candidates mustered only 4,998 votes between them.

As he did throughout his campaign, VanderVeen, a 51-year-old corporation lawyer, called again Monday night for President Nixon's resignation, "so we may put Watergate behind us, not before us."

Michigan Republican Chairman William McLaughlin said, "Watergate killed us. I don't know of anything else. That's the issue that VanderVeen made. We got our Republicans out, and that's a Republican district. Without a doubt there is a message. People don't like what's going on in Washington."

He said the election foreshadows "a tough year" for Republicans.

Asked if he favors Nixon's resignation or impeachment, McLaughlin said, "I'm giving a lot of thought to what we've got to do. It's obvious something has to be done on the national level, but I don't know what."

VanderLaan, 43, who had never lost in 15 previous elections, refused to discuss his loss, saying, "We're not going to talk about the anatomy of it until we've had a chance to sleep on it."

Ford seemed stunned by the outcome.

"You can't mean that," the vice president told an aide when he learned of VanderLaan's loss. But Ford skirted any mention of Watergate in assessing the election results.

"I'm sure it's a reflection of the uncertain economic conditions in Michigan particularly and in the country generally," Ford said in a telephone interview from Chattanooga, Tenn. "I'm confident that as the economy improves there will be greater support for the Republican candidates."

VanderVeen, who lives in East Grand Rapids, had never before won an election. He failed in a 1971 bid to become mayor of East Grand Rapids, his hometown, lost a party primary for lieutenant governor in 1960 and was unsuccessful in his race against Ford.

Land venture set at Columbus

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Two real estate firms have announced a joint $300 million land development venture in and around the Columbus area.

Officials of the Nationwide Development Co. and the Ernest G. Fritsche organization said the new combine will market 1,350 acres in seven locations near the city's new outerbelt.

The joint venture, to be known as Primeland Properties, is expected to involve residential, commercial and industrial tracts, the firms said.

Gold prices dip

LONDON (AP) — The price of gold fell back today from record peaks after a predicted upvaluing of gold holdings by European Common Market governments failed to materialize.

The American dollar rallied in European exchanges from a sharply lower opening. By noon early losses were nearly recouped.

Gold reached a record high of $152 an ounce Monday in London and Zurich, the two main trading centers, as finance ministers of the nine Common Market countries were meeting in Brussels.

Nixon says Americans not quitters

WASHINGTON (AP) — Without directly mentioning his Watergate woes, President Nixon has told his largest and most enthusiastic audience since the 1972 campaign that "the American people are not a nation of quitters."

Joining Gov. George C. Wallace at an honor America Day rally Monday in Huntsville, Ala., Nixon told an outdoor crowd estimated by security personnel at 20,000 to 30,000:

"Americans have always had strength in adversity ... there have been times of discouragement in America but the American spirit was such that we always became stronger when the going got tougher."

Nixon pointed to Wallace as a living example of this, recalling his recovery from a 1972 assassination attempt that left the governor partially paralyzed.

Wallace, who has sought the presidency three times and is considered a contender for the 1976 Democratic presidential nomination, seemed careful in his introductory remarks to pay honor to the presidential office while sidestepping any praise of Nixon the man.

"We in Alabama have always honored the office of the presidency of the United States. We are all flag wavers in Alabama," said Wallace.

The governor got a bit more personal when, after saying it was an honor to have the President in the state, he added:

"I say God bless you, Mr. President, and I submit to you that you are among friends in Alabama."

Cheers and welcoming banners far outnumbered evidences of criticism in the rally crowd, although a few persons held aloft placards with such legends as, "Honor America — Impeach Nixon."

It was the second Nixon speech of a long six-day weekend in the South, spent mostly at his home in Key Biscayne, Fla. Last Thursday in Miami he drew a much more modest crowd, and many more critics, when speaking at a hospital dedication.

Flying back to Washington from Huntsville, the President stopped in Indianapolis to pick up his daughter Julie Nixon Eisenhower, who is recovering from emergency surgery for removal of an ovarian cyst.

Arab ministers bring 'good news' to U.S. meeting

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two Arab foreign ministers say they are bringing "good news" to President Nixon about prospects for Syria's entry into the Middle East peace talks.

And Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger is reporting "solid accomplishments" in advance of today's White House session.

The positive note followed talks at the State Department Monday between Ismail Fahmy of Egypt and Omar Sakkaf of Saudi Arabia and the secretary.

"Everything is moving in the right direction," Fahmy told reporters. Kissinger, meanwhile, said, "I agree with his characterization."

The speculation is that the State Department session produced a framework for negotiations on a separation of Syrian and Israeli forces in the Golan Heights. The question is whether Kissinger will readily assume the sort of mediator role he played in arranging a disengagement between Egypt and Israel by shuttling between the two countries.

Since he has a date later this week in Mexico City for a conference of Western Hemisphere ministers there seems little chance of immediate negotiations. But he may wind up later this month in Geneva or in Jerusalem and Damascus using shuttle diplomacy to bridge the enmity between the October War foes.

"The major problem now is to get these talks started and I hope we are making progress," Kissinger said.

Asked whether he would travel to the Middle East, the secretary replied: "First we have to get a framework started."

Fahmy, speaking also for Sakkaf, who doubled back to his hotel because of intestinal flu, said "There is progress on every avenue" and that he would be bringing "good news" to Nixon.

Presumably, this could also involve an early lifting of the Arab oil boycott against the United States.

Syria has refused to participate in peace talks until Israel gives up the territory taken after it was attacked by its Arab neighbor. Israel, on the other hand, has insisted on the precondition of a list of war prisoners in Syrian hands and visits to them by the Red Cross.

Over the last month Kissinger is known to have been working on a compromise by which the lists would be obtained once the negotiations reached a serious stage. A key question is how much of the strategic territory Israel is willing to yield.

Storms rake Gulf states

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Severe thunderstorms accompanied by high winds and hail raked the central Gulf states today.

In Jackson, Miss., where an inch of rain fell, a radio tower was toppled by strong winds late Monday. A short time later, hail the size of ping-pong balls pounded the neighboring town of Florence.

An early-morning tornado watch was in effect for most of Alabama and parts of Mississippi, Georgia and Florida.

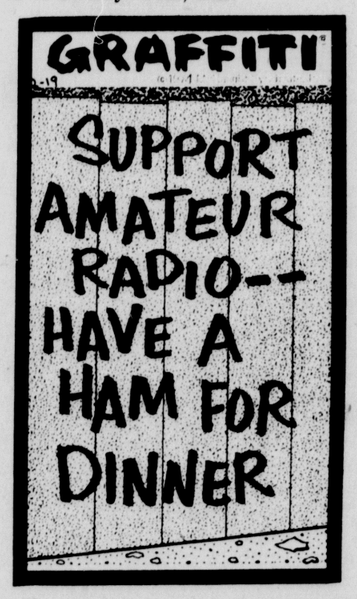

The thunderstorms extended into Arkansas, while rain soaked Tennessee and the western Ohio Valley and ranged into southern Lower Michigan.

Rain was expected to change to snow over Michigan and spread east along the northern tier of states to upper New England. A heavy-snow watch was in effect for Upper Michigan.

A cold front produced rain and snow over the Northwest from the Pacific Coast to the Rockies, and travel advisories for heavy snow were out for portions of Idaho, Utah, Nevada and Wyoming.

In parts of Texas, wind gusts to 40 m.p.h. stirred up dust causing low visibilities.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 7 at Lebanon and Concord, N.H., to 72 at Key West, Fla.

Big Labor continues push for impeachment

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — AFL-CIO President George Meany says the labor federation will continue campaigning for President Nixon's impeachment despite administration efforts "to portray us as some sort of sinister force."

"Blaming us for the President's troubles is ridiculous," Meany said Monday after the AFL-CIO's governing executive council again urged Congress to impeach the President.

The council said in a statement that a full impeachment trial by the Senate "is the only way for the President to get his day in court" and "the only way the American people can get the truth" about Watergate.

The AFL-CIO first called for Nixon's ouster at its convention last October and followed it up with a 19-point bill of particulars documenting what the organization said were "impeachable offenses."

In a recent speech, Vice President Gerald R. Ford criticized the labor campaign as an effort by a few pressure groups to discredit the President.

Meany said, however, that the purpose of the AFL-CIO effort was "to inform our membership about Watergate and related scandals.

"Now we are charged by Gerry Ford of having a well-financed campaign and that we are dragging out Watergate," Meany told a news conference.

He said the President "could have ended Watergate last May if he had just come out and told the truth."

That is all the AFL-CIO has asked, Meany said.

Later in the week, the executive council's economic policy committee is expected to come out strongly against any further extension of wage-price controls.

REPUBLICANS UNITE — Congressman William H. Harsha was the guest speaker at Monday's Lincoln Day Dinner in the Mahan Building. He said that Republicans can have a good year at the polls if they refuse to be "psychedout" by the Watergate scandal. Party unity was stressed as the key in the coming election.

Republicans hear appeal for unity

"No one drowned at Watergate," Master of Ceremonies James Hanawalt said in his opening remarks at the 11th Annual Lincoln Day Dinner Monday night. The pun drew a few chuckles, long applause and set the theme of the evening for some 325 Republicans who attended the affair in the Mahan Building.

There was little rhetoric of the party's strides under five years of a Republican president, but rather there was a call for unity, a request that Republicans not let the party be the only casualty of Watergate.

Congressman William H. Harsha, who spoke in the absence of Cleveland Mayor Ralph Perk, stated that in spite of the picture painted by the media, the Republican party is not dead. "Don't be psyched out of the 1974 election," he said.

Harsha then noted that the year following Presidential hopeful Barry Goldwater's resounding defeat in 1964 the syndicated polls showed only one-third of all Americans intended to vote Republican in the 1965 elections. Republicans gained 42 seats that year, he recalled.

Congressman Harsha observed that the Congress has had a Democratic majority for many years. They (Democrats) were the architects of the legislation which has thrown the American economy into chaos, and they should not be blaming the President, he said.

A nbation that can split the atom, and send men to the moon and back can surely restore a sound economy, he noted.

HE CALLED ON all Republicans to drink, swear, steal and lie . . . to drink from the fountain of love for mankind, swear to help the party, steal time from themselves for others, and to lie in bed each night and thank God for the freedoms they enjoy in America!!!

Balloonist has setback during trip

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Thomas Gatch Jr.'s bid to make the first balloon flight across the Atlantic has suffered a slight setback, but he is still cruising along at 35,500 feet above the sea.

After crossing the coastline north of Atlantic City, N.J., Monday night, Gatch reported by radio that one of his 10 superpressure balloons had ruptured and was draped over a porthole on his pressurized gondola, Light Heart.

Gatch said he heard a loud noise when the balloon apparently burst, just over an hour after take-off.

The 48-year-old bachelor from Alexandria, Va., lifted off from Harrisburg International Airport at 7:29 p.m. EDT Monday on a flight he hopes will take him to southern France or northern Spain in approximately 52 hours. At 10 p.m. EDT, Aeronautical Instrument & Radio Co. in New York reported Gatch at about 200 miles southeast of New York City.

Aides said the timetable would change because the ruptured balloon would force Gatch to fly lower than the 39,000 feet originally planned. They said the craft could lose two more balloons without placing the flier in danger.

The radio monitoring station in New York reported the Light Heart was traveling about 150 miles per hour in an eastbound jet stream when it crossed the coastline.

CLEARING THE NEW KROGER SITE — Art Tefft (left), president of the K and S Construction Company stands with Cecil Campbell of Campbell and Son Excavators, in front of a recently demolished house on the new Kroger site on Clinton Avenue. Tefft stated the whole project should be completed in nine months and his biggest problem is not being able to burn on the construction site because of a city ordinance.

Congress again eyes energy bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Emergency energy legislation is heading toward an uncertain fate as Senate opponents are seeking to recommit it once again to a conference with the House.

Senate Interior Chairman Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., floor manager of the bill, said Monday the recommittal vote expected to occur late this afternoon would be decided by a "razor thin" margin but declined to predict which way it would go.

If the vote to recommit fails, the bill is expected to gain speedy passage and be sent to the House for final action. Jackson said last week that sending the bill back to conference almost certainly would kill it.

The measure that would give President Nixon power to order gasoline rationing and other mandatory fuel-saving steps has failed in two previous attempts to gain Senate passage. Opposition centers on a provision that would roll back the price of uncontrolled domestic crude oil from an average price of around $10 per barrel to $5.25.

Jackson claims the rollback would save consumers $20 million a day while opponents claim it would force the oil companies to cut back on production, making current shortages worse. A few senators argue that the rollback is not enough.

In a press conference Monday, Jackson said the fight against the bill was being led from behind the scenes by the oil companies and the White House. Administration lobbyists acknowledge their opposition to the price rollback, along with certain other provisions.

The White House has worked to block the bill's passage on two previous occasions — once before Christmas when it backed a filibuster by Republicans and oil state senators and again last month when the President personally urged the Senate to send the bill back to conference to remove a provision designed to limit oil company profits.

The conferees substituted the equally controversial price rollback provision for the excess profits section. Federal Energy chief William E. Simon has labeled the rollback formula "unworkable."

U. N. report hits waste of foods

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — A student of world living standards reported today that the garbage an average resident of a big Western city throws out in one day contains enough calories to meet the daily food requirement of an Asian or an African.

Manouchehr Ganji, an Iranian scholar, said in a speech prepared for the annual meeting of the United Nations Commission on Human Rights that this was determined by experts of the U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization who analyzed the refuse of big Western cities.

2 winners in bake-off

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — A Minnesota farm wife and a gourmet cook each won $25,000 today in the 25th Bake-off sponsored by the Pillsbury Co.

Four others received $5,000 prizes for their entries in the national competition.

Frances Jerzak won the grocery dessert award and the grand prize of $25,000 with her entry of chocolate cherry bars, a four-ingredient bar topped with frosting. Mrs. Jerzak, her three sons and husband live on a rented farm near the small southwestern Minnesota town of Porter.

She had entered the annual Bakeoff once before, but was unsuccessful. Her family's dream, she says, is to own a farm of their own.

Doris Castle, wife of a research engineer in the Chicago suburb of River Forest, Ill., earned the refrigerated foods grand award with savory crescent chicken squares, a family main dish sandwich in which chicken is blended with cream cheese, seasoned with chives and pimento, then dipped in crushed croutons and baked in crescent dough.

plause, and the crowd rose as Harsha closed and took his seat.

The congressman had been asked to speak after it was learned that Mayor Perk of Cleveland had been hospitalized over the weekend. Perk had been scheduled to be the guest speaker.

Bob Hughes, chairman of the Cuyahoga County Republican Executive Committee, represented Perk at the dinner and spoke briefly. He noted that Perk had won re-election to the position of mayor of Cleveland, which is largely Democratic, in November in spite of the Republican difficulties in Washington and stressed that good Republicans everywhere can be elected to high office. He asked that Republican voters in Fayette County keep Perk's fine record in mind as they approach the polls to select a candidate for the U.S. Senate.

Peter Voss, who is opposing Perk for the Senate in the primary, was a contrast to all other candidates who spoke. A Canton businessman who has had some service in international politics, Voss did not defend Watergate, or make light of it. He stated openly that the situation in Washington is deplorable and called on Republicans to correct the mistake of having so much power in the hands of so few.

PRIOR to the introduction of candidates, those in attendance were entertained by a choral group from Washington Senior High School, under the direction of Charles Shaffer, and by the Burns Sisters, a black gospel group from Jeffersonville.

Robert Brubaker, chairman of the Fayette County Republican Executive Committee, introduced the party members who are seeking state and local office this year. He asked that they take no more than one minute to make themselves known.

John Rhoads, a candidate for county commissioner, was introduced. His Republican opponents, J. Willard Sears and Carl Wilt were not in attendance.

Running unopposed are Common Pleas Judge Evelyn W. Coffman, James Kiger, prosecuting attorney, and Mrs. Mary Morris, county auditor.

State representative candidates from the 77th District, Bob McEwen, Hillsboro; Lewis Overturf, London; and Frank Matson, Spring Valley, were introduced. James Heininger, Greenfield, was not present.

State senator candidates from the 17th District, Harry L. Armstrong, of Logan, the incumbent, and Oakley Collins, of Portsmouth, were recognized.

Charles Eades, Milford, and Charles Horr, Portsmouth, hopefuls for the position of state committeemen from the 6th District were introduced as was Dorothy Clifton, of Blanchester, who is unopposed for committeewoman.

STATE CANDIDATES introduced included Charles E. Fry, of Springfield, and Bert Dawson, Jr., of East Liverpool. They are opposed by James Rhoades for the Republican slot on the ballot in the governor's race.

Attorney general candidates Stanley Aronoff, Cincinnati, George Smith, Columbus, spoke briefly. Their opponent in the primary, David Dowd Jr., of Massillon, did not attend.

Roger Tracy Jr., Columbus, was represented at the dinner by his wife, Elizabeth. Thomas Cloud, his opponent for state auditor, was introduced.

Sheldon Taft, seeking a post on the Ohio Supreme Court, spoke briefly. He noted that Republicans do not have to choose between himself and C. William O'Neill or Thomas Herbert who are also running. There are three seats open.

State Sen. Max Dennis and State Rep. Joseph Heistand were in attendance. However, Dennis is not currently up for re-election, and Heistand has decided not to seek another term.

Hanawalt asked that the audience recognize the outstanding efforts of Mary Jean Jennings in support of the party over the year, and thanked Mrs. Jennings and Mrs. Kathryn Lee for their work in planning the dinner.

Stock list up sharply

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market posted a sharp gain today, rallying around rising hopes for an early end to the Arab oil embargo.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up 11.34 at 831.66. Gainers outdistanced losers by close to 4 to 1 on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said the upsurge stemmed largely from news that two Arab foreign ministers expected to give President Nixon some "good news" at a meeting with him today, after weekend talks with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

Redman Industries was the most-active NYSE issue, up ½ at 4.

On The American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose 1.04 to 95.31.

Oil stocks were strong.

Travel and leisure-industry stocks, sensitive to gasoline and other fuel supplies, showed broad gains.

The NYSE's noon index of all its listed common stocks was up .59 at 49.92.

The rain that spread across Ohio overnight is expected to end early tonight.

The rain was the first for most of the state in about a week and was associated with a low pressure area located over southeastern Missouri this morning and forecast to move across Ohio this evening and into New England Wednesday.

Temperatures were forecast to remain generally in the 40s across Ohio today under cloudy skies. Cooler weather is forecast tonight, with lows dipping to the upper 20s and lows 30s—still above normal for late February.

Sunshine is forecast Wednesday afternoon and highs will range in the 30s and 40s.

A chance of rain or snow is forecast for Ohio Thursday and Friday. Highs will reach the 40s Thursday and from the mid 30s to mid 40s Friday and Saturday. Lows will be in the 30s Thursday, but will drop to 15 to 25 degrees by Saturday.

Panel promotes bonus measure

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Senate Ways and Means Committee today recommended for passage an educational assistance bonus for Vietnam War veterans.

The House-passed bill, sponsored by Rep. Vernal G. Riffe Jr., D-89 New Boston, would allow qualified veterans to take twice the amount of their cash bonus in educational aid.

Cash bonuses up to $500 were approved by the voters for Vietnam veterans last November.

Housing bill still trapped in committee

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A disagreement over a wage provision has trapped a bill for low income housing in Ohio in the Senate Finance Committee since last July.

Sen. Max Dennis, R-10 Wilmington, the committee chairman, said the problem is between the Ohio Home Builders, savings and loan associations, and the Housing Development board, a state agency.

The issue is the bill's requirement that builders pay the prevailing hourly wage in the area in which the houses are built.

The homebuilders have objected to the provision because it means they would have to pay union wages in a rural county, although the prevailing wage was established in the nearest metropolitan area.

Dennis said he is awaiting a compromise between the factions before giving it additional hearings. The bill was passed by the House last July.

But builders contend the delay may cost Ohio builders almost $400 million in federal funds that would be advanced to get the program started.

The General Assembly was to return from weekend recess today with both houses having floor votes set for 1:30 p.m.

The House was scheduled to vote on two bills aimed at improving medical care in Ohio.

Expert explains tape gap report

NEW YORK (AP) — An electronics expert, in a five-page report submitted to White House lawyers, says that an 18½-minute gap in a key presidential tape could have been caused accidentally, the New York Times reported today.

The Times said the report, which appears to contradict the findings of a panel of experts who examined the tape, came from Allan D. Bell Jr., president of Dektor Counter-intelligence and Security, Inc., of Springvale, Va.

Bell, the Times report said, volunteered to help Charles S. Rhyne, a lawyer for Rose Mary Woods, President Nixon's secretary.

The panel of experts was chosen by the White House and special prosecutor Leon Jaworski to study seven tapes under subpoena from the White House.

In his report, the Times said, Bell says the gap in the tape may have been caused by a defective part in Miss Woods's recorder. The panel, in reporting that the erasures were probably caused by manual operation of the keyboard controls, suggested the erasures were deliberate.

The Times article stated:

"The Bell report appears to contradict the findings of a panel of experts that were widely interpreted as indicating that the erasures on the recording were deliberate."

The Times also quotes an unnamed member of the tape panel as saying of the Bell report: "If you had the full story in your hands, you might choose to underplay the Bell report."

Bell told the Times that his findings may have served as support for a statement Monday by the President's Watergate attorney, James D. St. Clair.

St. Clair said a "technical investigation" determined that the erasures may have been caused by a defect in the tape recorder.

11th state adopts gasoline plan

By WILLIAM GILLEN
Associated Press Writer

Virginia will become the 11th state to adopt a gasoline distribution system, the nation's fourth mandatory plan, when its odd-even Oregon-style plan goes into effect at midnight Wednesday.

Meanwhile, Vermont has decided to suspend plans for a voluntary odd-even system that would have started Wednesday.

Announcement of the Virginia plan was made Monday by Gov. Mills E. Godwin.

State police in the East reported traffic generally lighter than usual at the end of the three-day holiday weekend. Officials in the West and South said lines at gasoline stations were fairly short and traffic normal or just below normal for the holiday.

Virginia joins New Jersey, Maryland and one county in Hawaii in making its plan mandatory. Under the plan, motorists with license plates ending in even numbers buy on even-numbered days, odd numbers buy on odd days.

Six other states and Washington, D.C., also have the Oregon-style plan in effect. New Hampshire starts one today on a two-week experimental basis.

The Virginia governor said he was "loathe" to issue the executive order. But he said he saw it as the only current means of coping with a fuel shortage that has seen motorists, particularly in the populous Tidewater and Northern Virginia areas, waiting for hours in order to get gasoline at the few remaining open stations.

Under the order, no motorist may purchase gasoline unless his fuel gauge shows his car's tank is less than half full.

Vermont Gov. Thomas P. Salmon, announcing the suspension of his state's planned program, said: "There is both massive misunderstanding of this plan and its purposes and strong evidence of unwillingness by a substantial number of gasoline stations to comply."

In New York, the legislature in Westchester County, a suburb of New York City, voted overwhelmingly Monday to institute a mandatory odd-even system. And officials in New York City are studying whether they should adopt a mandatory system, too. New York State has a voluntary plan.

Pennsylvania Gov. Milton J. Shapp plans to announce a change today in his state's odd-even rationing plan. It will be based on the numbers onvehicle inspection stickers rather than on license tags. An aide to the governor said the plan would go into effect Wednesday.

South Carolina Gov. John C. West plans a news conference today to announce his plans for handling the shortage. Indications are that the state will adopt a voluntary odd-even plan.

In a letter sent Monday to William E. Simon, administrator of the Federal Energy Office, Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson, D-Ill., asked for 15 million gallons of additional gasoline per month for the Chicago area.

Glenn bares financial data

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Former astronaut John Glenn, who is running for the U.S. Senate, issued a statement of his financial worth Monday saying it is so complete that every penny he has made since 1965, including $100 he was paid for being on the Johnny Carson show, is accounted for.

Glenn issued a 183-page report which listed his net worth at $767,800. He said he would forward the report to the Ohio Ethics Commission.

"There is nothing else I can report," Glenn said in a statement. "It is complete and open. To the best of my knowledge, it is the first time in the history of this state and nation that any candidate for major office has made such a complete financial disclosure."

Glenn said that Sen. Howard Metzenbaum's financial statement issued 10 days ago "is like the difference between edited summaries of the Watergate tapes and the tapes themselves."

Metzenbaum is Glenn's opponent in the race for the Democratic Senate nomination.

Glenn said the main issue in the Senate campaign "is the integrity of our government officials. Democrats are looking for someone they can look up to-someone they know as honest enough and dedicated enough to public service to get our nation moving again..."

Metzenbaum was not available for comment, but his campaign manager, James J. Schiller, said he was glad that Glenn made the statement but added,"Glenn achieved his wealth over less than 10 years by capitalizing on his service as an astronaut."

"Metzenbaum rose up from poverty through the business world over a 40-year span," Schiller said.

Glenn reported income between 1965-72 totaling $1.12 million and said he paid more than $353,000 in federal income taxes during the period. Between 1960 and 1964, when Glenn was an astronaut and in the U.S. Marine Corps., he paid taxes of $43,723 on income of $112,992, the report said.

The disclosure statement listed bank accounts totaling $51,300, stocks totaling $668,000 and $130,000 in business investments. His home was valued at $142,400. Liabilities amounted to $324,400, including $44,200 in 1973 income taxes payable and $90,900 in real estate investments.

The candidate said he owns $375,000 in Royal Crown Cola stock, holds $94,954 in the L.D. Edie Capital Fund, and has 1,000 shares of Hughes Tool Co. stock, worth $85,000.

In addition, the report says, he has $25,000 invested in Congress Gardens, a Washington, D.C., apartment complex, $43,000 in Interstate Resort Corp., and $30,000 in Quinn, Glenn and Landwirth, a partnership which owns Holiday Inn hotels in Florida.

Cox happy with press

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Former special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox says he cannot complain about the way the press treated him but worries about its coverage of Watergate.

The news media are "turning gradually to a more active role in shaping the course of events through their news columns and commentaries as well as on their editorial pages," Cox said in a speech Monday at St. Paul's School, from which he was graduated in 1930.

The selection of news items "often reflects sort of a notion that the press is the fourth branch of government and it should play a major role in government," he said.

In response to a question, Cox said President Nixon's handling of his personal taxes was "avaricious, miserable leadership and on the border line of immorality" but not an impeachable offense.

He charged the press had "overplayed" a New York Times report that he had been fired because the White House feared he would name President Nixon as an unindicted coconspirator. Both Cox and the White House denied that report when it appeared.

Greek regime cracks down

By PHILIP DOPOULOS
Associated Press Writer

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Greece's new military regime, in its third month of power, is cracking down hard on students and political opponents.

Dissidents live in fear of the nighttime knock by security and military police.

The civilian government that the generals installed after they overthrew the previous military dictator, President George Papadopoulos, appears unsure of itself.

Brig. Gen. Dimitrios Ioannides, the chief of the military police, is widely believed to be the real power behind the new president, Gen. Phaedon Gizikis. But Ioannides is never seen in public; opponents describe him as a man "who fears his own shadow and only moves by night."

People are beginning to grumble openly about the stagnant political situation, inflation reflected in a 31 per cent increase in consumer prices last year, and the price of gasoline, at $2.08 a gallon the highest in Europe.

Open opposition to the regime has been slow to surface. But a government official confirmed that an old concentration camp on the Aegean island of Yiaros has been reopened to house foes of the regime. Opposition sources claim the camp is slowly filling up, with about 120 persons presently housed in barracks that the International Red Cross once said were unfit for humans.

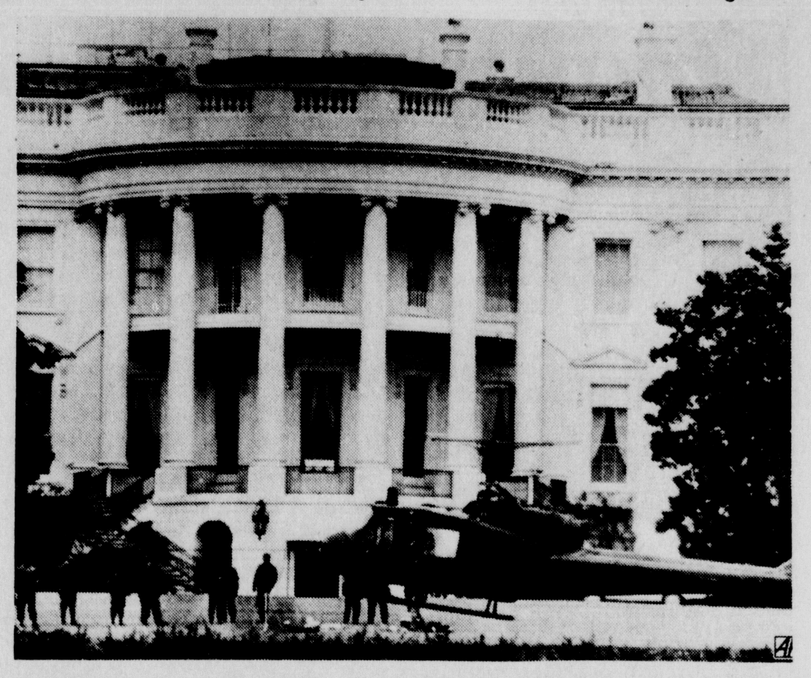

Government officials and dissidents refuse to be identified when making statements or claims. But this picture emerges:

—Scores of students have been arrested and have disappeared since antigovernment rioting by youths precipitated the end of Papadopoulos' 6½-year-old regime.

—The government has repeatedly said that only 13 persons died during the demonstrations. But students say at least 80 persons were shot down by police in the streets of Athens and buried quietly.

—Two Greek journalists are being held on Yiaros for criticizing the regime. A Greek reporter for the German magazine Der Spiegel and for the West German broadcasting system was questioned by military police last month. Relatives say he was threatened with exile to Yiaros, and he has sharply curtailed his journalistic activities.

—The military police shut down the major afternoon newspaper Vradyni Dec. 1 for alleged antigovernment reporting. Several foreign correspondents have been warned after sending abroad what the government termed "anti-Greek propaganda."

LIFTOFF — A stolen helicopter rises from the White House South Lawn after officials decided the craft was capable of returning to Ft. Meade, Md. The craft was hit by gunfire as it was landed by Pfc. Robert K. Preston, 20, who is being held for mental study.

Heroic cadet's bid for job rejected

DETROIT (AP) — A police cadet who was recommended for a heroism citation after rescuing a man from a fire has been rejected for a permanent appointment to the Detroit force.

Alfonso Martinez, 21, crawled into a burning house early Saturday morning to drag a 43-year-old man through heavy smoke and intense flames to safety.

He was recommended for a bravery citation.

On Monday, police officials said Martinez didn't meet their minimum qualifications for carrying a badge, apparently because he admitted that as a teen-ager he smoked marijuana and experimented with other drugs.

Detroit Mayor Coleman Young said Martinez "should not be penalized for the rest of his life for a youthful indiscretion." But he backed off his support after learning Martinez admitted sniffing a white powder once.

A police spokesman said the department considers the use of illicit drugs as evidence of moral turpitude and grounds for automatic rejection of an application.

"No police department in the country would hire someone like that," Police Commissioner Philip Tannian said.

But later Monday, the Genesee County sheriff's office asked Martinez to submit an application for employment as a deputy there.

Martinez, a cadet since October 1972, said he told a police recruiting investigator that he smoked marijuana "a few times" as a teen-ager.

He later admitted to a department investigative board that he actually had smoked marijuana "five to 10 times" and that he once had sniffed "a white powder," not further identified.

He said he has not smoked marijuana since 1972.

Copter pilot examined

WASHINGTON (AP) — A young soldier has indicated his anger at flunking out of flight school may have prompted his erratic two-hour helicopter flight around the nation's capital ending in a hail of gunfire on the White House lawn.

Army Pfc. Robert Kenneth Preston is undergoing psychiatric examination at Walter Reed Army Medical Center in the wake of the chase early Sunday morning.

Preston, 20, was taken to the hospital Monday after civilian charges of unlawfully entering the White House grounds were dropped and he was turned over to military custody.

Asked at his court appearance what prompted the wild chase, Preston did not comment. But when reporters asked if it was because of anger at having flunked out of flight school he responded "could be."

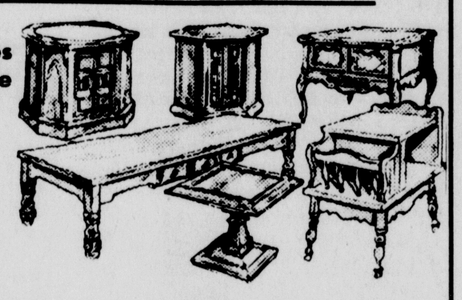

Military officials said they were studying whether any charges would be placed against Preston for violations of military regulations.

A red rose for Solzhenitsyn

When the exiled Alexander Solzhenitsyn stepped off the plane onto West German soil he was cheered by the people gathered there, and a young woman gave him a red rose.

This symbolizes the reaction of the West, more particularly of freedom loving men and women everywhere. Solzhenitsyn is honored as a brave, persistent voice bespeaking freedom of mind and spirit and respect for the truth.

By the same token, the Soviet government which has for long vilified and harassed this man because of his protests against the regime has branded itself as an enemy of those precious things: freedom of mind and spirit, respect for truth. In driving Solzhenitsyn from his homeland the Kremlin has more than ever shown its true colors as a brutal, repressive power callous to all human values which do not serve the state.

Common speculation has it that by stripping Solzhenitsyn of his Soviet citizenship and sending him into exile the Politburo must feel it has cleverly solved a very sensitive political problem. According to this thesis the threat to East-West detente, seemingly so much desired by the Soviet leadership, has been averted by merely banning the author instead of placing him on trial as a traitor and perhaps imprisoning or even executing him.

The Politburo may indeed preceive the matter in this light, or at least feel it has made the best of a bad situation. Also, it may well be that with Solzhenitsyn free through exiled, Western governments will be less inclined than otherwise to bring any diplomatic pressure to bear in his behalf. To that extent, the Soviet leadership may be right in thinking its international position is improved by this action.

It may be, however, that the Kremlin has traded a small diplomatic gain for a massive setback in terms of world opinion. Exile is not going to generate the outrage that would have been aroused by trial and imprisonment of a Noble prize winner, true. But this leaves out an important factor: Solzhenitsyn will surely not remain silent in the West. He will surely write and publish and speak - and every word will be a further censure of Kremlin repression.

The Politburo has one ace in the hole: reprisal against Solzhenitsyn's family, friends and fellow outspoken intellectuals. If it tries that, though, worldwide protest may rise to new heights.

Possibly the Soviet government has outsmarted itself; thinking to rid itself of one gadfly by letting him escape imprisonment or execution, it may find that it has opened a Pandora's Box full of political troubles.

THESE DAYS . . . by John Chamberlain

The 'legal services' monstrosity

It has taken Howard Phillips, former director of the Office of Economic Opportunity, some 4,000 words in the Washington weekly Human Events just to outline the scope of a Legal Services Corporation and to provide a rational critique of it.

It's that complicated when the government sets out to provide lawyers for the poor. It is doubtful that the Senate really knew what it was voting for when it passed such a tortuous bill to transfer the existing legal services program to a private corporation operating under the "house rule" laws of the District of Columbia.

The members of the House of Representatives, who are about to consider the bill as I write, will probably be as confused as the senators.

I'm confused myself. Certainly I think every person has a right to a lawyer. But when a bureaucracy is set up to care for the poor, doesn't it mean that certain elements of the poor — those who seem most deserving to their guardians — will get the legal help while others go begging?

MR. PHILLIPS contends that a 15-member National Advisory Council will effectively "lock the program into permanent control by radical groups." This is prophecy, and prophets are not always right. But when Mr. Phillips says that lawyers serving "projects" rather than clients will dominate legal services, it strikes a note of warning. I pick up something from an old issue (February, 1970) of the Clearing House Review, published by the National Clearinghouse for Legal Services. Describing a Washington Lawyers Project for providing legal services for those who seek federal aid, it mentions as a "typical example" of Project activity an effort to aid "the United Farm Workers Organizing Committee in efforts to stop Defense Department purchase of table grapes."

In our pressure-group democracy, the United Farm Workers Organizing Committee certainly has all the right in the world to lobby against feeding non-union grapes to soldiers. But the "project" activity of the Washington lawyers was described, in the same issue of Clearing House Review, as offering advice to "poverty-oriented organizations. . . which seek federal assistance and are without sufficient funds or resources to benefit from other counsel."

The logic of this juxtaposition is somewhat baffling. Are we to understand that the United Farm Workers Organizing Committee, which had the sympathetic support of the AFL-CIO's George Meany, lacked money to hire its own lawyers? With a war chest that was hefty enough to throw the whole San Joaquin Valley grape country into turmoil, and with Southampton, Long Island, socialties collecting funds at radiclib parties for Cesar Chavez to push his boycott of the supermarkets, surely the United Farm Workers Organizing Committee could have taken care of itself in its representations to the Pentagon.

MR. PHILLIPS notes that "broad authority" is provided in the legal services bill to fund "public-interest" law firms of the Ralph Nader and Common Cause variety. I hadn't noticed that either Ralph Nader or Common Cause's John Gardner was having trouble in collecting money. Why can't they support their own "public-interest" law firms?

When Mr. Phillips took over in the Office of Economic Opportunity, he thought he had a mandate to clean it up, but he soon found he was butting his head against a stone wall. However, his experience has made him the best-informed critic of bureaucracy in the District of Columbia. So when he asks whether "senators really want the Black Panther-dominated 'National Committee to Combat Fascism' to gain free use of government long-distance telephones and Xerox machines," as it would have the right to do under the Nelson-Javits bill, he should be heeded.

Why can't things be made simple? Why can't there be volunteer lawyers' organizations to help the poor?

Incidentally, the inflation caused by loading everything on government has helped raise legal fees in this country to a point where even the rich can't afford lawyers. The establishment of a $100 million dollar per year corporation to help poor people like Cesar Chavez is just one more straw on the camel's back. Poor camel, he's going to need a free lawyer soon to collect damages for his ruined spine.

A WORD EDGEWISE . . . by John P. Roche

A message from Sakharov

The Soviet authorities are beginning to turn up the heat on dissenting intellectuals. Predictably, they began a campaign of personalized calumny against Aleksandr Solzhenitsyn, before his arrest and deportation, which will probably produce the accusation that, at age 7, he stole kopeks from his mother's purse.

This would be comical (like the story Sam Johnson spread that his brother Lyndon cheated at dominoes) were it not for the fact that the technique has been used over and over by the KGB as a first step on the escalator to a bullet in the skull.

Like Solzhenitsyn, Andrei Skharov has been accused of slandering the USSR and cooperating with reactionary forces in the United States to undermine detente. Characteristically, Solzhenitsyn's response to this was to nominate Academician Skharov for the Noble Peace Prize!

On Feb. 1 Sakharov took the opportunity to set forth in unmistakably precise language the essence of his position. The Social Democrats, U.S.A., awarded him the Norman Thomas Freedom Award for his courageous advocacy of an East-West detente based upon free association and mutual trust, "a detente made secure by the introduction within the Soviet Union of a measure of political democracy and intellectual freedom."

SKHAROV accepted by telephone and I believe his statement is worthy of extended quotation.

"We all welcome the negotiations that are now being held," he said, "aimed at preventing a thermonuclear world war, as well as the armaments race, and to promote negotiations aimed to increase. . . detente. But at the same time, there continue to be arrests, interrogations, and searches of dissidents, religious persecutions, harassment of honest writers, obstacles placed in the way of free emigration and discrimination against national minorities. In an irrefutable way, this shows that the external detente is tragically not accompanied by an internal and human detente."

He then continued, urging all persons concerned with human freedom to support a six-point program; First, "A campaign for free access by the representatives of the International Red Cross and World Health Organization to inspect the Soviet places of incarcerations and mental hospitals. (2) A campaign for amnesty of Soviet political prisoners. (3) A campaign to end discrimination against such national minorities as the Crimean Tartars, the Germans of the Volga area, and the Turk-Meskhs. (4) A campaign for freedom of emigration. (5) A campaign to defend Solzhenitsyn, linked with free distribution of his book in the USSR (6) A campaign to defend all the honest writers who have been harassed."

"Ideological freedom in our country," he concluded, "and the survival of great literature as such are impossible if we do not struggle to defend every honest writer. I now appeal to you with respect and hope."

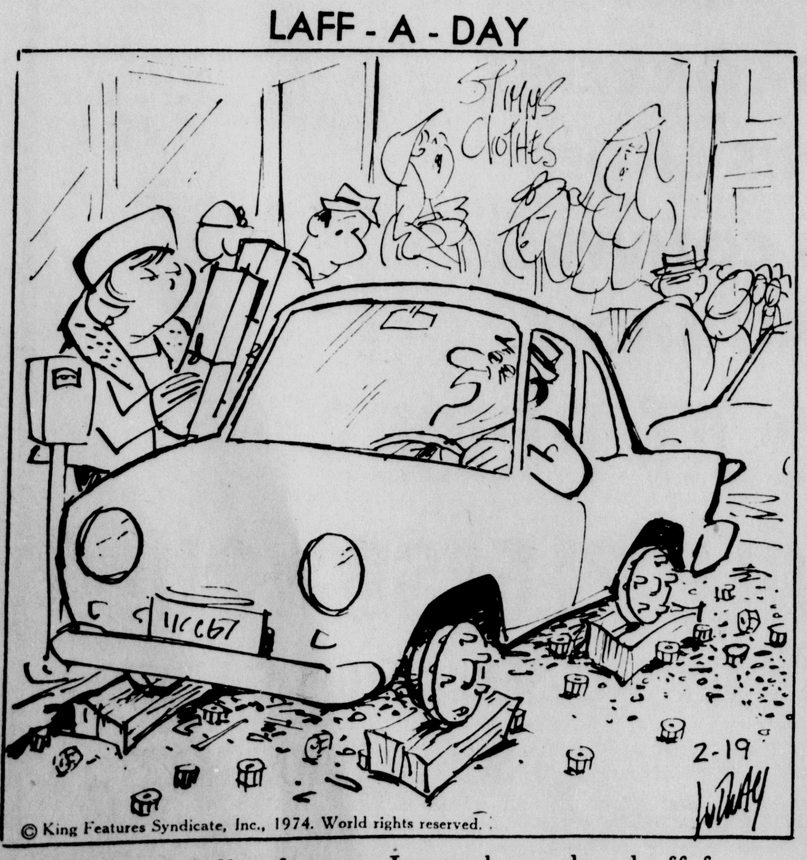

By any rational standards of evaluation this hardly constitutes a "slanderous attack" upon the Soviet Union. I'm certain that Sakharov, like myself and the Social Democrats who gave him the award, would speak out with equal vigor against abuses of human rights by the government of the United States or of Greece or Chile or China. In his view — as in ours — human freedom is a value that transcends dotted lines on maps.

I, FOR EXAMPLE, have publicly denounced every conspiracy trial of alleged subversives since the Smith Act was first thrown at the Trotskyites in 1942 and, although life got a bit tumultuous at times in the early 1950s, no governmental agency has ever accused me of being "anti-American" or of "slandering my homeland." Indeed, the reason I expressed myself as I did was that I cherish the values I take to be basis to American constitutionalism.

Sakharov, then, is no more an "agent of imperialism" than I was a supporter of the Trotskyites, the Fascists, the Communists, the Chicago 7 or the Fathers Berrigan. He is merely asserting principles affirmed in the Soviet Constitution and in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, to which the USSR subscribed.

In short, he is an ideological patriot calling in prophetic fashion for the implementation of the abstract rights of Soviet citizens. Under the circumstances, nothing could be more fitting than the award of the Nobel Prize; freedom is an indispensable precondition for the peace that mankind so desperately seeks.

Canvasser enjoys work

By DEAN SCHOTT
Associated Press Writer

FOSTORIA, Ohio (AP) — Ray Coburn has laid a lot of leather on the sidewalks of this northwestern Ohio community.

The 81-year-old retired glassblower claims he has spent more than 60 years working as a political canvasser in local, state and national elections.

Coburn, a former four-term Democratic mayor and recently retired service director, has made an art of knocking on doors and persuading his neighbors to vote for the party's slate of candidates.

"I started way back with Woodrow Wilson (1912) going house to house," he said.

However, Coburn said, there is more to door-to-door campaigning than rapping your knuckles and talking politics.

"I go right to the house and rap on the front door," he said. "If they don't come, I go to the back door. If they don't answer, I even kick on the basement window. Someone might be down there doing the laundry."

That's just the beginning. "When they come to the door, you have to know enough psychology to decide whether they want a conversation or don't want a conversation. It takes a long time to learn that."

Coburn said, "Most people who come to the door are transparent. If a mother comes to the door with crying, sick baby, you can tell she doesn't want to talk politics."

"Some people can go out canvassing, and in one minute can make somebody mad."

Being a good political canvasser takes time, he said. "You can't be a machinist in 15 minutes. You can't be anything in 15 minutes. It takes patience."

More than time and experience, Coburn said, "It's personality. You got to have personality and a little dignity."

When an election rolls around, Coburn visits about 200 homes and talks with about 400 people in his home precinct of Fostoria. If a candidate or the party asks, he will canvass in other parts of town or in the county.

Canvassing in the 1970s is different than 30 years ago, he said.

"I think 30 years ago, you saw more people at home," Coburn said. "They didn't have the means of transportation they have today."

He also said the voters are young and more independent. "They're voting for people more than the party," he added.

Despite the changes, Coburn said, "I still make it a business. I'm relaxed. I like going to work for them (the candidates)."

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Nutty brother in law is hung up on sex

DEAR ABBY: I am 16, and my problem is my over-sexed brother in law. I babysit for their 2-year-old child. My sister would wring his neck if she knew how fresh he gets with me and every other female who comes within 2 feet of him. (He's even propositioned my mother-and she's 60!)

My sister and this lecher are building a new home now and he tells everybody that he and my sister and their little daughter bathe together! My sis is even seven months pregnant now, and this over-sexed dude says he is looking for a king-sized bathtub so they can all bathe together after the new baby comes. He says there is nothing wrong with nudity or sex, and anyone who says there is is evil-minded.

Tell me, Abby, is he nuts, or am I evil-minded?

SUSIE

DEAR SISSIE: There is nothing wrong with nudity or sex under the proper circumstances, but any man who'd proposition his mother-in-law IS nuts.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding your item concerning the women who are interested in obtaining false fannies: I would like to make a contribution.

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow woman planning a tour with a friend. I'll be sharing a room with her which will create a problem because I snore. I know I snore loudly because those who have heard me say it's most annoying.

I'm told I sleep with my mouth open, so that must be the reason. My friend doesn't know about my snoring, and I hesitate to tell her before attempting to remedy it. Any suggestions?

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — By early April, the board of the Public Broadcasting Service expects to vote on a proposal to radically alter the way the nation's 240 public TV stations get national programs.

The proposal, made 1½ years ago by PBS president Hartford N. Gunn Jr., would partly abolish PBS' current practice of feeding national programs free to its stations.

It's already been approved in principle by the board and the stations, Gunn says, and will be explained in detail to station officials in a series of meetings next month prior to the final vote.

Essentially, the proposal would make stations pay a percentage of the cost of some, but not all, the national shows they'd air.

Under the plan the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, which administers federal funds for public broadcasting, would finance nationally-broadcast programs for no more than two years.

Current programs beyond that limit, such as "Sesame Street" or "Firing Line," would be directly affected by the proposal.

If stations wanted to continue those and new programs beyond CPB's two-year limit, they'd have to pay for them with their own money, be it from federal, foundation, local or private sources.

The more stations there are willing to pay for any particular show, the lower the cost per station.

Henry Loomis, CPB president, says there are two basic reasons for the proposed system. One is to encourage greater programming initiative and local financial support in local public broadcasting.

The other is financial. The Ford Foundation, public TV's biggest friend in the private sector, has put about $250 million into public TV since 1951, but plans to phase out its support in four or five years.

Although proposals are a-foot to authorize a five-year plan of federal spending for public broadcasting, CPB still won't have enough in the till to continue paying for both existing programs and the development of new ones.

Gilligan raps energy agency

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Ohio has not been hit hard by an energy shortage because its industries use coal, not oil but the state needs better communication with Washington, Gov. John Gilligan said Monday.

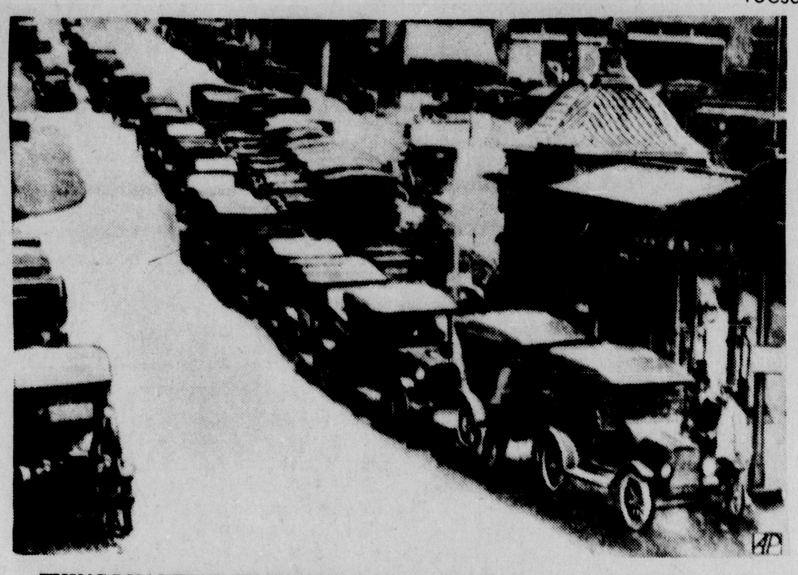

Speaking to a service club, Gilligan said "Nobody has ever talked to us...about our needs.

"The governors have been struggling for a year and a half to find out what the government's energy allocation program is," Gilligan said.

Reagan is offered role as reporter

OROVILLE, Calif. (AP) — Gov. Ronald Reagan, a former movie and television actor, has been offered a role as a reporter in a movie being filmed in this Northern California town.

Producers William Alexander and Bill Shiffrin said they didn't expect Reagan to accept but said Monday that Reagan could have the job if he wanted it.

Heart, blood diseases mean production loss

Business and industry in the U.S. will lose about 52 million man-days of production in 1974 as a result of heart and blood vessel diseases, according to Bill Hendren and Jim Ward, co-chairmen of the Fayette County Heart Fund solicitation committee.

The lost wages and medical expenses from heart disease will cost Americans an estimated $19.7 billion.

"The problem is especially significant for men between 45 and 64," Hendren and Ward added. "This age group comprises industry's most valuable executives and employes. The loss of key personnel and critical executive skills, plus the cost of training replacement personnel, are factors no businessmen can afford to overlook," they said.

During February, American Heart Month, the Fayette County Heart Branch will join in the nationwide Heart Fund campaign to reduece premature death and disability from heart and blood vessel diseases. Area businesses will be asked to cooperate by distributing heart-saving information to personnel and contributing to the research, education and community programs of the Fayette County Heart Branch.

Heard Sunday will be held in Fayette County this weekend.

State banks use loopholes on interest

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio banks have found loopholes in the state law setting an 8 per cent ceiling on interest rates, according to Ohio Banking Supt. Steve Kohn.

Kohn said the century-old limitation is a barrier to profits by some banks and, as a result, some are taking advantage of loopholes in usury laws to widen their profit margin.

The State Commerce Department is not yet sure whether these loopholes are legal.

Kohn said one area that is being watched closely is the "add on" method of computing interest on real estate loans. The practice, which is used in some other states, allows exorbitant finance charges on mortgages and land sales.

"We're aware of the practice and we're trying to decide whether it's legitimate or not," Kohn said.

Assistant bank examiner Harold Mullen says some banks have raised their simple interest rate beyond the 8 per cent level in order to make a profit. Mullen said the division is waiting for a clarification of the statute before pressing the issue.

Under federal law, national banks are not bound by the state usury limit. They are allowed to set their interest rates according to those set by savings and loan companies in the states.

Another federal law allows national banks to charge a full 1 per cent over the going discount rate of 7.5 per cent.

State banks complain the statute gives national banks an unfair advantage. Kohn points out that consumers also suffer under the restriction.

"People are being denied mortgage loans at state banks simply because the banks cannot make a profit at 8 per cent," Kohn said.

Kohn said the growing complexity of banking regulations and current economic pressures have caused widespread bending, if not breaking, of state lending laws.

Dancer warned to leave Russia

MOSCOW (AP) — Ballet dancer Valery Panov has been warned to leave the Soviet Union immediately or face "tough administrative measures," Mrs. Galina Panov said.

But the former star character dancer with Leningrad's Kirov Ballet has repeated his refusal to abandon her, Panov's wife added Monday.

"They are trying to split us up," she said by telephone from Leningrad. "But we love each other."

The Soviet officials did not spell out what kind of measures they had in mind, she said.

Panov, a Jew, was fired from the Kirov troupe nearly two years ago when he informed the directors he wanted to emigrate. He has been deprived of work and the opportunity to dance since his dismissal.

Harsha polls district on major issues

Ohio's Sixth Congressional District residents should find a questionnaire in their mailboxes this week from Congressman William H. Harshal.

More than 150,000 survey forms were mailed from Harsha's Washington office late last week.

The Ohio lawmaker is seeking constituent opinions on nine major federal issues facing Congress this year. All questions center on domestic issues, and four deal specifically with the energy crisis: gasoline rationing, deregulation of natural gas, relaxation of auto emission standards and pollution controls, and regulation of the oil industry as a public utility.

Five others seek constituent views on whether the President should remain in office, resign or be impeached; public campaign financing; abortion; wage-price controls and no-fault insurance.

"Knowing how crucial many of these matters are to the nation, I am making a special effort to know exactly how the residents of the Sixth District stand on them," Harsha said. "I realize it may be diffucult to answer some of these questions with a simple 'yes' or 'no' as I have requested; however, that is the same decision I must make when voting on these issues. The results of this questionnaire, then, will be extremely important in helping me to make the best choice on behalf of the Sixth District when these matters are considered in the House.

"I have always been pleased with the tremendous response to past questionnaires and urge all the residents of the Sixth District to continue to give me the benefit of their good judgment," Harsha concluded.

Gander was selected as a transatlantic air base in 1935 by the British Air Ministry.

Your Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 20

ARIES
(March 21 to April 20)

In work matters, unorthodox methods will pay off and, rather surprisingly, others will see things your way.

TAURUS
(April 21 to May 21)

You MUST give some thought to the future now. Be sure to let superiors hear, in one way or another, about the extra efforts you are making.

GEMINI
(May 22 to June 21)

Extra care needed in financial matters, but do your own thinking about it. Advice from others could lead you off on false trails.

CANCER
(June 22 to July 23)

In business conferences, consider your working. Your explanation of certain matters could give others false impressions.

LEO
(July 24 to Aug. 23)

An original idea could be developed, eventually turned to profit. Along these lines, it's a good period for pushing your luck.

VIRGO
(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

Even if you are hesitating, make that business call you have in mind. Some useful information to be gleaned.

LIBRA
(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

A productive day for those engaged in highly creative activities. Some of your ideas may need revision before they become practical, however.

SCORPIO
(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

A good period for starting or developing new business associations, but take the initiative before noon. Not much cooperation later.

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

Jupiter somewhat adverse. Your judgment clouded by a personal matter. Do not make any important decisions for 48 hours.

CAPRICORN
(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

A business associate may want you to join him in an investment. Better not! This will not be a good day for venturing.

AQUARIUS
(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

Uranus influences highly inspirational. Unusual ideas could spark a brand new approach in career matters.

PISCES
(Feb. 20 to March 20)

Certain family members may seem to be rather demanding, expecting too much from you. Be as cooperative as you can. They may be under some unknown stress.

YOU BORN TODAY, as an Aquarius-Pisces cuspal (one born at the change of Signs) are a highly interesting individual, combining as you do, so many of the traits of each. You have the versatility, lively imagination and volatile personality of the Aquarian, combined with the sensitive, intuitive, deep-thinking nature of the Piscean. You are a true humanitarian and, developed on the highest plane, can make a great contribution, in one way or another, to the world at large. Excellent at research, you could succeed as a scientist, educator, writer or journalist. The outgoing side of your nature, bestowed by Aquarius, makes you an outstanding candidate for success in the entertainment field.

How important are your baby's feet?

The growth and development of your child's feet is extremely important to you as parents. It's extremely important to us, too! That's why we suggest the "Progressive Fit" with Stride Rite shoes. Stride Rite shoes provide the perfect combination of support and flexibility so necessary for the correct development of a young child's foot. There are 3 stages; the "Firstie", an extremely flexible shoe, the "Intermediate" walker with firmer sole and counter, and the "Advanced" walker that gives sturdy support to young toddler feet.

Mrs. Jim Coldiron crowned Sorority 'Sweetheart Queen'

The 1974 annual Sweetheart Dance sponsored by Zeta Upsilon chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority was held in the American Legion Hall from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Saturday. Herky Coe and The Wellingtons provided the music for dancing. Guests were greeted by Mrs. Jud Thompson and Mrs. Fred Pitzer.

The dance theme this year was "Love, Love, Love." As guests entered the danc e floor, they found themselves surrounded by red and pink hearts and cupids.

The ceiling was decorated with pink streamers and centered by a mobile of hearts. A wishing well and heart tree decorated one corner of the room. Candles in heart centerpieces were on the table. On the walls were large hearts containing the names of the Queen's Court.

The highlight of the evening came at 10 p.m. when Mrs. Robert Clary, mistress of ceremonies, welcomed the guests and introduced the 1974 Sweetheart Queen and her court.

Mrs. Jim Coldiron was crowned as the new Sweetheart Queen by last year's queen, Mrs. Fred Pitzer. Attendants were Mrs. Roger Pemberton and Mrs. Dale Wilson. New members Mrs. Dale Lowe and Mrs. Roger Snyder carried the arm bouquets of yellow roses and Mrs. Bill Wood the queen's pin. Mr. and Mrs. Coldiron led the dance.

Mrs. Jim Dunn was dance chairman. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Snyder, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Weight Watchers plan 'free' meetings

"Weight Watchers" will conduct a series of free open meetings the week of Monday, February 25 through Saturday, March 2.

Overweight ladies, teens and man may visit all area locations that week. Although registration is possible during Open House Week (persons with at least 10 pounds to lose may join a "Weight Watchers" class at any time), guests at Open House are welcome to "just visit".

WEIGHT WATCHERS INTERNATIONAL is in its 11th year of helping the overweight. This special Open House is designed to permit prospective members to gain insight into the highly successful "Weight Watchers" group approach to permanent weight control. Area locations free to visitors from February 25 through March 2 include: Washington Court House, St. Andrew's Episcopal Church, Route 41, South, Tuesday 7:30 p.m.; Sabina: Sabina Methodist Church, Elm St., Monday 7:30 p.m.; Greenfield: First Methodist Church, South St., Wednesday 7:30 p.m. For further imformation call Toll-Free 800-582-7026.

"Weight Watchers" staff will demonstrate classroom techniques to visitors and will introduce successful members—some of whom have lost in excess of 100 pounds each. Members will model the "before" clothes worn prior to their weight loss. New recipes designed for the weight-conscious will be distributed free.

The successful "Weight Watchers" Eating Program will be discussed. Based upon the latest research in nutrition, it permits controlled quantities of cereal, mayonnaise, margarine, banana, potato, rice—and other foods normally thought to be "taboos" for those watching their weight. Of interest to guests will be discussion of the newest additions to the program: pork, ham, fruits canned in their own juices, dried beans, soybeans, etc.

Emphasis will be placed on the ability to eat properly on a tight budget. Nutritional meat substitutes are one device for reducing grocery bills as well as weight. Budget-watching recipes will be distributed also.

PERSONALS

Mr. and Mrs. B.E. Kelley were in Columbus Sunday where they attended the annual meeting of the State Natural Food Association, of which Mr. Kelley is parlimentarian. He was re-elected state director for three years after having served as a state director of the organization for 16 years. Mrs. Kelley upon request of the state president, offered prayer for the opening the meeting.

Cambodian Reds driven from school

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — The Cambodian command said today its troops had driven Khmer Rouge insurgents from the Kompong Kantuot secondary school 13 miles southwest of Phnom Penh after a week of fighting.

Military sources reported more than 120 rebels and 38 government soldiers were killed and 68 government men were wounded.

The command said its troops occupied the school briefly, then pulled back under heavy attack so air force planes could bomb insurgent positions.

The Khmer Rouge occupied the high school a month ago when they began to move up toward Phnom Penh from the south.

Meanwhile, government troops were reported on three sides of an insurgent force nine miles northwest of Phnom Penh, and a large government unit was moving down from the north in an attempt to cut the rebels' escape route.

The Khmer Rouge ambushed a 10-vessel convoy headed for Phnom Penh on the Mekong River Monday and blew up an ammunition barge, wounding the Filipino barge captain and four Korean sailors. Earlier the Phnom Penh port authority said the captain had been killed, but Philippine Embassy officials said he was only slightly wounded.

FIREMEN SET FIRE! — But they put it out after the house burned to the ground. This was a part of the Fire Service Training course which Lt. Dave Seaman of the Washington C.H. department is conducting for the Wayne Toiwnship Fire Department.

Training has practical aspect

Three Washington C.H. firemen had an opportunity to SET a fire for a change!

The house they burned down played a part in the Trade and Industrial "Fire Service Training' course which Lt. Dave Seaman from the Washington C.H. department is conducting for the benefit of the Wayne Township Fire Department at Good Hope. The abandoned house was in the Good Hope area.

Seaman already had conducted seven weeks of classroom instruction before the practical testing for the 12 men involved.

Stress was put on: working together, use of the self-contained mask in a smoke filled house, use of larger fire hose, rescue procedures, extinguishing small, difficult to reach, fires and ventilation, which means, knocking a hole in the roof to clear the lower part of the burning house of smoke.

Lt. Seaman was assisted by Firemen Jim Sever and E.J. Helt. Lt. Seaman commented that the men of the Wayne Township Fire Department did a fine job.

This Saturday Lt. Seaman will be assisted by Lt. John Rockhold and Fireman Jim Sever in conducting another practical test for the Concord-Green Fire Department.

City gains $94,402 from court revenues

Figures released by Municipal Court Clerk Ruth Pearce show that the court added $94,402.08 to the city's treasury during 1973, plus another $21,481.07 to the county treasury.

Other disbursements included $2,717.65 to the treasury of the State of Ohio, $2,855.70 to surrounding villages, $1,835 to the state divisions of liquor and narcotics, and $4,000 to the Fayette County Law Library.

Total 1973 collections by the Municipal Court were $150,591.62. This included $49,912.71 in Highway Patrol fines, $44,656 in city case fines, $27,997.03 in court costs, $19,979.80 from state cases, $2,855.70 from cases for surrounding villages, and $1,835 from narcotics and liquor violations.

A total of 4,212 criminal cases were disposed of in Municipal Court during 1973, resulting in the collection of $122,183.59 in fines and $28,408.03 in court costs. In addition, the court settled 187 civil disputes involving $4,834.45.

The 4,212 criminal cases represented a 23 per cent increase over the number of cases disposed of during 1972.

Prayer breakfast series continues

Seventy-two teens and teachers attending the Teen Prayer Breakfast at the South Side Church of Christ were led in a spiritual examination by the Rev. Charles J. Richmond at the close of the meditation time. In spiritual grammar of the heavenly school he said, "First Person is He (Jesus), second person you, third person, I; and the way to spell joy is Jesus first, others second, and yourself last.

"Sherry Hunter, a sophomore at WSHS, led the singing, and Cindy Van Meter, a junior at WSHS, played the piano. Tom Everhart, junior at MTHS, offered prayer.

Michelle Davis, sophomore at WSHS, gave the student devotional on "Three Approaches to Love." She said there is the "If Approach, the Because Approach, and the Anyhow Approach." The next prayer breakfast will be next Tuesday at 6:45 a.m.

Julie back with family

WASHINGTON (AP) — With her entire family escorting her, Julie Nixon Eisenhower has been moved from Indiana University Hospital to a suite at the White House.

President Nixon flew from a public appearance in Huntsville, Ala., to give his ailing daughter a lift from Indianapolis to the capital by presidential motorcade, plane and helicopter on Monday.

Mrs. Eisenhower, who underwent surgery for a bleeding ovarian cyst at Indianapolis last Thursday, went right to bed in a second-floor suite, with doctors and a nurse from the White House medical dispensary on call if needed.

During the hour's flight to Washington, Mrs. Eisenhower rested in a bedroom of the presidential jet plane, visiting with members of her family.

'Tecumseh' auditions scheduled Saturday

CHILLICOTHE — Open auditions for the 1974 season of the outdoor drama "Tecumseh!" will be held Saturday in the Mount Logan room of the Holiday Inn on Business Route 23 north of Chillicothe.

Beginning at 8 a.m., the audition will run until 5 p.m. and will be continued on Sunday if necessary to accommodate the expected turnout.

Acting positions are available for 70 men and 20 women at $45 to $125 per week. Persons auditioning should memorize a one minute selection from a contemporary play and be prepared to demonstrate coordination and ability in physical movement.

"Tecumseh!" rehearsals will begin June 1, and the drama will run from June 22 through Aug. 31.

"Tecumseh!" auditions will also be held in Cincinnati on Feb. 28 and March 1 at the regional Southeastern Theatre Conference auditions, in Chapel Hill, N. C., on March 23 at The Institute of Outdoor Drama auditions, and in New York City in April for professional members of Actors' Equity.

Latin American unity looms behind meeting

MEXICO CITY, Mexico (AP) — A sense of unity and purpose appears to be emerging among the 24 Latin American and Caribbean foreign ministers preparing to meet this week with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

"Although we have an eight-point program to discuss, there is one item not on the agenda which I know is in the minds of us all: Latin-American solidarity," Foreign Minister Emilio O. Rabasa of Mexico told his colleagues after being elected president of the conference Monday.

"Our dialogue with Kissinger will be on an equal footing of absolute mutual respect and understanding. We seek coordination and not subordination."

Kissinger said in a message to the conference on Monday that "there may be differences between us on some points" when they meet Thursday, Friday and Saturday. But "we in the Americas have a singular opportunity to demonstrate how countries can constructively cooperate for mutual benefit despite their differences."

A newsman asked Foreign Minister Victor Gomez of the Dominican Republic what he hoped would come from the conference.

"That the United States will now treat us as brothers and not sons," he replied. "We want less paternalism and more comprehension."

The eight-point agenda the ministers have prepared includes such touchy topics as the activities of big U.S. corporations abroad and Washington's economic reprisals for nationalization of U.S. investments.

Urge engineers to fight shortage

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Vice President Gerald R. Ford has urged American engineers to use their ingenuity to solve the energy shortage.

Ford told a meeting of Chattanooga-area engineers that there is no shortage of American engineering talent, only a shortage of time.

"Fortunately, in this crisis as in similar situations in the past, ingenuity can be a substitute for time," Ford said Monday night.

Among the challenges Ford assigned to the engineers were finding ways to stop waste of energy.

Money Does Matter . . .
By David C. Six

FAITH AND CONFIDENCE — A MUST IN THE WORLD OF MONEY!

Modern day banking — in spite of the trend to mechanization and computerization — is, if successful, thoroughly dependent on mutual understanding and faith.

The successful banker, and everyone who works with him in his organization, knows this — knows that each customer is an "individual" and must be recognized as such.

When so much of the rest of our lives seems to get more and more impersonalized, the handling of our money matters on a personal, confidential basis gets ever more important.

Modern day successful bankers welcome the opportunity to counsel with you and to offer the advice and guidance in money matters so important to better living.

Best wishes to "Whippie" and his Master, Fred St. Clair, on becoming a champion.

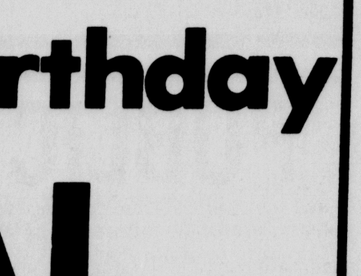

Our congratulations to Roger Allen for taking part in the National Advisory Council on Vocational Education.

We regret Bob Mayer has a broken ankle. However, he has learned to use our Bank-By-Mail Service.

Congratulations to Diane Sagar, Connie Stayrook, and The Washington and Miami Trace Student Bodies for a successful Queen of Hearts Campaign.

There is that which is more important than our money at The First National Bank of Washington Court House — more valued than all of the carefully planned conveniences and our complete service.

Most valued is the personal "individual" confidential relationships we are privileged to have with our customers — their faith and confidence with us!

Miscellaneous jobs on road, street agenda

Several miscellaneous tasks have been scheduled by city street, county road and state highway crews this week.

Bill Duncan, general foreman of the city street department, said his workers will clear brush from alleys throughout Washington C.H. in addition to spreading stone and repairing holes in those alleys.

Duncan said his crews will also be cleaning catch basins and working on other miscellaneous jobs.

Workers from the Ohio Department of Transportation garage in Fayette County will be sealing cracks on Ohio 753 and possibly on Ohio 734, west of Jeffersonville, according to superintendent Gene Fitzpatric.

The state highway crews will be repairing and replacing guardrail on I-71 in addition to operating trash crews, patching in various locations throughout Fayette County and spot berming.

Fitzpatric said three workers are still manning an electricade at the I-71-U.S. 35 interchange area where a crane collided with an overpass. He said beams have been installed and the construction workers are now welding.

County road workmen will be working on a bridge on the Davids Road in Jasper Township and completing the Hartman ditch project on Waterloo Road, according to Charles P. Wagner, Fayette County engineer.

Wagner said the crews will also be working on a drainage project on Waterloo Road in addition to cutting trees in various locations throughout the county and building a fence along Robinson Road.

Shrine Club to entertain Temple Divan

The Washington Shrine Club will entertain the illustrious potentate of Aladdin Temple and members of the Temple's official family at a Ladies Night Party Feb. 22 in the Mahan Building on the Fairground.

Noble Robert W. McArthur, club president, said the party is the outstanding social event of the club year, and that about 180 persons will attend.

Charles A. Dinwiddie, 1974 potentate of Columbus-based Aladdin Temple and leader of more than 14,500 Nobles of the Mystic Shrine in central-southeastern Ohio, plus other Temple representatives, will be honored guests at the dinner-dance.

Aladdin is one of 172 Temples in the Ancient Arabic Order, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. It has 40 Shrine clubs and 14 special units in its jurisdiction and supports the 19 crippled children's hospitals and three burns institutes.

Crippled and badly burned children are accepted regardless of race, color or creed if their parents cannot afford hospital treatment. The entire cost of treating every young patient is borne by the Shrine.

Aladdin Temple and its Shrine clubs send seriously disabled youngsters to the Hospital for Crippled Children at Lexington, Ky., or the Burns Institute at Cincinnati.

McArthur said Dinwiddie's Divan is composed of the following elected officers: Donald R. Waters, chief rabban; Ralph C. Linscott, assistant rabban; Charles A. Weber, high priest and prophet; Bruce Jenkins, Oriental guide; James J. Harbage, treasurer, and Richard E. Goudy, recorder.

Appointed members of the 1974 Divan are Robert E. Hill, first ceremonial master; Robert O. Snyder, second ceremonial master; Robert T. Southwick, marshal; Ralph B. Hornberger, Jr., captain of the guard; Thurman W. Garrett, outer guard, and Edwin S. Naus, chaplain.

Members of the Washington Shrine Club are requested to return their unused tickets for the Aladdin Shrine Circus to McArthur or to Dana Hyer, the circus chairman. The tickets will be used to take under-privile ged children to the Shrine Circus.

City superintendent gets new 3-year contract

EDWIN M. NESTOR

The Washington C.H. City Board of Education Monday night unanimously agreed to re-employ superintendent Edwin M. Nestor on a new three-year contract.

Board members, following an agenda of miscellaneous matters, recessed for less than 10 minutes to discuss re-employing the city superintendent.

Nestor, 1730 Green Valley Rd., was offered the three-year contract at a salary of $20,500 per year. Nestor, former principal at Washington Senior High School, replaced Marshall D. Boggs as city superintendent Aug. 1, 1972. The new three-year contract will become effective Aug. 1.

The board also heard a report from Hank Shaffer, director of the new community education program in Washington C.H.

Shaffer told board members that Washington C.H. City Council is expected to provide $3,000 for the operation of the summer recreation program here. The summer recreation program, which now becomes a part of the community education concept, will open June 1 and continue through Aug. 31 at Eyman Park, Shaffer said. The school board will enter into a formal contract with the city regarding the summer recreation program at a later date. The budget for the summer program was also discussed.

ALONG the same lines, the board adopted a resolution of acceptance for funds contributed for the community education program. Nestor said that, although the donations came from anonymous sources, it would appear a resolution would be necessary for the $6,000 forwarded from the Washington Savings Bank for the program.

The board approved an addendum to the city school's personal leave policy for teachers. In compliance with an Ohio Attorney General's opinion, Nestor recommended that a reason be required on future written requests for personal leave. The item was tabled for further study at the last board meeting.

The policy requires that personal leave be granted for family, religious or moral obligations, personal business, special events or occasions which occur once a year and special education or professional meetings other than those provided by the board under the professional leave policy.

Nestor reported to the board on two pieces of legislation regarding education that are currently being considered in the Ohio House of Representatives. He said one is House Bill No. 1060 which pertains to unemployment compensation for 9 and 10-month employes such as teachers. The other is House Bill No. 961 which would make instruction on venereal disease mandatory in public schools. The legislation would require the subject in health classes for grades 7-12.

IN OTHER MATTERS:

The board approved the purchase of video tape equipment. The cost of the recorder, camera and monitor is $1,700 and one-third of the cost is supplied by federal funds;

Authorized the rental of school facilities, with a nominal fee for lighting, to Mrs. Beulah Hill, area home economist, the junior high auditorium Friday, April 26, for the annual 4-H Style Review. The activity is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. and is an educational project with no admission charge; to Richard Kimmet to conduct a Board of Elections seminar for poll workers before the May primary election in the junior high cafeteria April 22-23 from 8 until 10 p.m.; to Jack Sommers to use the junior high auditorium and five classrooms for a 4-H officers and advisers conference from 7 until 9 p.m. March 19, and to the Fayette Bible Church to use the junior high gym from 7 until 10 p.m. Feb. 22 for basketball games:

Agreed that no official action is needed on a proposal offered by the City Teachers Association to become affiliated with the credit union at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base;

Reviewed a proposed calendar for the 1974-75 school year. The proposed calendar, which includes the required 180 days of student instruction and 185 contract, has school opening on Sept. 3 and closing June 4;

Discussed a mini workshop program held at Washington Senior High School. The activity, arranged by Mrs. Karen French, Chris Henkle, David Mustine, Jeff Willis and David Bryan,. was conducted Feb. 14;

GRANTED a request to Mrs. Linda Edwards, home economics teacher at WSHS, to attend a consumer education conference in Columbus March 15;

Approved reimbursement to Gary Shaffer for courses he took at Xavier University, Cincinnati;

Heard a report concerning the Feb. 14 meeting of the Eastside PTO in which an expenditure from the organization's treasury of more than $2,600 was approved. The money will supply designated items of school equipment including audio-visual and playground equipment;

Granted tentative approval to the Washington C.H. Jaycees for sponsoring the Lewis Brothers circus June 22 on the high school grounds;

Heard a report from Nestor in which he said advertising is proceeding for a new 66-passenger school bus with an automatic transmission. He said the automatic transmission will cost $748 and that the state will provide $700 of the cost;

Learned that a 2,500-pound ship's anchor has arrived at the senior high school along with 90 feet of anchor chain; and

Approved the monthly financial report, prepared by Mrs. Thelma Elliott.

WCH board eyes technical school

Members of the Washington C.H. City Board of Education Monday night discussed plans toward establishing a technical college at Laurel Oaks Joint Vocational School in Wilmington following action by the Ohio Board of Regents last week.

The Ohio Board of Regents has adopted a resolution to begin preliminary planning for a general and technical college to serve Fayette, Clinton, Highland, Brown and Adams counties.

Meeting on the University of Cincinnati campus Friday, the board called upon the University of Cincinnati, Wilmington College, proponents of a technical college at the former Clinton County Air Force Base near Wilmington and interested residents to study the feasibility of a new institution to serve the five-county area.

The Ohio Board of Regents also mentioned the new University of Cincinnati Tri-County Academic Center being constructed at Macon in southern Brown County as a possible site in addition to the Laurel Oaks Career Development campus at Wilmington.

Dr. James A. Norton, board chancellor, said an original suggestion that the University of Cincinnati's Raymond Walters and Clermont County branches be part of a new technical school district has been dropped.

Attending the meeting from Fayette County Friday at the University of Cincinnati were Kenneth Payton, president of the Fayette County Board of Education; Robert Highfield, a member of the City Board of Education; Edwin M. Nestor, superintendent of Washington C.H. city schools; Guy M. Foster, superintendent of the Miami Trace School District, and Jim Dunn, executive vice president of the Washington C.H. Area Chamber of Commerce.

Fred L. Domenico, a member of the City Board of Education who serves on the Great Oaks Joint Vocational School Board, explained to borad members Monday night that there has been quite a political struggle during the past year in regard to launching plans for establishing the proposed technical college, which would provide a 13th and 14th year of education for students in the five-county area.

"It's a step in the right direction," Domenico said. He also mentioned that the proposed technical college could quite possibly develop into a branch college after it has been established.

Kiwanians consider projects

The monthly board of directors meeting was held by the Washington C.H. Kiwanis Club Monday night following dinner in the Lafayette Inn.

President George Gibbs said routine reports were heard and approved, and all bills were paid.

Guy M. Foster reported to Kiwanians that under the club's Major Emphasis program, which is designed to help the county's elderly, the first consignment of library books will be delivered to one of the Washington C.H. area nursing homes Wednesday. Mrs. Kris Amsbary, librarian at the Carnegie Public Library, is coordinating the program for Kiwanians.

Vocational guidance chairman Mike Campbell reported on a proposal offered by the Future Farmers of America chapter at Miami Trace High School to participate in a vocational project with the Kiwanis Club.

Members are to consider what project would be the most worthwhile for the community.

Campbell also reported on the upcoming Science Fair at Miami Trace, and club members agreed to donate $15 for the project as well as furnish judges.

In closing, President Gibbs announced three ladies nights to be held March 4, March 25 and April 1. Four members of the London Kiwanis Club attended Monday night's meeting.

Mindszenty plans visit to America

VIENNA (AP) — Joszef Cardinal Mindszenty plans to visit the United States later this year.

The 82-year-old cardinal was relieved two weeks ago by Pope Paul VI as archbishop of Estergom and primate of Hungary.

The cardinal's visit was planned "a long time ago" and prior to the Pope's decision, an aide to the cardinal said Monday.

Monsignor Tibor Mesaros said the visit was "to give courage and confidence" to the many Americans of Hungarian origin.

School choirs entertain at Junior High

Choirs from Washington Senior High School and three city elementary schools staged an impressive concert Saturday night at the Washington Junior High School auditorium.

The 50-voice Washington Senior High School choir, under the direction of Charles L. Shaffer, was featured during the first portion of the program before a crowd which nearly filled the lower floor of the auditorium.

The elementary school choir, comprised of 45 students from Belle-Aire, Cherry Hill and Sunnyside schools and directed by Mrs. Gene Hughes, presented seven numbers including two melodies before the choirs combined for the program finale.

Six numbers were presented by the WSHS choir at the beginning of the program. The choir opened with "Let There Be Peace on Earth" and closed with the popular "Superstar."

Numbers presented by the elementary choir were "I Feel A Song Coming On," "Side by Side," and "Singing in the Rain," and an arrangement of the "Caisson Song" and the "Marine Corps Hymn." Mrs. Hughes said all seven numbers performed by the elementary school choir were sung in harmony parts.

Latonda Bailey, a sixth grader at Belle-Aire Elementary School, sang two numbers before the combined performance of both choirs. Latonda, who had been ill with the flu all week before the performance, was quite a hit in the 1972 Christmas concert, and Mrs. Hughes had received several requests for the youngster to perform again.

The combined choirs performed two numbers before ending with "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," arranged by Wilhousky. The choirs were accompanied by two pianists, the pipe organ and a drummer for the closing number.

The pianists were Mrs. Ralph Yerian and Mrs. Sidney Terhune and the organist was Mrs. John Case. Scott Lanum, a sophomore at WSHS, played the drums.

Diane Sagar, a WSHS senior, accompanied the high school choir. Sound effects were provided by Mike Hughes.

Money raised from the 50-cent donation asked at the door will go into both choir funds. Mrs. Hughes said she hopes to purchase robes for the elementary choir from the fund.

SLATES VISIT — John Pirozzi, Wittenberg University's associate dean of admissions, will visit students at Fayette County high schools on Wednesday, March 6. He will be at Washington Senior High School at 9:30 a.m. and at Miami Trace High School at 11 a.m. Pirozzi will answer questions concerning the university and its academic programs. Wittenberg is a private liberal arts university located in Springfield.

Loan delinquents spurt, prove worrisome

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The sharp rise in loan delinquency rates that began in November and December comes as a disappointment but no surprise to those who have been analyzing the condition of household finances.

They knew that families had built up an unusual amount of debt in the past two or three years and that many of them had no cushion at all to protect them from a nasty financial comedown.

In the latter part of 1973 many families rapidly began reducing their debt load, but figures released by the American Bankers Association — ABA — show clearly that a good many of them were overtaken by the economic slump.

The ABA said delinquences rose to 2.53 per cent of the number of outstanding instalment loans on December 31, the highest in the 10 years the statistical series has been kept. Last October the rate was 2.12 per cent.

Similar findings are revealed by other sources. Home mortgage delinquencies, for example, have begun to rise slightly even though the rate remains in the vicinity of 1 per cent.

The tipoff that problems might be developing came during 1972 when lenders saw a sharp increase in the amount of instalment credit outstanding in relation to disposable personal income.

Historically, the percentage of debt to disposable income has been less than 1.5 per cent. In the 1960s that ratio was exceeded only in 1965, when it reached 1.82 per cent.

But the percentage rose to more than 2 per cent in 1972, and when 1973 figures are complete they probably will show a rate of about 2.25 per cent.

At least one well known economic consultant, Lionel D. Edie & Co., terms the increase alarming and maintains that the condition is even worse when instalment credit and mortgage debt are added in.

New mortgage debt for the household sector of the economy has been rising at an annual rate of $40 billion during the past two years, Edie notes, compared to only $24 billion in 1971.

While the over-all downturn in the economy, including layoffs, is blamed for the situation, it has been worsed by particular factors. The gasoline shortage is clearly producing household crises.

William Ford, chief economist for the bankers association, commented:

"The gasoline shortage has been particularly troublesome because it has triggered sharp declines in the resale value of cars, particularly large ones, and recreational vehicles, which further compound the delinquency problem."

Automobile repossessions rose during November and December, a time when the ABA claims they usually decline. It noted the biggest delinquency rate of any category was the 3.54 per cent for mobile homes.

To some extent the situation might correct itself. Individuals react almost instinctively to economic conditions, reducing their spending — if they can — when they feel threatened by adverse conditions. At the same time, lenders become more selective.

But for those already committed to spending projects there is no recourse but to get the money up. And the statistics show that a good many Americans are having trouble doing that.

California town hates newcomers

VENICE, Calif. (AP) — Most towns would welcome them: the well-showered, well-paid middle class with their sports cars and their behaved children.

But in Venice — discovered by the Beatniks in the '50s, flower children in the '60s and inhabited by enclaves of blacks and Mexican-Americans — old-time residents resent the coming of the middle class and the high cost of living that accompanies them.

Venice is Los Angeles' bohemian "slum by the sea." First built in 1904, it became part of the City of Los Angeles in 1925 and was patterned after the Italian city of palazzos and gondoliers.

But its fortunes declined in the 1930s and the poor moved into its ramshackle cottages, and its canals and bridges fell apart.

In the last several years modern apartment houses have been built along the entire beachfront, attracting wellheeled residents with sleek sports cars.

One black man says: "When I first came to Venice, I lived in a place over by the canals that rented for $90 a month. Now it rents for $200. The cat who rented it could pay $350 if he wanted to. He just wants to live in Venice because he thinks it's funky. Cats like him move in here and pay so much, they've priced the poor people right outa sight."

One property owner complained at a Town Council meeting recently: "Our community is in imminent peril of being wiped out by an anonymous band of speculators who see a bonanza on this strip of land."

It's a simple matter of supply and demand, says developer J. Allen Radford, whose 10-story apartment building looms over the 50-year-old cottages.

"There's only so much land near the water — anything near it is going to keep increasing in value," he says. "There are some poor people down there now, but they won't get to remain by the water. The property is too valuable. They'll have to go."

Average property assessments went up 50 per cent last year, the city says. Tax bills went up as much as $1,000.

One newer resident, a young man living with an older woman, says: "Venice is the only place where it costs a lot to live poor. We're paying $385 here by the beach. It's worth it. For example, we can live out of wedlock if we want to, and no one says a thing about it."

Another new resident is a woman who first saw Venice as she rode her bicycle south from her expensive home in Pacific Palisades.

"I wanted to move here...and my husband said absolutely not. So I came without him," she says.

"I'll never go back to a sterile, boring, hostile, lonely suburb again. My husband and I are getting a divorce. He's a stockbroker. He comes by my house in his Citroen-Maserati and honks the horn for the kids to come out.

"He can't stand Venice."

Negotiations set on steel contracts

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — The basic steel contract negotiations between the United Steelworkers and the Big 10 producers are turning this week to the plant level where local USW officers have the power to call a strike to support demands on local issues.

However, strike talk has not been heard, observers say.

Big boost in oil prices proves boon to 'stripper'

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP) — Jess Douglas says he has long struggled to succeed with his nine marginal oil wells like "a farmer making a living on 40 acres."

But like a small farmer who finds his crop suddenly in short supply, Douglas now is reaping big profits from soaring crude oil prices spurred by the energy crisis.

Six months ago, Douglas' monthly production of 500 to 600 barrels from his nine "stripper" wells brought $2.10 a barrel, 38 cents less than the price 16 years earlier.

Douglas says he had to work 12-to 16-hour days and trim costs by inventing his own tools to earn a decent living for his family of four.

By December, Standard Oil of California was paying $3.76 a barrel. "Three years ago $3 would have been a fantasy thought," Douglas said.

The "fantasy" price doubled again and then some, reaching $8 a barrel early this year as the government lifted price controls on stripper wells and new oil production.

Stripper wells such as Douglas owns produce less than 10 barrels a day. With 350,000 of them nationwide, they provide 13 per cent of the country's domestic production, the National Stripper Well Association estimates.

In California's San Joaquin Valley, where Douglas pumps his oil, 63 per cent of the 24,000 wells are strippers, the state Division of Oil and Gas says.

Douglas realizes the high prices may not last. But even if prices slip to $5 a barrel, he plans to resume drilling for new wells. His last was drilled in 1968.

"All along I kept thinking someday all my work would pay off," Douglas said. "And now I am getting some gravy, and I think I deserve it considering the years and years of struggle."

Song group's plane ransacked at Akron

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — While the Seals and Crofts performed at Kent State University Monday night, someone ransacked their plane at Akron Municipal Airport, stealing $1,200 in cash, a number of personal items, plus a sachel of signed, blank checks.

Police said the four-engine plane belonging to the popular rock group arrived about 5:30 p.m. and remained until midnight.

Wellston, Elyria teacher strikes both come to end

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Both the Wellston and Elyria teacher strikes have been settled and the school systems expected students to return to classes today.

A tentative agreement was reached late Monday night in the Elyria dispute and the almost 500 members of the Elyria Education Association met at 1 this morning to ratify the contract.

The contents of the Elyria agreement were not disclosed.

When the agreement was announced, Judge Harold S. Ewing called off a scheduled hearing on a back-to-work order requested by the Elyria Board of Education. The board also sought $15,000 a day in fines from the teachers for each of the 14 days they were on strike.

The Elyria Board of Education was to meet at 6 this morning to approve the agreement.

The Elyria walkout affected about 14,000 students.

The Wellston Teachers' Association, which has about 100 members, voted to accept a new contract early Monday. Agreement came after a daylong session between the school board and the teachers' association with Jackson County Common Pleas Judge Thomas Mitchell presiding.

Mitchell called the settlement fair and equitable and said it covered such things as teacher and administrative tenure and contract validity. The agreement grants new four-year contracts to the six administrators. Days lost during the strike, which began two weeks ago, will be made up later in the school year and the teachers will not lose any pay.

The Wellston walkout affected 2,000 pupils.

Bill McQueen, president of the Wellston teachers group, called the agreement a victory for the teachers, saying they received everything they wanted.

Agents take gunfire tests at KSU

KENT, Ohio (AP)—Nearly four years ago the sound of rifle fire was heard on the Kent State University campus and the result was four persons dead and nine persons wounded.

Monday weapons fire was heard again as Justice Department officials tried to partially recreate the May 1970 shooting incident in which antiwar demonstrators clashed with the Ohio National Guard. A justice department spokesman said the results of the study will be presented to the grand jury.

The federal investigators fired Ml rifles loaded with blanks and blank shotgun shells in a small cannon-like device. Persons stood where the guardsmen and the victims stood on the day of the original incident. Tape recordings of the sounds were made.

However, unlike the day of the demonstrations staged to protest the U.S. military invasion of Cambodia, there were very few other onlookers on campus because of the Presidents holiday.

Paul Lawrence, a Justice Department investigator, said the aim was to compare the current recordings with a tape recording made at a nearby dormitory during the actual shootings.

Lawrence said the cannonlike device was used to provide a comparison with the M1 rifle fire. Observers said the investigators were interested in the sounds of the gun fire as well as the reverberations. The day of the incident the guardsmen were armed with M1 rifles.

A building has been constructed in the area since the original incident, but Lawrence would not comment on whether that would have an effect on the sound. Lawrence said the temperature and wind differences between Monday's chilly, damp weather and the spring like weather in 1970 would have little effect on the current recordings.

This is the fourth known visit to the campus made by the Justice Department since the probe began. On the first visit the jury was taken to the site of the shootings. Later, federal representatives took a series of photos and measurements. In the third known visit, federal personnel set off firecrackers and recorded the blasts and echoes.

The federal grand jury, which was convened in Cleveland Dec. 18, recessed for two weeks and is scheduled to resume its hearings Feb. 25.

This is the first federal grand jury investigation into the incident. A state probe, called shortly after the shootings, found no fault with the guardsmen's actions. Former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell refused to investigate the matter in 1971. However, former Atty. Gen. Elliot Richardson ordered the Justice Department to reopen a study last year. The present grand jury was convened Dec. 18.

Ohio Veterinary Association sets annual meeting

The 90th annual meeting of the Ohio Veterinary Medical Association is expected to attract more than 1,500 veterinarians when it opens Saturday at the Sheraton-Columbus Motor Hotel.

Dr. William E. Covert, health commissioner of Fayette, Pike and Ross counties, will be one of several Ohio veterinarians taking part in the program.

Veterinarians from throughout Ohio and adjoining states will be in Columbus for the four-day meeting to learn of the latest developments in their profession. Emphasis will be placed on the role of the veterinarian in modern society in protecting the health and welfare of humans as well as animals.

A special session will be held Monday on the veterinarian as a public health administrator and his relation to community health. Participants will cover the history and development of public health in Ohio, organization and programming of Ohio health departments and the role of the veterinarian in the community health program.

Peru to pay U.S. firms $130 million

LIMA, Peru (AP) — The Peruvian government is going to pay United States companies about $130 million for assets it expropriated in the past five years, informed sources say.

A Foreign Ministry spokesman said a compensation agreement would be signed today in Lima by Foreign Minister Miguel Angel de la Flor and James Greene, New York banker and special envoy from President Nixon. The amount of money was not announced.

The sources said Peru's payments would be financed by a loan, probably repayable over 10 years, from the First National City Bank of New York, the Chemical Bank and the First National Bank of Boston.

The properties are six mines owned by Cerro Corp.; a chemical plant, a paper pulp factory and two sugar estates owned by W. R. Grace & Co.; a Morrison Knudsen construction firm; and six fishmeal plants belonging to International Proteins, Starkist, Heinz, Cargill, General Mills and Goldkist, the sources said.

Two oilfields and a petroleum refinery operated by Exxon's International Petroleum Co. were nationalized five years ago, but the agreement does not include them. The government recognized that the oil properties had a book value of about $100 million but claimed the company had been exploiting the fields illegally for 40 years and refused to pay compensation.

SCOUTING'S 64th ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION

"Do A Good Turn Daily..."

It works because practice makes perfect, and daily means every day. Boy Scouts get into the habit of looking for ways to help others, until the habit of helpfulness becomes a way of life. The boy grows into a man who cares . . . and shows it!

The best part about a good turn is that it's good for the boy. He feels better about himself because he can help other people. He learns he can really make a difference in shaping a better world. He doesn't stop at one a day. He's always finding new ways to do good . . . and doing them for his fellow men.

A SCOUT IS... TRUSTWORTHY

Whether at work or at play our dealings with other people are based on trust. If we can't trust people, the great work of strengthening the American way of life would soon come to an end. We want to be worthy of great trust.

Vanderbilt tops Auburn

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Vanderbilt helped end one era and hoped to start one of its own.

"I think we are on the way up now," said Vanderbilt Coach Roy Skinner after the fourth-ranked Commodores, leaders in the Southeastern Conference, beat Auburn 89-79 in college basketball Monday night.

One team headed in the opposite direction is Kentucky.

The Wildcats, the dominant force in SEC basketball for 41 years, were eliminated from the 1974 title race through the combination of Vanderbilt's victory and Kentucky's 61-60 loss to Mississippi.

Kentucky, which owns 28 SEC basketball crowns and four national championships, was the SEC representative in the NCAA Tournament the past six seasons. The Wildcats are 8-6 in the conference this year.

Vanderbilt's victory raised its SEC record to 13-1, one game ahead of eighth-rated Alabama, which beat Louisiana State University 99-87.

In other games involving Top 20 clubs, second-ranked Notre Dame knocked off Western Michigan 85-68; 10th-rated Indiana downed Illinois 101-83, and No. 16 Kansas beat Oklahoma 98-80.

Any combination of Vanderbilt victories and Alabama defeats adding up to three will steer the Commodores boat into NCAA waters for the second time in history.

Jeff Fosnes tossed in 23 points to lead the Commodores to their 11th straight victory, equalling a school record for consecutive triumphs.

Freshman Gary Yoder stole the ball and dropped in a last-minute lay-up that gave Mississippi the victory over Kentucky.

Rickey Brown, playing 22 minutes, hit all 11 of his free throws en route to a 21-point evening and grabbed six rebounds to lead Alabama to its 12th SEC victory in 14 outings.

Notre Dame shook off a sluggish first half that produced a 37-37 halftime tie and went on to the victory over Western Michigan.

John Shumate had 26 points and 14 rebounds while freshman Adrian Dantley contributed 23 points and 11 rebounds.

Quinn Buckner's 14 assists and Scott May's 26 points helped Indiana break open a 48-40 game at the half and blow past Illinois.

Indiana pushed its first-place record in the Big Ten to 9-1, 173, over-all, while Illinois lost its 11th straight game, which broke a school record for consecutive defeats.

Kansas rode the long-range shooting of Dale Greenlee and Roger Morningstar to its victory over Oklahoma for the Jayhawks' ninth Big Eight victory in nine games, tying Kansas State for the conference lead.

Elsewhere in college basketball, four of Tennessee's starting five shot in double figures to lead the Volunteers past Florida 85-57; Jerry Nichols poured in 20 points to pace Purdue, one-half game behind Indiana in the Big Ten race, to a 99-78 decision over Iowa; James "Fly" Williams and Danny Odums combined for 48 points in Austin Peay's 96-71 victory over Tennessee Tech, and Carlton Mack's lay-up with 34 seconds left gave Richmond an 84-83 victory over West Virginia.

Waldrop runs 3:55 mile; unimpressed

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Tony Waldrop, professing that he's "tired of running all these sub-four minutes," is the new fastest indoor miler. But he's unimpressed.

"I'm still just a country boy from North Carolina," said the gangling, sandy-haired Waldrop. "I really didn't think I could run that fast.

"I'm on top today, but I could be on the bottom tomorrow." The University of North Carolina senior ran the indoor mile in three minutes, 55 seconds Sunday night, erasing the 3:56.4 mark set by Tom O'Hara in 1964 and equaled by Jim Ryun in 1971. Waldrop had run an unprecedented four straight sub-four minute miles going into the San Diego indoor games.

Afterward, he told newsmen, "I'm tired of running all these sub-four minutes. There's a lot of pressure, and I don't like pressure. That's why I'll never try the Olympics again." As a sophomore, he competed in the Olympics and says "it wasn't any fun."

Waldrop took control with three laps to go before a crowd of only 6023 in San Diego and ran a sizzling 0.56 final quarter. Two other runners who finished under four minutes were Wilson Waigwa of Kenya in 3:57.2 and University of Washington sophomore Greg Gibson in 3:59.1.

The early pace was set by Larry Rose and Waldrop said, "Rose deserves the credit. . . I'd rather talk about my teammates." A handful of other records tumbled as well.

With her pigtails flying, 93-pound Mary Decker of Garden Grove, Calif., broke her own pending indoor mark in the 880 with 2:02.4 and set an 800-meter mark of 2:01.8. Francie Larrieu of Sunnyvale, Calif., trimmed a half-minute off the women's indoor marks in the 30,000 meters — 9:02.4 — and the two-mile in 9:34.4.

Steve Prefontaine lowered his pending U.S. record in the two-mile by nearly two seconds to 8:20.4. Swedish sprinter Chris Garvendorg equaled the listed world record in the 60 at 5.9, and Patty Johnson tied her world indoor mark of 7.4 in the 60-yard hurdles.

UCLA tumbles to third in AP college cage poll

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — After many weeks of trying harder, North Carolina State basketball Coach Norm Sloan finds it nice to be the No. 1 team of college basketball.

Sloan's team was top-ranked in the Associated Press poll this week, ending a long run as number two behind perennial champion UCLA. The Bruins dropped two games over the weekend and fell to third.

N.C. State, with a 20-1 record, edged Notre Dame by a slim margin for the top spot.

Despite its new status, Sloan said his team will still try harder.

"I think it will help us. It comes at a good time to give a boost to our morale. The teams we'll be playing from now on are all Atlantic Coast Conference teams, and they couldn't be gunning for us any more than they are already. We'll have a little more pride."

Sloan was informed of the poll results at practice Monday afternoon. "Is that right?" he asked. Told it was, he said, "We're proud and pleased."

Sloan stopped practice briefly to inform his players. Their reaction was restrained.

"It's not that we're not enthused," said 7-foot-4 center Tom Burleson. "It's just that we've got a lot of things on our minds," including a home game with Duke Wednesday night.

Sloan said the sports writers who picked the Wolfpack "had a good case.

"We're a vastly improved ball club from December (when UCLA beat N.C. State by 18 points in St. Louis). Our two new starters of this season have come a long way.

"Morris Rivers (a junior college transfer at guard) is playing beautifully now and Tim Stoddard at the big forward position is getting over a slow start.

"Defensively, we're coming together much better, particularly with our press. We've beaten two of the top five teams (Maryland and North Carolina) on their home courts; we beat Purdue on its home court when it was leading the Big Ten."

Though the poll recognition is nice, Sloan said, it's not the goal the team is seeking. Pursuit of the real goal starts next month with the ACC tournament, which N.C. State must win to enter the NCAA tournament.

"We want to be No. 1 in March," Sloan said.

Indiana defeats Illinois, 101-83

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Quinn Buckner, Indiana's sensational sophomore, scored only eight points in the Hoosiers 101-83 Big Ten basketball victory over Illinois Monday night, but he won all the praises.

"He played as well as he's played all year and he's doing what he's supposed to do," said Indiana Coach Bobby Knight. "He got the ball where it had to go."

Buckner did exactly that as he picked up 14 of Indiana's 28 assists to help the Hoosiers, defending Big Ten champions, add another clamp to their drive for a second straight title.

The victory boosted Indiana's Big Ten record to 9-1 and kept the Hoosiers one-half game ahead of Purdue, which kept pace with a 99-78 triumph over Iowa.

Indiana, ranked No. 10 nationally, was never in serious trouble as Illinois suffered its 11th straight loss, exceeding a 10-game losing streak posted by the Illini back in 1907.

Indiana broke to a 23-18 lead in the early going and with Scott May scoring seven of the next nine points boosted its lead to 32-18.

Illinois, paced by Jeff Dawson and Rick Schmidt, cut the margin to 48-40 at the half and 52-46 early in the second half before the Hoosiers went on another spree to boost the margin to 80-60.

"I thought Illinois played very well in the first half," said Knight, "but we played our best basketball in the second half. We were able to keep it from getting down to a tough situation. We're just happy to win."

The victory boosted Indiana's overall record to 17-3, and Illinois Coach Harv Schmidt sang the Hoosiers' praises. "Indiana's the best team we've seen this season by far. They put together height with quickness. Buckner's so strong that if he gets a piece of his body on you, he separates you. He's a fine basketball player but Indiana has a lot of them."

May led Indiana with 27 points while Steve Green added 19 and Kent Benson 18. John Laskowski, Indiana's Super Sub, had 15.

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—Two new champions and three missing from the tournament for several years are among the 52 professional Bowlers Association winners eligible for the 1974 Tournament of Champions.

Bob McGregor, Dallas, Tex., and Bob Perry, Paterson, N.J., are those making their debut in the tournament. Veterans Bill Allen, Orlando, Fla., Harry Smith, Rochester, N.Y., and Marty Piraino, Syracuse, N.Y., are the three who regained their eligibility.

MT finishes fourth in SCOL wrestling

Circleville's wrestlers wrapped up their third straight South Central Ohio League championship as they dominated the league meet Saturday on the Tigers' mats.

The Tigers took seven firsts, four seconds and one third to tally 83½ points to wrap up the title. Wilmington was second with 68 points, Hillsboro had 50 points, Miami Trace 24 and Madison Plains 23.

Miami Trace finished fourth with its 24 points with two seconds and two thirds. Gary Cobb who wrestles in the 132 pound division took second by way of losing a decision to Jim Cordle of Circleville. Jim Reno also took second in the 155 class losing in an overtime match to Hastings of Hillsboro. Kirk Stuckey placed third in the 145 bracket and Jay Crummy took third in the 167 division losing the first match 5-0 in overtime but beat Boyer of Madison Plains for third place.

Don French - 138 pound - won one match by a pin but lost two others by pins. Mark Williams - 119 - pinned Davidson of Madison Plains but lost to Penn of Hillsboro and Zilich of Wilmington. Greg Detty won one match but lost two others.

Jon Davis of Wilmington received the outstanding wrestler trophy. The quickest pin trophy went to Bob Cyrus of Hillsboro with two pins in a total time of 1:48.

Coach Dick Hill of Miami Trace reported that he felt the Panthers did reasonably well with what man power they had. The flu had sidelined some wrestlers and inexperience couldn't match with the season veterans of Circleville and Wilmington.

Jersey Knights beat Chicago Cougars, 4-3

CHERRY HILL, N.J. (AP) — "One of my coaches once told me: 'If you can stop nine out of every 10 shots they throw at you, you're playing pretty darn good,'" Jersey goalie Joe Junkin recalled.

If that's true, Junkin was darn-near fantastic Monday night. The Chicago Cougars peppered him with 49 shots — but Junkin allowed only three of them in — one less than his teammates scored.

The Knights' 4-3 victory, coming on Gene Peacosh's second goal of the game midway in the third period, was the night's only World Hockey Association game. The National Hockey League was idle.

Denis Menke goes back with Astros

CINCINNATI (AP) — Veteran infielder Denis Menke got his wish Monday. He was traded back to the Houston Astros.

The Cincinnati Reds third baseman, who lost his job to rookie hitting sensation Dan Driessen, had asked Reds' President Bob Howsam to trade him to Houston, where Menke has holdings.

"We were willing to do it as long as we could get the ability we wanted in return," said Howsam.

The Reds obtained 23-year-old pitcher Pat Darcy who played with the Astros' Denver farm team last year. He was 5-9 in 20 games. The Troy, Ohio native is a 6-foot-3 righthander.

The trade returns Menke to the team he spent five years with. He hit .304 with the Astros in 1970, but his batting average plummeted in recent seasons. His .191 average last year represented a career low for the Iowa native.

Menke was a member of the National League All-Star team in 1969 and 1970.

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Astros Manager Preston Gomez says he hopes Cesar Cedeno's difficulties will be the team's only problems.

Gomez, who has replaced Leo Durocher as manager of the Astros, referred to a charge of involuntary manslaughter against the team's star outfielder in connection with the shooting death of a young woman in Santo Domingo. Cedeno was fined $100.

NFL strike by players seen possible

DALLAS (AP) — Star Dallas Cowboy running back Calvin Hill says many National Football League players agree with him when he says, "I will not be taken for granted any longer."

Hill, who is the Cowboys' player representative, said Monday he and hundreds of NFL players are considering a strike of training camps next summer if NFL management does not change the standard player's contract.

He did not specify which parts of the contract will be the target of representatives at the NFL Players Association convention at Chicago March 2-6.

Hill was quoted in Baltimore by WFAA-TV of Dallas as saying he believes he is being "watched" by the Cowboys because he told a New York reporter he wanted to be traded.

He said Cowboy officials heard about the New York interview and sent to New York for a copy of the tape. Hill added that the fact that 46 Cowboy players have joined the NFLPA under his representation has caused headaches for the Cowboy front office.

Reds cut charter flights

CINCINNATI, Ohio — Travel plans for the 1974 National League season announced today by the Cincinnati Reds show a sharp reduction in the number of charter flights.

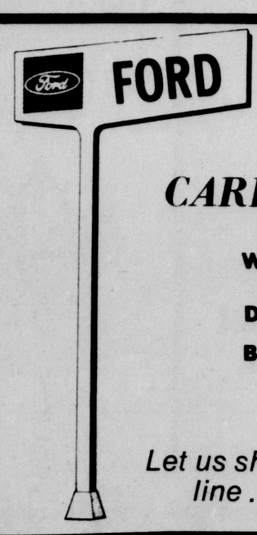

The team, which has used air charters on 100 per cent of its trips during the past four seasons, will only use charters on 31 of 42 trips this year, a reduction of 26 per cent.

When not traveling by air charter, the Reds will be using regular commercial flights or, in some cases involving short distances, travel by bus.

The reduction of 11 charter flights involves 5,300 miles or about 17 per cent of the Reds' total travel. This will result in the saving of considerable airplane fuel.

The Reds have been advised by the charter airline that ferrying has been reduced to a bare minimum, which will result in further fuel saving.

The Reds' new travel plans, which have been forwarded to Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, came in answer to an appeal to conserve energy wherever possible.

WFL franchises undergo changes

CHICAGO (AP) — The World Football League, having yet to play a game and seeking a television contract, announced a pair of franchise shifts Monday at a meeting of its Board of Governors.

Gary Davidson, president of the new league, said the Memphis franchise would be switched to Houston and the Boston franchise would be shifted to New York.

Davidson said the WFL would hold a news conference in New York today to announce details of a television contract. Davidson added that the league would play all of its games on Wednesday nights with one game each Thursday which will be nationally televised.

He said the league would play a 20-week schedule tentatively starting July 10 and winding up with a four-team playoff and a Nov. 29 championship game.

The Boston franchise, originally owned by Herbert Baldwin, will be operated in New York by Baldwin and Bob Schmertz. Schmertz relinquished his New York franchise, which was provisionally moved to Boston pending future action.

Davidson said the original New York franchise eventually would go to either Portland, Ore., Mexico City, Salt Lake City or New Orleans.

As things now stand, the league will open with 12 clubs. There will be Eastern, Central and Western divisions with the three champions and the best second-place team competing in the playoffs.

The makeup of each division has yet to be determined. Other teams include Birmingham, Ala., Chicago, Detroit, Florida, Honolulu, Philadelphia, Southern California, Toronto and Washington-Baltimore.

The moves to New York and Houston hurdled playing site problems at Boston and Memphis, which still is wooing a franchise from the long-established National Football League.

Biddy cage scores

In the Biddy Basketball League Saturday Madison Mills defeated Jasper 41-12 behind a 23 point performance by Delay and a 12 point output by Parks. Jasper was led by Scaggs and Henricks with four points apiece.

The second game saw Wilson defeat New Holland 33-32. Wilson was led by Dean and Knisley with 12 points and New Holland received 12 points from Hendricks.

Wayne defeated Jeffersonville sixth grade 30-21 in the third game. James and Forrest led Wayne with nine points apiece and Axline led Jeffersonville with six points.

The final game had Jeffersonville fifth grade defeating Bloomingburg 34-25. King led Jeffersonville with 15 points and McDonald and Lower received seven. Souther collected nine points for Bloomingburg.

With only one week remaining in cage action the standings are: Madison Mills 6-0, New Holland and Wilson 5-1, Wayne 4-2, Jeffersonville 6th and 5th grades 2-4, with Bloomingburg and Jasper finishing up at 0-6.

Final AP poll

Top prep cage teams listed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The coaches of Associated Press poll champions Canton McKinley, Wellsville and Mansfield St. Peter's say No. 1 isn't an extra burden heading into Ohio high school basketball tournament play.

"Being No. 1 makes you play a little harder," said Bob Rupert Monday after his unbeaten Bulldogs were acclaimed the Ohio Class AAA regular season titleholder.

"Sure, we had extra pressure trying to win that 18th in the last game. Now the pressure's on everybody. Everybody has something to lose," said Rupert, who also led McKinley to the AP state crowns in 1965 and 1966.

Wellsville, 17-0, won the Class AA honors for the second time in four seasons while St. Peter's, 18-1, earned its first AP championship in Class A.

A statewide panel of sports writers and broadcasters gave McKinley a 313-244 margin over Class AAA runnerup Kettering Alter, Wellsville a 290-281 lead over No. 2 Akron Manchester in Class AA and St. Peter's a 281-246 cushion over runnerup Sebring in Class A.

"Being No. 1 isn't going to make any difference," said Bob Dawson, who also guided Wellsville to its 1971 Class AA crown.

"We've had plenty of pressure everytime we've played a game this season. In tournament play, you have to be good, lucky and you must play well all of the time," he said.

St. Peter's played one of the most demanding Class A schedules in the state, beating four Class AAA and nine Class AA opponents. The Spartans' only setback was Dec. 15 at Sandusky St. Mary's 72-60.

"We're hoping the pressure of being No. 1 the last few weeks carries over into tournament play. It worked positive for us in several games. Kids came off the bench, felt like they were No. 1 and did super jobs," said Ron Barbo, the St. Peter's coach.

McKinley launches tournament play against 11-7 Massillon Perry, Wellsville faces Tornoto, a team it beat twice during the season, while St. Peter's opening tournament foe is winless Crestline.

Despite their coaches' optimism, the three poll champions face uphill battles to add the Ohio tournament titles to their AP trophies.

Only nine schools have pulled off a sweep of the tournament and poll championships since the ratings began in 1952. No Class AAA or Class AA team has done it since the state was chopped into three divisions for the 1971 tournament.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Here's how a panel of sports writers and broadcasters rates Ohio high school basketball teams in The Associated Press final poll of the season (10 points for first to 1 point for tenth):

Utah Stars rip Cougars

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)— Coach Joe Mullaney of the Utah Stars won't come right out and say his American Basketball Association team is the best in the league.

"Let's say right now we're playing the soundest basketball of any team in the league," he said Monday night after his Western Division leading Stars won their 14th straight by defeating the Carolina Cougars 121-110.

"The big thing about the streak is that we're moving away from the other teams. We're now in a position where it is safe to say we should win the division," he added.

The Stars lead the ABA West by 12½ games.

It was the only scheduled ABA contest. No games were played in the National Basketball Association.

Ron Boone, Willie Wise and James Jones combined for 67 points for Utah. Boone hit 11 of 11 from the field, a club record, and led the Stars with 24 points. Wise scored 23 and Jones 20.

Carolina was down by 10 points late in the game when Mack Calvin, who led all scorers with 31 points, sparked a rally which nearly pulled the game out for the Cougars. But Utah held on and pulled away in the last two minutes.

Sped Proves victor in Latonia feature

FLORENCE, Ky. (AP)—Sped spurted away from the pack with a furious stretch drive for a seven-length victory in the featured race Monday night at Latonia.

The winner went the six and a half furlongs in 1:21 to return $6.60, $4.80 and $3.00. Alluring Lady paid $4.60 and $2.80 for second. Mike's Pal showed at $2.40.

Certificate

TO HAROLD A HISE, TREASURER, FAYETTE COUNTY, OHIO:

I hereby certify that the levies set forth on this abstract are correct in accordance with the provisions of the statutes.

MARY MORRIS, Auditor
FAYETTE COUNTY, OHIO

NOTICE--GENERAL INSTRUCTIONS TO TAXPAYERS--IMPORTANT

REAL ESTATE stands charged on the County Treasurer's books in the name of the owner January 1, 1973. Property purchased after this date will not appear on the tax books in the new name until the records are received for the year 1974. The above rates are used to determine the tax on GENERAL PERSONAL property. The return must be filed with the County Auditor between February 15th and April 30th of each year.

In making request for tax bills be sure to give sufficient description so that the property may be located in the records and be sure all real estate is included as the Treasurer is not responsible for omissions.

'74 Plymouth Duster

PAA

As you can see, Duster's sticker price is below popular Japanese imports. And what you do spend, buys you a lot more. For example, Duster seats five adults, comfortably. The Toyota, Mazda and Datsun—only four. Duster's got a standard electronic ignition that virtually eliminates ignition tune-ups. The other three don't even offer one. And finally, Duster is every inch a compact. With easy handling and parking. And good gas mileage on regular fuel.

Want a car that offers a lot for the money? Then see a member of your Economy Team about a new Duster. You know who I mean?

Plymouth Duster, one of eight great small car buys from Plymouth.

LONDON (AP) — Free slimming centers are being opened by the borough council of Hounslow, a London suburb.

People attending pay 2½ pence (about 6 cents) a week. "The money is used to buy small gifts which are given for every stone (14 pounds) lost," a council official said.

Councillor Mrs. Mary Smith, who admits to weighting "a bit over 21 stone (294 pounds)" has promised to reduce her bulk by 147 pounds by the time the borough's mayor completes his year of office next May.

In France, each royal court had different fragrances in perfume as well as different scents for each day of the week in some of the courts.

New higher interest rate on U.S. Savings Bonds.

Now U.S. Savings Bonds pay 6% interest when held to maturity.

Here's how it works: The higher interest rate applies to all new Bonds purchased since December 1, 1973, raising their rate from 5½% to 6% when held to maturity. And the maturity period on Series E Bonds is shorter, too. Now E Bonds mature in 5 years, with a first-year rate of 4½%.

Series H Bonds, with a 10-year maturity, will earn 5% the first year; 5.8% for the next four years; and 6½% for the last five years. This gives you an average 6% yield over the 10-year period.

It works for Bonds you now hold, too. There's no reason to redeem your older Bonds to buy new ones. Their yield has improved, too.

All outstanding E Bonds will receive a ½% increase in yield for each semiannual interest period beginning on or after December 1, 1973, payable upon redemption. This also applies to any Freedom Shares you may still hold.

All outstanding H Bonds will receive a ½% yield increase for each semiannual interest period beginning on or after December 1, 1973. This is payable in the form of increased semiannual interest payments.

It all works to your advantage. Now, more than ever, it makes sense to buy higher-paying U.S. Savings Bonds and hold them to maturity or beyond.

Opening lead - three of diamonds.

Here's the kind of tantalizing problem you're sometimes faced with. Assume you're in six spades and West leads a diamond. How should you play the hand?

The only losers are a heart and a club, and the problem is to find the best way of avoiding one or both of them.

Let's say you win the diamond with the ace, ruff a diamond, cash the K-A of trumps, ruff another diamond, and then play a low club to the jack. You would be home if the jack won the trick—but, unfortunately, East takes the jack with the king and returns a club.

You win with the queen and cash the ace, in order to gather as much information as you can about the composition of the unseen hands. This proves to be an illuminating move, because East shows out on the last club and you can then start to theorize on the probable location of the queen of hearts.

You know that West originally had two spades and five clubs—these are absolute certainties—and, judging from his opening lead of the three, that he also had precisely four diamonds.

With eleven of West's cards in three suits thus accounted for, it follows that he was dealt precisely two hearts. There is consequently a probability that East, with an original holding of four hearts, is more likely to have the queen than West, who had only two hearts.

You should therefore stick to the odds and take the two-way heart finesse against East. In the actual case the finesse succeeds and you come safely home.

Correct Speech Defect Now!

Our youngest child is in kindergarten. She has a distinct speech impairment. Some of our friends think this is "cute."

I have difficulty convincing my husband that we should make some attempt at correcting this. He insists she will outgrow it.

Mrs. H.R., Pa.

Dear Mrs. R.:

You are absolutely right in insisting that corrective measures be started as soon as possible so that your child will avoid the inevitable embarrassment and teasing that will occur in the first and second grades.

A speech disorder is a great handicap to young children. It is estimated that more than two million children have speech defects that interfere with their scholastic progress and, often, their social relationships.

Adolescent and adult achievement can be affected by speech defects neglected during childhood. Speech may, in fact, account for the acceptance or rejection by classmates.

It is difficult to believe that defective speech patterns deeply ingrained in young children will spontaneously disappear without treatment. The longer one waits the more difficult it becomes to eradicate the defect.

Speech therapy today is an exact and highly proficient science. It does not impose hardship on the child and, in fact, many children enjoy the ingenious corrective techniques now in use.

Before therapy begins the exact cause must be established.

I am 19 years old and am in excellent health. My only problem is that I cough incessantly as soon as I lie down to go to bed.

Miss J.N., Neb.

Dear Miss N.:

Such a story is highly suggestive of allergy. The fact that it occurs in your bedroom indicates the possibility that rugs, bedding, pillows or stuffed animals may be the offenders.

Coughs that occur during the day, too, are not so easily pinpointed.

The so-called 'post-nasal drip," associated with low-grade infections of the sinuses, may become more pronounced when a person lies down, and consequently causes recurring bouts of coughing.

X-rays of the sinuses and examination of the condition of the nose and the sinuses can usually define the problem and outline the course of treatment.

Try sleeping in another room to see if the condition persists. Non-allergic covers, pillows and anti-allergic drugs can often bring quick relief.

The electronic calculator has changed our thinking in the area of math. Calculations that would have involved too much figuring to bother with a few years ago are today as simple as pushing a few buttons. The work has been taken out of calculations. And so it is with photography. Take, for example, the Honeywell Pentax ES. You see, I don't have a Pentax ES but my wife has one and I find it so much simpler to use the ES with the electronic shutter than to set everything myself on the Leicas — well, I just sneak out with her Pentax ES and get perfectly exposed pix every time without having to figure exposure at all. So I'm lazy, I get good pictures and that's what it's all about.

Now this Pentax ES gives perfect exposures everytime. You can't beat that! The ES stands for electronic shutter, and that shutter stays open until enough light gets in to give a perfect exposure if it takes one thousandth of a second or 8 seconds. Yet you have control at all times. You can set the aperture as you wish. Then you depress the shutter release about half-way while viewing. The needle in the viewfinder tells you the precise shutter speed you'll get at that aperture. If you like that shutter speed just go ahead and shoot. Don't like it? Then stop down or open up the aperture. You're the boss, but whatever you do the camera assures you a perfect picture exposure-wise. Now you see why I lift my wife's Pentax ES when I have a photographic job to shoot? You can't miss with the ES.

You haven't sacrificed a thing in going to the Pentax ES. In the ES the automation is in the body of the camera. This means you can use virtually all Takumar lenses and other Pentax accessories with it; even bellows and extension tubes. And with the automation in the camera body you have complete depth-of-field control because you select the aperture you want. You're the boss.

And by the way, if you haven't read THE BUSINESS END OF GOVERNMENT by Dan Smoot, well, it is the most popular book we have in the shop at the moment. More than 75 copies went out last week. Read it and you'll see why.

MIGHTY BIG CAMPFIRE ! — Lt. Richard Reed and Fireman Jim Sever of the Washington C.H . Fire Department were summoned to 14 Steen Court at 4:30 p.m. Monday to put out a fire which was in direct conflict with the city's open burning code. The fire was set by the K and S Construction Co. in an attempt to clean up rubble in knocking down the houses where the new Kroger's store will be built. The fire was put out with water from a nearby fire hydrant, and firemen worked at the site for four hours.

Girl attacked by 'tall men'

The Fayette County Sheriff's Department is investigating the reported rape of a 16-year-old girl, and listed the recovery of a stolen vehicle and a grand larceny. City police reported an incident of malicious destruction.

A 16-year-old, New Holland girl was reportedly assaulted by two men who she described as being, "in their early 20s and over six feet tall."

The incident occurred in Pickaway County between 5 p.m. and 5:30 p.m. Sunday.

The girl said she had been walking on the CCC-Highway-E near a wrecking yard when the two men pulled up in a car and asked her to get in. One of the men grabbed her arm and forced her into the auto.

They then drove to a wooded area near Williamsport and both men attacked her, according to the report. She was then taken to Williamsport and "dumped" as she put it.

Her uncle picked her up and returned her to home. Her mother then took her to Fayette Memorial Hospital for examination.

SHERIFF'S DEPUTIES stopped a vehicle driven by Audrey Hoagland, 32, Rt. 3, t 5:57 p.m. Tuesday, February 12 at the intersection of Blackstone Avenue and Paint Street.

Ms. Hoagland explained she had purchased the Falcon van from Ed Hoagland, 29, Rt. 4, for $120, but could not produce a title of ownership. She was charged with fictitious registration.

The van had been stolen from Marjorie L. Edwards, Morrow, on Jan. 28, officers said.

Hoagland, presently incarcerated in the county jail on charges of forgery, uttering a forged check and larceny, will now face additional charges of auto theft filed by Warren County.

An AM radio, a pipe wrench, a small socket set, a set of chisels, a hammer and a set of punches were stolen from a disabled combine parked in a field owned by Ferol E. Lewis, Bloomingburg.

The theft occurred sometime between Thursday and Monday, according to sheriff's deputies. The stolen merchandise was valued at $200.

The sound of breaking glass brought Dora Short, 603 Fourth St. into her living room where she discovered a large rock lying on the floor and a hole in a 14-by-20-inch glass window, valued at $5. The incident occurred at 9:25 p.m. Monday.

CIC board of directors hears variety of reports

A complete agenda of reports was handled by the Washington C.H. Community Improvement Corp. board of directors at the regular monthly meeting Tuesday morning in the City Office Building.

The meeting was the corporation's first since the annual reorganization meeting held Jan. 17.

President George Winkle stated the CIC board reviewed and discussed a full slate of reports including Washington C.H. railroad crossings, the Ohio Chamber of Commerce's annual spring legislative banquet, a proposed Public Utilities Commission of Ohio (PUCO) ban on advertising and economic development efforts by Chambers of Commerce, 1974 CIC memberships and present industrial park development.

Joseph O'Brien reported to the board that the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton Railroad Co., officials have agreed to a complete upgrading of their crossings this year in Washington C.H. The Community Improvement Corp., in conjunction with City Council and the Washington C.H. Area Chamber of Commerce, will contact the Baltimore and Ohio and Penn Central railroad companies again concerning improvement of their crossings.

Members of the board agreed to participate with the city and the Chamber of Commerce at the March 20 legislative recognition banquet, sponsored by the Ohio Chamber of Commerce. The annual legislative banquet will be held in Columbus.

Opposition to a proposed PUCO advertising ban against electric utilities will be made by the CIC directors as they join the Washington C.H. Area Chamber of Commerce and organizations from throughout the state in fighting the proposal. A PUCO hearing on the matter is to be held in Columbus Saturday, Feb. 26.

Various developments at the city's Industrial Park are under way presently, and the board of directors expressed satisfaction that local growth is much in evidence at the present time.

Winkle said that 1974 CIC memberships, priced at $5, may be obtained from any director or at the Chamber of Commerce office.

6th worker hit by rare cancer

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The sixth victim of a rare kind of liver cancer has been discovered among workers at the B.F.Goodrich plant here.

The worker is still living and has not been identified. But Dr. J. Bradford Block, head of the state Occupational Safety and Health Administration's medical program, confirmed the sixth case Monday, after Goodrich officials declined to confirm that the man has the disease.

The number of plant workers who have died from the rare cancer is five. The disease, called angiosarcoma, is believed by medical experts to be caused by prolonged exposure to vinyl chloride-a chemical used in the manufacture of plastics at the Goodrich plant on Louisville's Bells Lane.

Feedlot runoff curbs could boost consumer prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government plans to curb water pollution resulting from animal feedlot runoff would cost farmers at least $750 million and could add substantially to consumer food costs, the Agriculture Department says.

The curbs are called for by the Federal Water Pollution Control Act passed by Congress in 1972. The law directs the Environmental Protection Agency to set up a broad national program for eliminating water pollution.

Guidelines drafted last fall by EPA are aimed at stopping pollutants at sources so they do not enter rivers, lakes and streams during times of excessive rainfall.

The department, in a report published today in "Farm Index," says the guidelines currently are designed to apply by 1977 to large farm producers having at least 1,000 beef animals, 700 dairy cows or 2,500 hogs.

"But later this year, guidelines will be proposed for smaller units," the index said. "Eventually all procedures may be covered."

If all farmers had to abide by the current guidelines as written, officials estimate 280,000 dairy, cattle and hog farmers would have to install facilities to curtail runoff.

"The costs of installing these systems would fall heaviest on small producers," the report said. "For example, of the estimated $133 million that the fed beef industry would have to invest ... more than two-thirds would be borne by feeders selling fewer than 100 head per year."

It was estimated hog producers would have to spend $280 million, with four-fifths of the outlay by farmers who each sell fewer than 500 head per year.

Dairy farmers would have to spend the most, $300 million. An estimated 40 per cent of those currently have surface water runoff problems, the report said.

Ministers to meet

The Fayette County Ministerial Association will meet at 8:45 a.m. Thursday in the First Presbyterian Church. The Rev. Gene Mindenhall of the Scioto-Paint Valley Guidance Center, Chillicothe, will be guest speaker. He will explain the services and programs offered by the center.

Driver charged after crash

The Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported a Washington C.H. man charged with reckless operation and the Washington C.H. Police Department reported two minor accidents within the past 24 hours.

A car driven by Augustine L. McDonald, 69, of 226 S. North St., collided with the pole supporting the Dairy Isle sign after accidently hitting the gas pedal instead of the brake as he left the Meriweather Motors parking lot on the CCC-Highway-SW in Union Township at 12 p.m. Monday.

McDonald ran over a wooden guardrail post and then entered the front lawn of Dairy Isle, traveled 62 feet, hit a concrete wall and then struck the pole, officers said.

Moderate damage was done to the pole and his car. Sheriff's deputies charged McDonald with reckless operation.

CITY POLICE reported an accident involving a car driven by Clarence Hackett, 72, of 523 W. Temple St., and a parked car owned by Rodney Acton, Rt. 2, at 2:21 p.m. Monday.

Hackett told police a truck had crowded him into the parked auto on Court Street.

There was moderate damage incurred by his car and slight damage was done to the parked car.

An open car door created an accident at 11:09 a.m. Monday, according to police. A car driven by Robert C. Turner, 42, of 1021 John St., struck the door of a car belonging to Peter C. Katt, 28, Columbus, while it was stopped on Court Street. Damage was slight.

Report U. S. holds wide lead in antisubmarine warfare

By MIKE SHANAHAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a kind of guerrilla war of the deep, the United States has far surpassed the Soviet Union in the ability to locate and keep track of the other country's submarines.

While highly-sophisticated U.S. sonar equipment can pick up surface ships hundreds of miles away and submarines 15 to 20 miles away, U.S. antisubmarine specialists have been surprised at the slow pace of Russian antisubmarine development.

They say the Russians are at least a decade behind, especially in sonar equipment aboard their atomic submarines.

The contrast becomes vital with today's opening of a new round of strategic arms limitation talks in Geneva. Some U.S. officials expect the Soviets to propose mutual limitations on the development of antisubmarine warfare gear.

"That would be completely to their advantage if we agree," said one high-ranking official. "It will be at least a decade before Soviet ASW (antisubmarine warfare equipment) can be taken seriously."

As explained by U.S. officials, the only job assigned to Soviet attack surmarines is to maintain the ability to destroy enemy shipping. Unlike American ships, Soviet subs are not assigned to keep open shipping lines or to escort convoys.

"So to keep track of those subs we have to engage in a kind of guerrilla warfare, you know, three or four of ours to one of theirs."

No matter what happens to strategic bombers or landbased missiles, both the United States and the Soviet Union are sure of raining destruction on the other in the event one strikes first.

The reason: The ability of each country's missile-carrying submarines to stay hidden and respond quickly to an attack.

Hospital board buys van for maintenance

The purchase of a new one-half ton van to be used at Fayette County Memorial Hospital was approved during the regular meeting of the hospital board of trustees Monday night.

Robert L. Kunz, hospital administrator, said the 1974 van purchased from Carroll Halliday, Inc., will be used by the hospital's maintenance department staff.

The bid of $3,260 submitted by Halliday's was the lowest of four received by the board. Other bids were Billie Wilson Chevrolet, $3,519; Meriweather Motors, $3,800, and London Truck and Tractor Co., $4,023.

The board also approved the payment of $1,680 tro the Mid-Ohio Health Planning Federation. Kunz said the $1,680 figure amounts to half of Fayette County's assessment for 1974-75.

Mrs. Ralph Child, president of the hospital auxiliary, presented an annual report to board members. Mrs. Child's report disclosed that there are a total of 122 auxiliary members and they donated 24,813 hours during 1973. The auxiliary members worked in the orthopedic clinic, x-ray department, the obstetrics department, the admissions desk and the front office in addition to handling the hospital television service.

ONE OF the major items of equipment donated to the hospital during the year was a heart monitoring machine, costing approximately $3,000. The auxiliary also purchased a new skin graft machine for surgery and new bassinets for the obstetrics department.

The administrator's statistical report showed 380 admissions during the month, 2,107 in-patient days, an average daily census of 67.96, a percentage of occupancy of 78.12, average length of stay 5.80 days and 1,077 visitors to the emergency room.

Kunz also listed the actual net revenue of $75.25 per patient day. He said $71.59 was budgeted by the board and the national average is $105.

Expenses per patient day, according to Kunz, was $71.59 per day actually, and that $71.49 was budgeted. He said the national average is $103.

The expense per admission is $397 actual; $444 budgeted, and $768 on the national average. He said there were 2.6 full-time employes per occupied bed.

Demo chieftain vows to keep workers clean

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — John T. Fallon, the Ohio Democratic party's new executive director, says he will see to it that state employes stay "out of the ticket selling business, whether voluntary or involuntary."

The state organization will provide the mechanism for raising funds for candidates and will abide by all campaign financing and spending laws, Fallon said Monday after agreeing to become successor to the dismissed David Meeker.

The state party was criticized recently by the federal General Accounting Office for using state employes for political fund-raising activities.

Fallon, a longtime political worker, accepted the post after receiving assurances it wouldn't be a temporary job.

Official announcement of the appointment was made at a news conference Monday by state Democratic Chairman William Lavelle, who also named Lucas County Democratic Chairman William Boyle as a special assistant for the campaigns of endorsed primary candidates.

Lavelle named Fallon to the post Saturday following a meeting of major county chairmen in the governor's mansion, but Fallon later put out a statement that he had been only offered the job and would not take it unless he knew he would be around after the May primary.

Lavelle said the party organization and Gov. John Gilligan had assured Fallon of a job through November. Fallon said "these assurances have satisfied any doubts I have had."

Fallon, who worked in the campaigns of former Gov. Michael V. DiSalle and former Columbus Mayor M.E. Sensenbrenner, currently is an assistant director in the Department of Transportation. He will receive $27,000 a year in the party post, the same salary he is receiving from the state.

Fallon will take a leave of absence from the state job starting March 1. In the interim, Lavelle said, Fallon will "slide into" the party job, spending part of his time at Democratic headquarters.

Boyle will be on the party payroll on the basis of a $20,000 a year salary only through the May primary. He said he will retain his Lucas County chairmanship.

Courthouse roof plan considered

New roofing on the Courthouse was expected to be considered by the Fayette County Board of Commissioners Tuesday afternoon.

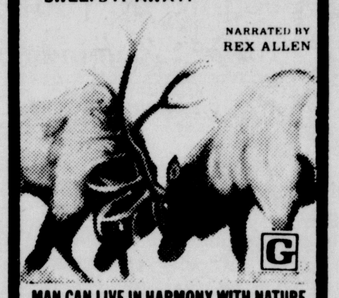

Chairman J. Herbert Perrill said he is hopeful that the board would discuss the possibility of roofing the remainder of the Courthouse.

Perrill said Kingery Roofing Contractors, of West Lancaster, presently are roofing the vertical portion of the Courthouse in addition to repairing various other sections of the roof. The commissioners expect to receive an estimate from Kingery at their regular meeting next Monday.

Commissioners were invited to attend a meeting of the Upper Paint Creek Steering Committee at 11:45 a.m. today in the Terrace Lounge. Local representatives of the steering committee and representatives from the Ohio Department of Natural Resources, Columbus, will be attending the session. They will discuss with commissioners improvements in the upper Paint Creek area.

John Young, a Boy Scout representative from Columbus, was scheduled to meet with commissioners Tuesday.

Reginald (Chink) Davis, county dog warden, submitted 30 reports for the week.
